STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

Report of the Special Committee appointed to consider the amendment of the Civil Procedure Code

WE have the honour to present this report on the proposals to amend the Code of Civil Procedure which have been submitted for our consideration by the Government of India and, annexed to it a draft Bill amended by us. A detailed account of the alterations introduced in the bill will be found in the Notes on Clauses which form the second part of this Report but we desire by way of preface to make some observations of a general character on the defects in the existing law which appear to us to call for reform and on the more important of those alterations.

1 The Code of Civil Procedure of 1882 has been in force for 25 years and the experience of those years has shown that the general lines on which it proceeds are sound. The matters in which it has proved defective are for the most part matters of detail and they arise as it seems to us mainly from the fact that it is impossible to frame a fixed and rigid Code in such a manner as to sufficiently meet the varying needs of an area so diversified as that to which the Code applies. In our opinion it is essential that there should be some machinery to enable variations to be introduced in procedure to meet the different requirements of different localities as well as to enable defects to be remedied as they are discovered without resort to the tardy process of legislation. We propose to make provision for these purposes by a re-arrangement of the Code. We recommend that matters of mere machinery should be relegated to rules capable of alteration by each High Court, subject to certain checks, and that those provisions only should be retained in the body of the Code in which some degree of permanence and uniformity is desirable. This re-arrangement is in accordance with precedent and possesses advantages so obvious that it is needless to enlarge upon them.

2 The objection—and as it appears to us the only objection of substance—that can be urged against this proposal is that until

Committee in 1903 and we desire to express our acknowledgments to that Committee for the store of information it contains and for the materials collected in their Report

Apart from the re-arrangement to which reference has been made we have not introduced many changes of a radical character into the Code

4 The general nature of some of the amendments we recommend may be conveniently illustrated by a brief examination of the extent to which the various stages of a suit will be affected by them

A To begin with it is hoped that the multiplicity of suits will be further curtailed by the new provisions we have inserted to remove limitations which we regard as needless on the comprehensiveness of a suit and by the wide powers of amendment vested in the Courts under the Bill. An adequate check is provided by the power of a Court to interfere where embarrassment it is likely to result

B Increased facilities have been given for the service of process to which further reference is made in the Notes on Clauses. It is hoped that in the gradual introduction of service by post may be found a solution of one of the principal defects in our legal system

C In our opinion it is most necessary that litigants in this country should come to trial with all issues clearly defined and that cases should not be expanded or grounds shifted without reference to the true facts. For this purpose we think that the present system of pleadings in the mofussil which is notoriously lax should be improved and we have incorporated in the rules an Order on pleadings which it is hoped will lead to sounder and fairer methods of arriving at the real points in dispute. The forms have been revised and we hope that they will be brought into more general use in the mofussil

We have not been able within the time at our disposal to make these forms or the other forms in the Appendix to Schedule I complete but this is a matter of detail which can be further considered before the Bill is passed into law

D It is not possible to secure expedition in the disposal of suits unless the questions of fact on which there is a real contest are narrowed down as far as possible. As a step towards this, we have incorporated in the rules an Order in which provision is made for the admission not only of documents but also of facts. It must be left to litigants and their advisers to make adequate use of this order but it is hoped that the Courts will encourage the use of it, since it certainly affords a means whereby the two principal evils of litigation, delay and expense, can be materially diminished

E We attach much importance to a proper use being made by Courts in the management of the procedure prescribed for the first hearing. The Code as it stands makes provision for the examination of parties by the Court and we have altered the language so as to compel the production of documents at the first hearing. In our opinion this will act as a substantial check on the fabrication of documentary evidence.

F The provisions relating to the hearing of suits do not call for material alteration, but we have thought it well to provide expressly for the cases where a party dies between conclusion of the hearing and delivery of judgment. It would obviously be wrong that such an accident should in any way interfere with the disposal of the case and we have therefore inserted a provision to enable judgment to be pronounced notwithstanding the death.

G A change of importance has been made in regard to decrees. In the first place we have inserted an express provision recognizing the distinction between preliminary and final decrees. We hope in this way to afford facilities for checking the delay that now results from the objectionable practice of leaving for final determination in execution questions which should be decided by the decree. This change should ensure the more expeditious disposal of a class of suits which at present are conspicuous for the delay to which they give rise. Another amendment of importance which we have introduced is in regard to mortgage suits. These are very numerous and involve complicated questions of law. Hitherto some confusion has been occasioned by the co-existence of the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act and of the Code in regard to execution in mortgage suits. We think that the provisions regulating this matter should be dealt with in their entirety in the Code and we have therefore introduced rules in Order XXXIV to give effect to our view. We propose that the sections of the Transfer of Property Act affected by this change should be repealed. We desire to call the attention of those Provinces to which that Act does not apply to the effect of these changes.

In our opinion it is expedient to give greater assistance to the Courts in the framing of decrees. The importance of this branch of procedure cannot be overated it is surrounded by difficulties which are a fruitful source of error and consequently of litigation. We have amplified the provisions of the Code to meet this defect and have introduced some forms which can be adapted to meet the requirements of individual cases. We think that further forms might be added with advantage before the Bill becomes law.

H Amongst other matters we have removed limitations which at present exist on the power of appointing Receivers and have conferred a power to appoint Receivers on Subordinate Courts.

5 Execution—The subject of execution is perhaps one of the most difficult with which we have had to deal. The present system in the mofussil at any rate, tends to excessive delay and affords facilities for defeating the claims of creditors. At the same time the creditor often has only himself to blame owing to his own laches in prosecuting his rights. In the Presidency Towns the same objections cannot be fairly raised the system works well whilst in the mofussil the difficulties arise not so much from the machinery itself as from the defective manner in which it is worked. One of the most fruitful sources of litigation is the setting aside of execution sales on the ground of irregularity in the publication of the sale proclamation. It is notorious that in many of these cases the Court's officer, either through negligence or dishonesty has not duly published the proclamation but it is impossible to deal with such cases by any provision in a Code. After a most careful consideration of the subject we have not seen our way to any very drastic changes in the present system. We have found ourselves unable to accept the somewhat far reaching proposal of the Committee of 1902 in relation to the execution of decrees by precept but we are so far in accord with the view expressed by that Committee as to have been able to insert in the Bill a clause which enables the Court which passed the decree to issue a precept to any other Court to attach property of the judgment debtor pending execution in the ordinary course. Beyond this we have felt we could not safely go.

We anticipate that there will be a substantial saving of time, and consequent expense from the provision requiring that mesne profits shall be ascertained by the Court under the decree itself and not as now in execution proceedings.

Clause 53 has been introduced to settle a long mooted point upon which there is much diversity of judicial opinion as to whether or not questions as to the liability of ancestral property in the hands of a son or other descendant to whom it has come otherwise than by descent for the payment of the debt for which the decree was passed can be determined under clause 47 of the present Bill corresponding with section 244 of the existing Code. We think they should be.

Other amendments deserving notice relate to (1) the power to break open the outer door of the judgment debtor's dwelling house, (2) the date from which the purchaser's title accrues, (3) oral application for immediate execution, (4) the discretion of the Court in the execution of decrees for the restitution of conjugal rights, (5) execution against partnership property, (6) extended facilities for attaching salaries, and (7) powers to decree holders to carry decrees into effect at the expense of the judgment debtor.

We regard the changes made in relation to execution as calculated to materially assist the judgment creditor in recovering the fruits of his judgment.

Arbitration—Two questions of importance have arisen in connection with this subject: (1) should any of the sections of the Arbitration Act of 1833 be incorporated into the Code? (2) should the right of appeal as now existing be altered and if so in what direction? We are of opinion that the best course would undoubtedly be to eliminate from the Code all the clauses as to arbitration and insert them in a new and comprehensive Arbitration Act. There are perhaps difficulties as to this at present. We have determined therefore to leave the arbitration clauses much as they are in the present Code but we have placed them in a Schedule in the hope that at no distant date they may be transferred into a comprehensive Arbitration Act.

In regard to appeals some change has been made. Upon this question adopting the view of the Judicial Committee as expressed in Ghulam's case (1 L. R. 29 Cal. 167) we are strongly in favour of finality in cases of arbitration. If rights of appeal be given the disappointed party will take advantage of every such right. To meet the difficulty expressed in the case reported in 1 L. R. 25 Cal. 141 (which followed many other cases in the Calcutta High Court we have inserted the words or being otherwise invalid in sub section (c) of section 521 of the present Code. If therefore either party considers the award invalid on any ground he can apply to have it set aside. We have thought it right to give one appeal from the opinion expressed by the Court on a special case under section 517 and to allow one appeal as from order under sections 521 523 and 526. And having regard to the rather wide language of the Judicial Committee in Ghulam's case we have further thought it advisable to make it clear that an order granting an application either under section 523 or 526 is not to be deemed a decree within the meaning of the Code otherwise there would be a wider right of appeal from orders under these sections than from a decree under section 522. The other alterations deal with the text rather than with any question of policy or principle.

7 Suits relating to public matters—We have inserted a clause to enable actions for public nuisances to be brought with the consent of the Advocate General irrespective of special damage. It has been represented to us that such a power is needed and we concur in that view.

8 Public charities—The suggestion has been made on high authority that some express reference should be made in the Code to the power of the Court to apply the Cy pres doctrine in the settling of schemes. But this power would appear to exist already within its proper limits (Mayor of Lyons case L R 31 A 32) and we do not think it necessary to make express reference to it.

It has been represented to us by more than one gentleman whose opinion is entitled to weight that the power to enquire into the affairs of public charities should be made more extensive. The clause as it stands gives sufficient powers to the Courts to direct accounts and to frame schemes when once a suit has been instituted but it is said that members of the public interested in any public charity ought to have the means of calling for and inspecting accounts without undertaking the burden of a suit at least in the first instance. We are told that revenues derived from charitable trusts are in some cases very large in amount that no accounts of their expenditure are ordinarily rendered and that there is good ground for believing that a considerable portion is misspent or squandered on useless objects.

Clause 53 has been introduced to settle a long mooted point upon which there is much diversity of judicial opinion as to whether or not questions as to the liability of ancestral property in the hands of a son or other descendant to whom it has come otherwise than by descent for the payment of the debt for which the decree was passed can be determined under clause 47 of the present Bill corresponding with section 244 of the existing Code. We think they should be.

Other amendments deserving notice relate to (1) the power to break open the outer door of the judgment debtor's dwelling house, (2) the date from which the purchaser's title accrues (3) oral application for immediate execution (4) the discretion of the Court in the execution of decrees for the restitution of conjugal rights (5) execution against partnership property (6) extended facilities for attaching salaries and (7) powers to decree holders to carry decrees into effect at the expense of the judgment debtor.

We regard the changes made in relation to execution as calculated to materially assist the judgment creditor in recovering the fruits of his judgment.

6 Arbitration—Two questions of importance have arisen in connection with this subject. (1) should any of the sections of the Arbitration Act of 1899 be incorporated into the Code (2) should the right of appeal as now existing be altered and if so in what direction? We are of opinion that the best course would undoubtedly be to eliminate from the Code all the clauses as to arbitration and insert them in a new and comprehensive Arbitration Act. There are perhaps difficulties as to this at present. We have determined therefore to leave the arbitration clauses much as they are in the present Code but we have placed them in a Schedule in the hope that at no distant date they may be transferred into a comprehensive Arbitration Act.

In regard to appeals some change has been made. Upon this question adopting the view of the Judicial Committee as expressed in Ghulam's case (1 L. To meet the difficulty expressed in the case reported in 1 L. R. 25 Cal. 141 (which followed many other cases in the Calcutta High

Court we have inserted the words "or being otherwise invalid" in sub section (c) of section 511 of the present Code. If therefore either party considers the award is invalid on any ground he can apply to have it set aside. We have thought it right to give one appeal from the opinion expressed by the Court on a special case under section 517 and to allow one appeal as from order under sections 521 523 and 526. And having regard to the rather wide language of the Judicial Committee in Ghulam's case we have further thought it advisable to make it clear that an order granting an application either under section 523 or 526 is not to be deemed a decree within the meaning of the Code otherwise there would be a wider right of appeal from orders under these sections than from a decree under section 522. 8 Public charities—The suggestion has been made on high authority that some express reference should be made in the Code to the power of the Court to apply the Cypius doctrine in the settling of schemes. But this power would appear to exist already within its proper limits (Mayor of Lyons case L R 31 A 31) and we do not think it necessary to make express reference to it.

It has been represented to us by more than one gentleman whose opinion is entitled to weight that the power to enquire into the affairs of public charities should be made more extensive. Upon this question adopting the view of the Judicial Committee as expressed in Ghulam's case (I L R, 29 Cal 167) we are strongly in favour of finality in cases of arbitration. If rights of appeal be given, the disappointed party will take advantage of every such right. To meet the difficulty expressed in the case reported in I L R 25 Cal 141 (which followed many other cases in the Calcutta High leave of the Court but the most important change is that incorporated in clause 97 which renders it obligatory upon a party, who considers himself aggrieved by a preliminary decree to appeal from that decree at the risk of being precluded from disputing its correctness on an appeal from the final decree. We feel strongly that this is a most useful provision as tending to that which is so desirable, viz finality in litigation.

As regards appeals from appellate decrees the only substantial departure from the existing Code is the insertion of clause 103. Experience has shown the desirability of this clause the effect of which will be to avoid remands with their consequent delay and expense.

As regards appeals from orders a comparison of clause 104 of the Bill with section 588 of the existing Code would support a prima facie inference that the right of appeal from Orders had been materially curtailed. But this inference is dispelled on looking at sub clause (h) of clause 104 which allows an appeal from any Order made under Rules from which an appeal is expressly allowed by Rules. We have gone carefully into the question of the cases in which an appeal should be allowed from these Orders and our conclusion is expressed in the Rules themselves.

12 Rules—The distribution of the provisions of the Code between the body of the Bill and the Rules is a matter on which opinions may well differ. The general principle on which we have proceeded has been to keep in the body of the Bill those provisions which appear to us to be fundamental and those provisions which confer powers operating outside the Province in which the Court is situated. In some cases we have adopted the plan of inserting leading provisions in the Bill stating in general terms the powers of the Court and of leaving the details to Rules, in matters of less importance the provisions have been relegated altogether to Rules. The result of this re-arrangement is to reduce the Act as distinct from Schedules to 155 clauses. The existing order of sequence has speaking generally, been maintained, but the reduced bulk of the Bill has rendered it no longer necessary to reproduce the division into Chapters.

It is proposed to vest the power of making Rules in High Courts subject to the control of Local Governments (or, in the case of the Calcutta High Court of the Government of India), but we think it most desirable that in exercising this power the Courts should have the advice of representatives of the various branches of the legal profession and we have accordingly provided that, in the case of Chartered High Courts and of Chief Courts Rules shall only be made after those Courts have taken the opinion of a Rule Committee on which there will be representatives of the Bar, of Vakeels or Pleaders and in Presidency towns of Attorneys. In the case of other High Courts power has been given to establish such Rule Committees as the Governor General in Council may determine. It is believed that Standing Committees of this kind will be of great value. We have thought it better to require the same sanction as is required by the Indian High Courts Act of 1861 in order that the rule making power should correspond with the power conferred under that Act but we are of opinion that in the interest of uniformity it is expedient that all amendments of Rules should be communicated to the Government of India and to other High Courts before sanction is given to them. This we understand can be effected by executive order.

If our proposal is adopted it will probably be useful to publish annually in every Province some manual corresponding to the English Annual Practice containing —

- (1) the Act
- (2) all rules of procedure made under it or under other Acts in the Province
- (3) notes of decisions on the Act and Rules

13 We are sensible that there may be defects and flaws in the Bill which we append to this Report. The subject is complicated and technical and the time at our disposal has been limited. We do not doubt therefore that much improvement may be made in the Bill before it is finally passed into law. But in our opinion it is framed on the right lines. We believe for the reasons we have stated that in any reform of Civil Procedure it is essential to introduce some elasticity to give wider powers of control to the High Courts and to invest them with a larger discretion in regard to the conflict of cases which come before them. Mr Dikshit, a retired Judge from Bombay has been present throughout our deliberations and we take this opportunity of acknowledging the valuable counsel from his experience of the working of the Code in the mofussil We desire also to record our acknowledgments of the services of Mr Law, of the Legislative Department, who has attended to the clerical and press work to our entire satisfaction

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE.

WE the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to consolidate and amend the laws relating to the procedure of the Courts of Civil Judicature was referred have considered the Bill and the paper voted in the appendix and have now the honour to submit this our Report with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto

2 The chief feature of novelty in the Bill is the arrangement of the clauses and the relegation of minor provisions to a schedule which may be altered by High Courts. We find from the papers before us that this scheme has met with the approval of every Local Government and of all the High Courts in India. In our opinion it will give a much needed elasticity to our judicial procedure and will enable minor defects to be remedied as they arise without resort to the Legislature and we recommend it to the Council. We have introduced two changes into Part X of the Bill relating to the rule making powers. In the first place we have provided that rules must be published before they are made the result will be that section 23 of the General Clauses Act will apply and that there will be an opportunity for the public to offer criticisms on any proposals for alterations of procedure before those proposals are finally passed into law. We have also made a change in the composition of the Rule Committees. It has been suggested by more than one authority that the interests of the Mofussil were not sufficiently represented on those Committees as constituted under the Bill. We recognise the force of this criticism and have accordingly provided that there shall be a Subordinate Judge on each Rule Committee and that the Vakil or Pleader on the Committee shall be enrolled but need not be acting in the High Court so that a Vakil or Pleader practising the Mofussil will be eligible. We further recommend that the Bill shall not come into operation until the 1st January 1909, in order that the public and the profession may have an opportunity of making themselves familiar with the re-arrangement

3 We have carefully considered the criticisms on the Bill as introduced and the changes which we recommend are summarised below. It will be observed that we do not advise any departures of importance from the conclusions of the Special Committee which met at Simla during the past summer. That Committee had before it a mass of opinions from judicial and other authorities all over India dealing with every point of civil procedure and they arrived at their conclusions only after a careful consideration of those opinions. We should not therefore in any case have dissented from them without strong reason but in our judgment those conclusions are right and we accept them. Since the Bill was introduced it has been again examined and revised by some of our Colleagues and the criticisms on it have been digested in the Legislative Department. By these means our deliberations have been much expedited.

CLAUSES

Clause 2 (2)—The definition of "decree" has been generally accepted.

Clause 11—We have restored the word "former" and have inserted explanation 1 on the suggestion of Sir Bhashyam Iyengar to remove a conflict of authority as to the meaning of the expression "former suit."

Explanation 1 has been omitted. We think it is liable to misconstruction and that the law is well established apart from the explanation.

Clause 22—We have omitted clause 22 of the Bill as introduced as in our opinion it is unnecessary. We think that sufficient provision is made for transfers under the succeeding clause.

Clause 23—We have omitted the proviso which compelled applications to the High Courts under this clause to be made through the District Court. This in our opinion merely duplicates applications and is undesirable.

Clause 25—Clause 25 of the Bill as introduced has been rendered unnecessary by the omission of clause 22. We have accordingly taken it out and have put in its place a new clause taking power for the Governor General in Council to transfer cases from one High Court to another under certain circumstances. We think that the exercise of such a power may sometimes be necessary.

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE.

WE the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to consolidate and amend the laws relating to the procedure of the Courts of Civil Jurisdiction was referred have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the appendix and have now the honour to submit this our Report with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto

2 The chief feature of novelty in the Bill is the re-arrangement of the clauses and the relocation of minor provisions to a schedule which may be altered by High Courts. We find from the papers before us that this scheme has met with the approval of every Local Government and of all the High Courts in India. In our opinion it will give a much needed elasticity to our judicial procedure and will enable minor defects to be remedied as they arise without resort to the Legislature and we recommend it to the Council. We have introduced two changes into Part X of the Bill relating to the rule making powers. In the first place we have provided that rules must be published before they are made the result will be that section 23 of the General Clauses Act will apply and that there will be an opportunity for the public to offer criticisms on any proposals for alterations of procedure before those proposals are finally passed into law. We have also made a change in the composition of the Rule Committees. It has been suggested by more than one authority that the interests of the Mofussil were not sufficiently represented on those Committees constituted under the Bill. We recognise the force of this criticism and have accordingly provided that there shall be an Ordinate Judge on each Rule Committee and that the Pleader on the Committee shall be enrolled but need not be practising in the High Court so that a Vakil or Pleader practising in the Mofussil will be eligible. We further recommend that the Bill shall not come into operation until the 1st January 1909, in order that the public and the profession may have an opportunity of making themselves familiar with the re-arrangement

Clause 61—The words ' be exempted from liability to attachment or sale in execution of a decree ' have been substituted for the words ' be released from attachment and shall be free from liability to sale in execution of a decree ' in order to make it clear that the exemption extends to produce which has been hypothecated

Clause 62—has been brought into line with clause 55 as now amended

Clause 66 (1)—The wording has been altered on the suggestion of the Honble Mr Justice Aikman so as to put the meaning beyond doubt

Clause 79 (2)—This saving was accepted by the Select Committee of 1903 and we think it desirable to have it in the Bill in order to avoid possible doubt

Clause 92 (1)—It has been suggested to us by several authorities that Local Governments should be empowered to invest Courts subordinate to District Courts with power to try cases under this clause and we think that this suggestion should be accepted

The necessary words have been added

Clause 96 (3) of the Bill as introduced has been omitted The case law on the subject is sufficiently clear and considerable objection has been taken to the sub clause

Clause 98—The wording of the proviso has been altered, it now deals only with the decision on the point of law referred

Clause 104—Sub clause (1) (v) has been added in order to give a right of appeal against the decision of the Court on a special case, this is in accordance with the recommendation of the Special Committee but appears to have been omitted from the Bill by mistake

Clause 107—Sub clause (1) is new We think it desirable to have in the body of the Code a general provision about the powers of an Appellate Court

Clause 134—is new It supplies an omission

Clauses 142 and 143—have been brought up from the Rules We think they should be in the body of the Code

Clause 144—Sub clause (2) has been added on the suggestion of the Calcutta High Court We agree that restitution which may be obtained by application under this clause should not be made the subject of a separate suit

Order I

Rules 1 and 3—The words ‘act or’ have been added before the word ‘transaction’

Rule 3—This rule has been amplified so as to bring it into line with rule 1

Rule 5—The words ‘cause of action’ have been struck out. They have given rise to considerable difficulty in England

Rule 8—We have on the suggestion of the Advocate General of Madras added the words ‘or for the benefit of’ after the words ‘on behalf of’

Order III

Rule 4 (3)—We have adopted the alternative draft suggested by the Simla Committee in their report

Order VI

Rule 18—We have substituted the words ‘he shall not be permitted to amend’ as the case may be for the words ‘such order to amend’ become void

Order VII

Rule 17 (1)—On the suggestion of the British Indian Association the word ‘account’ has been substituted for the word ‘book’

Order IX

Rule 4—We have struck out the provisions about limitation contained in this rule. These provisions will be incorporated in Bill to consolidate and amend the Limitation Act

Rule 13—We think it necessary to provide specially for cases in which it may not be possible to set aside the decree as against the applicant only

Order XI

Rule 18—This rule has been altered so as to correspond with the amended clause 54

Order XIV

Rule 1 (2)—This sub rule has been inserted on the suggestion of the British Indian Association

Rule 7—The words 'or of the jurisdiction of the Court which passed it' have been omitted. In our opinion a Court executing the decree of another Court ought not to go into any question as to the jurisdiction of the Court which passed it.

Rule 20—This rule is new. It is inserted in order to make it clear that the provisions as to cross decrees and cross claims apply to the case of mortgage decrees. The rule also makes it clear that the expression 'decree for the payment of money' and other similar expressions in the Code do not include a decree for sale in enforcement of a mortgage or charge.

Rule 45—We have decided to recommend the omission of this rule from the Bill. It was taken from the Bill of 1903 but met with considerable criticism and strong objection has been taken to it by the Madras Board of Revenue and the British Indian Association. In our opinion the procedure prescribed in this rule is cumbersome and there would be little or no practical advantage from it.

Rule 90—The words 'or fraud' have been added after the word 'irregularity'. We think that the existing law as contained in section 311 of the present Code is defective: the omission in the section to refer to fraud as a ground for setting aside a sale having led some Courts to hold that an order on an application setting up fraud as a ground for relief is unlike an order made on an application under section 311 and open to second appeal. This result, which often involves a considerable prolongation of these proceedings, is in our opinion undesirable. We think that applications for the setting aside of sales should so far as the procedure applicable to them is concerned stand on the same footing whether they are based on the ground of irregularity or on the ground of fraud.

Rules 95 and 96—We have struck out the provisions about limitation contained in these rules. We agree with the Hon. Mr. Justice Miller that it would be more appropriate to incorporate them in the Limitation Act and we have suggested their incorporation in the Bill to amend and consolidate that Act which is now before Council.

Order XVII

Rules 3 and 4—Rules 3 and 4 have been amended so as to provide that if no application for substitution is made within the time allowed by law the suit shall abate. We have struck out the provision that the Court may make an order declaring the abatement as in our opinion it is unnecessary and likely to give rise to difficulty

Rule 6—The provision as to antedating the judgment has been struck out and in its stead we suggest a provision to the effect that the judgment shall have the same force and effect as if it had been pronounced before the death took place. In our opinion this is all that is required

Order XXXIV

Some of the rules in this Order have been redrafted

The Transfer of Property Act does not contain any provision for the passing of a final decree in cases where payment is made in accordance with the terms of the preliminary decree. This is in our opinion an omission and we have provided in rules 3 (1) 5 (1) and 8 (1) for the passing of final decrees in such cases

We approve of the proposal to repeal the provisions of section 99 of the Transfer of Property Act. We think that those provisions have worked considerable hardship and are not really needed. The first part of the section enacts that a mortgagee shall not bring the mortgaged property to sale otherwise than by instituting a suit under section 67 of the Act. In so far as it precludes the mortgagee from selling the mortgaged property under a judgment unconnected with the mortgage debt it is in our opinion inexpedient. It is beyond doubt competent to a mortgagee to purchase the equity of redemption from the mortgagor by an agreement subsequent to and distinct from the mortgage transaction, and we can see no reason why it should not be equally competent to him to have it sold in satisfaction of any claim which he may have against the mortgagor unconnected with the mortgage (Khairajmal v. Daim, L. L. R. 32 Cal 295 Lisel v. Rees 1902 A. C. 461). In so far as it precludes the mortgagee from selling the property under a judgment for the mortgage debt it serves no useful purpose. We understand that the provision was enacted to prevent mortgagees from suing their mortgagors on the debt as such and in execution selling the mortgagors' interest in the property, we, however, think that no such provision was needed seeing that under the law as it stood prior to the Act the Courts never allowed the sale of a bare equity of redemption

Order XL

Rule 4—We have redrafted this rule on the lines of section 18 (4) of the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1907 We think that the power to imprison receivers is too wide and should be omitted

Order XLI

Rule 24—We have struck out this rule as in our opinion it is unduly restrictive

Order XLIII

Rule 1—We suggest that there should be appeals from orders pronouncing judgment against a party under Order VIII, rule 10, Order X, rule 4 and Order XVI, r 20

These orders are under the present law appealable as decrees, but having regard to the definition of a decree in the Code they would no longer be appealable in that way, and we think it necessary to make them appealable as orders We have also given an appeal against an order made under rule 21 of Order XI

Appendices—The forms have been amplified and, where necessary, redrafted We think that, as now settled, they are an improvement on the forms in the present Code

THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE.

ACT V OF 1908.

An Act to consolidate and amend the laws relating to the Procedure of the Courts of Civil Judicature

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the laws relating to the procedure of the Courts of Civil Judicature, It is hereby enacted as follows —

PRELIMINARY

Short title commence me it and extent 1908

1 (1) This Act may be cited as the Code of Civil Procedure, Sec 1

(2) It shall come into force on the first day of January, 1909

(3) This section and sections 155 to 158 extend to the whole of British India the rest of the Code extends to the whole of British India, except the Scheduled Districts

2 In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,— Sec 2

Definition

(1) "Code" includes rules

(2) "decree" means the formal expression of an adjudication which, so far as regards the Court expressing it, conclusively determines the rights of the parties with regard to all or any of the matters in controversy in the suit and may be either preliminary or final. It shall be deemed to include the rejection of a plaint and the determination of any question within section 47 or section 144 but shall not include—

(a) any adjudication from which an appeal lies as an appeal from an order, or

(b) any order of dismissal for default

Explanation—A decree is preliminary when further proceedings have to be taken before the suit can be completely disposed of. It is final when such adjudication completely disposes of the suit. It may be partly preliminary and partly final.

(3) "decree holder" means any person in whose favour a decree has been passed or an order capable of execution has been made.

(4) 'district' means the local limits of the jurisdiction of a principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction (hereinafter called a "District Court") and includes the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of a High Court.

(5) 'foreign Court' means a Court situate beyond the limits of British India which has no authority in British India and is not established or continued by the Governor General in Council.

(6) 'foreign judgment' means the judgment of a foreign Court.

(7) 'Government Pleader' includes any officer appointed by the Local Government to perform all or any of the functions expressly imposed by this Code on the Government Pleader and also any pleader acting under the directions of the Government Pleader.

(8) "Judge" means the presiding officer of a Civil Court.

(9) "judgment" means the statement given by the judge of the grounds of a decree or order.

(10) 'judgment debtor' means any person against whom a decree has been passed or an order capable of execution has been made.

New.

(11) "legal representative" means a person who in law represents the estate of a deceased person, and includes any person who intermeddles with the estate of the deceased and where a party sues or is sued in a representative character the person on whom the estate devolves on the death of the party so suing or sued.

(12) "mesne profits" of property means those profits which the person in wrongful possession of such property actually received or might with ordinary diligence have received therefrom, together with interest on such profits, but shall not include profits due to improvements made by the person in wrongful possession Sec 211,
Expl

(13) "moveable property" includes growing crops New

(14) "order" means the formal expression of any decision of a Civil Court which is not a decree

(15) "pleader" means any person entitled to appear and plead for another in Court, and includes an advocate a vakil and an attorney of a High Court

(16) "prescribed" means prescribed by rules

(17) "public officer" means a person falling under any of the following descriptions, namely —

(a) every Judge

SUITS IN GENERAL

JURISDICTION OF THE COURTS AND RES JUDICATA

9 The Courts shall (subject to the provisions Sec 11 herein contained) have jurisdiction to try all suits of a civil nature excepting suits of which their cognizance is either expressly or impliedly barred

Courts to try all civil suits unless barred

Explanation—A suit in which the right to property or to an office is contested is a suit of a civil nature notwithstanding that such right may depend entirely on the decision of questions as to religious rites or ceremonies

10 No Court shall proceed with the trial of Sec 12 any suit in which the matter in issue is also directly and substantially in issue in a previously instituted suit between the same parties or between parties under whom they or any of them claim litigating under the same title where such suit is pending in the same or any other Court in British India having jurisdiction to grant the relief claimed or in any Court beyond the limits of British India established or continued by the Governor General in Council and having like jurisdiction or before His Majesty in

Stay of suits

Explanation—The pendency of a suit in a foreign Court does not preclude the Courts in British India from trying a suit founded on the same cause of action

11 No Court shall try any suit or issue in Sec 13 which the matter directly and substantially in issue has been directly and substantially in issue in a former suit between the same parties or between parties under whom they or any of them claim litigating under the same dwelling house is in the occupancy of the judgment debtor and he refuses or in any way prevents access thereto, but when the officer authorized to make the arrest has duly gained access to any dwelling house he may break open the door of any room in which he has reason to believe the judgment debtor is to be found

Provided, thirdly that if the room is in the actual occupancy of a woman who is not the judgment debtor and who according to the customs of the country does not appear in public the officer authorized to make the arrest shall give notice to her that she is at liberty to withdraw and after allowing a reasonable time for her to withdraw and giving her reasonable facility for withdrawing may enter the room for the purpose of making the arrest

Provided fourthly that, where the decree in execution of which a judgment debtor is arrested is a decree for the payment of money and the judgment debtor pays the amount of the decree and the costs of the arrest to the officer arresting him such officer shall at once release him

(2) The Local Government may by notification in the local official Gazette declare that any person or class of persons whose arrest might be attended with danger or inconvenience to the public shall not be liable to arrest in execution of a decree otherwise than in accordance with such procedure as may be prescribed by the Local Government in this behalf

(3) Where a judgment debtor is arrested in execution of a decree for the payment of money and brought before the Court the Court shall inform him that he may apply to be declared an insolvent and that he will be discharged if he has not committed any act of bad faith regarding the subject of the application and if he complies with the provisions of the law of insolvency for the time being in force

(4) Where a judgment debtor expresses his intention to apply to be declared an insolvent and furnishes security, to the satisfaction of the Court, that he will within one month so apply, and that he will appear, when called upon, in any proceeding upon the application or upon the decree in execution of which he was arrested, the Court shall release him from arrest and, if he fails so to apply and to appear, the Court may either direct the security to be realized or commit him to the civil prison in execution of the decree

58 (1) Every person detained in the civil prison in execution of a decree shall be so detained,—

Detention
under

- (a) where the decree is for the payment of a sum of money exceeding fifty rupees, for a period of six months, and,
- (b) in any other case, for a period of six weeks

Sec 341

Provided that he shall be released from such detention before the expiration of the said period of six months or six weeks, as the case may be,—

- (i) on the amount mentioned in the warrant for his detention being paid to the officer in charge of the civil prison, or
- (ii) on the decree against him being otherwise fully satisfied, or
- (iii) on the request of the person on whose application he has been so detained, or
- (iv) on the omission by the person, on whose application he has been so detained, to pay subsistence allowance

Provided, also, that he shall not be released from such detention under clause (i) or clause (ii) without the order of the Court

(2) A judgment debtor released from detention under this section shall not merely by reason of his release be discharged from his debt but he shall not be liable to be re-arrested under the decree in execution of which he was detained in the civil prison

59 (1) At any time after a warrant for Sec 653
 Release on ground of illness of a judgment debtor has been issued the Court may cancel it on the ground of his serious illness

(2) Where a judgment debtor has been arrested the Court may release him if in its opinion he is not in a fit state of health to be detained in the civil prison

(3) Where a judgment debtor has been committed to the civil prison he may be released therefrom—

(a) by the Local Government on the ground of the existence of any infectious or contagious disease or

(b) by the committing Court or any Court to which that Court is subordinate on the ground of his suffering from any serious illness

(4) A judgment debtor released under this section may be re-arrested but the period of his detention in the civil prison shall not in the aggregate exceed that prescribed by section 58

Sec 317

66 (1) No suit shall be maintained against any person claiming title under a purchase certified by the Court in such manner as may be prescribed on the ground that the purchase was made on behalf of the plaintiff or on behalf of some one through whom the plaintiff claims

Suit cannot be maintained on ground of purchase being on behalf of plaintiff

(2) Nothing in this section shall bar a suit to obtain a declaration that the name of any purchaser certified as aforesaid was inserted in the certificate fraudulently or without the consent of the real purchaser, or interfere with the right of a third person to proceed against that property, though ostensibly sold to the certified purchaser, on the ground that it is liable to satisfy a claim of such third person against the real owner

Sec 327

67 The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, by notification in the local official Gazette, make rules for any local area imposing conditions in respect of the sale of any class of interests in land in execution of decrees for the payment of money, where such interests are so uncertain or undetermined as, in the opinion of the Local Government, to make it impossible to fix their value

Power for Local Government to make rules as to sale of land in execution of decrees for payment of money

DELEGATION TO COLLECTOR OF POWER TO EXECUTE DECREES AGAINST IMMOVEABLE PROPERTY

Sec 320

68 The Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, declare, by notification in the local official Gazette, that in any local area the Power to prescribe rules for transferring to Collector execution of certain decrees execution of decrees in cases in which a Court has ordered any immovable property to be sold or the execution of any particular kind of such decrees or the execution of decrees ordering the sale of any particular kind of or interest in immovable property shall be transferred to the Collector

69 The provisions set forth in the Third Schedule shall apply to all cases in which the execution of a decree has been transferred under the last preceding section New

70 (1) The Local Government may make rules consistent with the aforesaid provisions— Sec 320
Paras 2 3

- (a) for the transmission of the decree from the Court to the Collector and for regulating the procedure of the Collector and his subordinates in executing the same and for retransmitting the decree from the Collector to the Court
- (b) conferring upon the Collector or any gazetted subordinate of the Collector all or any of the powers which the Court might exercise in the execution of the decree if the execution thereof had not been transferred to the Collector
- (c) providing for orders made by the Collector or any gazetted subordinate of the Collector or orders made on appeal with respect to such orders being subject to appeal to and revision by superior revenue authorities as nearly as may be as the orders made by the Court or orders made on appeal with respect to such orders would be subject to appeal to and revision by appellate or revisional Courts under this Code or other law for the time being in force if the decree had not been transferred to the Collector

Sec. 320,
Para 4

(2) A power conferred by rules made under sub section (1) upon the Collector or any gazetted subordinate of the Collector, or upon any appellate or revisional authority, shall not be exerciseable by the Court or by any Court in exercise of any appellate or revisional jurisdiction which it has with respect to decrees or orders of the Court

Sec 320,
Para 5

71 In executing a decree transferred to the Collector under section 68 the Collector and his subordinates shall be deemed to be acting judicially.

Sec 320,

72 (1) Where in any local area in which no declaration under section 68 is in force the property attached consists of land or of a share in land, and the Collector represents to the Court that the public sale of the land or share is objectionable and that satisfaction of the decree may be made within a reasonable period by a temporary alienation of the land or share, the Court may authorize the Collector to provide for such satisfaction in the manner recommended by him instead of proceeding to a sale of the land or share

(2) In every such case the provisions of sections 69 to 71 and of any rules made in pursuance thereof shall apply so far as they are applicable

DISTRIBUTION OF ASSETS

Sec 295

73. (1) Where assets are held by a Court and more persons than one have, before the receipt of such assets, made application to the Court for the execution of decrees for the payment of money passed against the same judgment-debtor and have not obtained satisfaction thereof, the assets, after deducting the costs of realization, shall be rateably distributed among all such persons

Provided as follows —

- (a) where any property is sold subject to a mortgage or charge, the mortgagee or incumbrancer shall not be entitled to share in any surplus arising from such sale
- (b) where any property liable to be sold in execution of a decree is subject to a mortgage or charge the Court may, with the consent of the mortgagee or incumbrancer order that the property be sold free from the mortgage or charge giving to the mortgagee or incumbrancer the same interest in the proceeds of the sale as he had in the property sold
- (c) where any immovable property is sold in execution of a decree ordering its sale for the discharge of an incumbrance thereon the proceeds of sale shall be applied—
 - first in defraying the expenses of the sale
 - secondly in discharging the amount due under the decree
 - thirdly in discharging the interest and principal monies due on subsequent incumbrances (if any) and
 - fourthly rateably among the holders of decrees for the payment of money against the judgment debtor, who have prior to the sale of the property applied to the Court which passed the decree ordering such sale for execution of such decrees, and have not obtained satisfaction thereof

(2) Where all or any of the assets liable to be rateably distributed under this section are paid to a person not entitled to receive the same, any person so entitled may sue such person to compel him to refund the assets

(3) Nothing in this section affects any right of the Government

RESISTANCE TO EXECUTION.

Sec 330

74 Where the Court is satisfied that the holder of a decree for the possession of immoveable property or that the purchaser of immoveable property sold in execution of a decree has been resisted or obstructed in obtaining possession of the property by the judgment debtor or some person on his behalf and that such resistance or obstruction was without any just cause, the Court may, at the instance of the decree holder or purchaser, order the judgment debtor or such other person to be detained in the civil prison for a term which may extend to thirty days and may further direct that the decree holder or purchaser be put into possession of the property.

ORDER I

Parties to Suits

- 1 All persons may be joined in one suit as plaintiffs in whom any right to relief in respect of or arising out of the same act or transaction or series of acts or transactions is alleged to exist whether jointly, severally or in the alternative, where, if such persons brought separate suits, any common question of law or fact would arise Sec. 20
Who may be joined as plaintiffs
- 2 Where it appears to the Court that any joinder of plaintiffs may embarrass or delay the trial of the suit, the Court may put the plaintiffs to their election or order separate trials or make such other order as may be expedient New.
Power of Court to order separate trials
3. All persons may be joined as defendants against whom any right to relief in respect of or arising out of the same act or transaction or series of acts or transactions is alleged to exist, where if separate suits were brought, any common question of law or fact would arise Sec. 28
Who may be joined as defendants
- 4 Judgment may be given without any amendment— Secs 2d, 28
Court may give judgment for or against one or more of joint parties
 - (a) for such one or more of the plaintiffs as may be found to be entitled to relief, for such relief as he or they may be entitled to,
 - (b) against such one or more of the defendants as may be found to be liable according to their respective liabilities
- 5 It shall not be necessary that every defendant shall be interested as to all the relief claimed in any suit against him New Defendant need not be interested in all the relief claimed
- 6 The plaintiff may, at his option, join as parties to the same suit all or any of the persons severally, or jointly and severally, liable on any one contract, including parties to bills of exchange, hundis and promissory notes Sec. 29
Joinder of parties liable on same contract
- 7 Where the plaintiff is in doubt as to the person from whom he is entitled to obtain redress, he may join two or more defendants in order that the question as to which of the defendants is liable, and to what extent, may be determined as between all parties New.
When plaintiff in doubt from whom redress is to be sought
- 8 (1) Where there are numerous persons having the same interest in any suit, one or more of such persons may sue or defend on behalf of all of them in the same interest Secs 30, 32
One person may sue or defend on behalf of all in same interest

all persons so interested But the Court shall in such case give, at the plaintiff's expense, notice of the institution of the suit to all such persons either by personal service or, where from the number of persons or any other cause such service is not reasonably practicable, by public advertisement, as the Court in each case, may direct

(2) Any person on whose behalf or for whose benefit a suit is instituted or defended under sub rule (1) may apply to the Court to be made a party to such suit

Sec 31 9 No suit shall be defeated by reason of the misjoinder or non joinder of parties and the Court may in every suit deal with the matter in controversy so far as regards the rights and interests of the parties actually before it

Secs 27, 32, 33 10 (1) Where a suit has been instituted in the name of the wrong person as plaintiff or where it is doubtful whether it has been instituted in the name of the right plaintiff the Court may at any stage of the suit if satisfied that the suit has been instituted through a bona fide mistake, and that it is necessary for the determination of the real matter in dispute so to do order any other person to be substituted or added as plaintiff upon such terms as the Court thinks just

(2) The Court r

Court may strike out or add parties that the name of any party improperly joined whether as plaintiff or defendant, be struck out, and that the name of any person who ought to have been joined, whether as plaintiff or defendant, or whose presence before the Court may be necessary in order to enable the Court effectually and completely to adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved in the suit, be added

(3) No person shall be added as a plaintiff suing without a next friend or as the next friend of a plaintiff under any disability without his consent

(4) Where a defendant is added, the plaint shall unless the Court otherwise directs, be amended in such manner as added plaint to be may be necessary, and amended copies of the summons and of the plaint shall be served on the new defendant and, if the Court thinks fit on the original defendant

(5) Subject to the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, section 22, the proceedings as against any person added as defendant shall be deemed to have begun only on the service of the summons

Sec 32 11 The Court may give the conduct of the suit to such person as it deems proper

Sec 35 12 (1) Where there are more plaintiffs than one any one or more of them may be authorized by any other of them to appear, plead or act for such other in any proceeding, and in like manner, where there are more defendants than one, any one or more of them may be authorized by any one of them to appear, plead or act for such other in any proceeding

(2) The authority shall be in writing signed by the party giving it and shall be filed in Court

13 All objections on the ground of immateriality or immateriality shall be taken by the parties at the time of the trial of the suit and in all cases the objection has subsequently arisen in any suit shall be deemed to have been waived.

ORDER II

Frame of suit

1 Every suit shall be so far as practicable framed on a single ground for final decision and to prevent further litigation.

(1) Every suit shall include the whole of the claim which the plaintiff is entitled to make in respect of the subject-matter of his claim in order to bring the suit to a final decision of any Court.

(2) Where a plaintiff omits to sue in respect of or relinquishes any portion of his claim in respect of the portion so relinquished.

(3) A person entitled to more than one relief in respect of the same cause of action may sue for all or any of such reliefs but if he omits except with the leave of the Court to sue for all such reliefs he shall not be allowed to sue for any relief so omitted.

Explanation—For the purposes of this rule an obligation to provide collateral security for its performance and successive claims arising out of the same obligation shall be deemed respectively to constitute but one cause of action.

Illustration

A lets a house to B at a yearly rent of Rs. 1200. The rent for the whole of the years 1905, 1906 and 1907 is due and unpaid. A sues B in 1908 only for the rent due for 1906. A shall not afterwards sue B for the rent due for 1905 or 1907.

3 Save as otherwise provided a plaintiff may unite in the same suit several causes of action against the same defendant or the same defendants jointly and any plaintiff having causes of action in which they are jointly interested against the same defendant or the same defendants jointly may unite such causes of action in the same suit.

(2) Where causes of action are united the jurisdiction of the Court shall be determined by the amount or value of the aggregate subject-matter at the date of instituting the suit.

Only certain claims to be joined with a suit for recovery of immovable property. 4 No cause of action shall unless with the leave of the Court be joined with a suit for recovery of immovable property, except—

- (a) claims for mesne profits or arrears of rent in respect of the property claimed or any part thereof,
- (b) claims for damages for breach of any contract under which the property or any part thereof is held, and
- (c) claims in which the relief sought is based on the same cause of action

Provided that nothing in this rule shall be deemed to prevent any party in a suit for foreclosure or redemption from asking to be put into possession of the mortgaged property

Sec 44 5 No claim by or against an executor, administrator or heir, as such Claims by or against shall be joint executor administrator or heir ally unless or heir arise with the plaintiff or defendant sues or is sued as executor, administrator or heir, or are such as he was entitled to or liable for, jointly with the deceased person whom he represents

Secs 46, 47. 6 Where it appears to the Court that any causes of action joined in one suit cannot be conveniently tried or disposed of Power of Court to together the Court may order separate trials or make order separate trials such other order as may be expedient

Sec 46 7 All objections on the ground of misjoinder of causes of action shall be taken at the earliest possible opportunity and in all cases where issues are settled at or before such settlement, unless the ground of objection has subsequently arisen, and any such objection not so taken shall be deemed to have been waived

7 Where the defendant relies upon several distinct grounds of defence or set off founded upon separate and distinct facts, they shall be stated as far as may be, separately and distinctly

8 Any ground of defence which has arisen after the institution of the suit or the presentation of a written statement claiming a set off may be raised by the defendant plaintiff, as the case may be, in his written statement

9 No pleading subsequent to the written statement of a defendant other than by way of defence to a set off shall be presented except by the leave of the Court and upon such terms as the Court thinks fit but the Court may at any time require written statement or additional written statement from any of the parties and fix a time for presenting the same

10 Where any party from whom a written statement is so required fails to present the same within the time fixed by the Court the Court may pronounce judgment against him or make such order in relation to the suit as it thinks fit

Appearance of Parties and Consequence of Non appearance

1 On the day fixed in the summons for the defendant to appear and answer the parties shall be in attendance at the Court house in person or by their respective pleaders, and the suit shall then be heard unless the hearing is adjourned to a future day fixed by the Court

2 Where on the day so fixed it is found that the summons has not been served upon the defendant in consequence of the failure of the plaintiff to pay the court fee or postal charges (if any) chargeable for such service, the Court may make an order that the suit be dismissed

Provided that no such order shall be made although the summons has not been served upon the defendant if on the day fixed for him to appear and answer he attends in person or by agent when he is allowed to appear, agent

3 Where neither party appears when the suit is called on for hearing the Court may make an order that the suit be dismissed

Sec 99 4 Where a suit is dismissed under rule 2 or rule 3 the plaintiff may (subject to the law of limitation) bring a fresh suit, or he may apply for an order to set the dismissal aside and if he satisfies the Court that there was sufficient cause for his not paying the court fee and postal charges (if any) required within the time fixed before the issue of the summons or for his non appearance, as the case may be, the Court shall make an order setting aside the dismissal and shall appoint a day for proceeding with the suit

Sec 99A 5 (1) Where after a summons has been issued to the defendant, or to one of several defendants and returned unserved the plaintiff fails for a period of one year from the date of the return made to the Court by the officer ordinarily certifying to the Court returns made by the serving officers to apply for the issue of a fresh summons and to satisfy the Court that he has used his best endeavours to discover the residence of the defendant who has not been served, or that such defendant is avoiding service of process the Court may make an order that the suit be dismissed as against such defendant

(2) In such case the plaintiff may (subject to the law of limitation) bring a fresh suit

Sec 100 6 (1) Where the plaintiff appears and the defendant does not appear when the suit is called on for hearing then—

(a) if it is proved that the summons was duly served, the court may proceed ex parte,

(b) if it is not proved that the summons was duly served the Court shall direct a second summons to be issued and served on the defendant,

(c) if it is proved that the summons was served on the defendant, but not in sufficient time to enable him to appear and answer on the day fixed in the summons, the Court shall postpone the hearing of the suit to a future day to be fixed by the Court and shall direct notice of such day to be given to the defendant

(2) Where it is owing to the plaintiff's default that the summons was not duly served or was not served in sufficient time, the Court shall order the plaintiff to pay the costs occasioned by the postponement

Sec 101 7 Where the Court has adjourned the hearing of the suit ex parte, and the defendant at or before such hearing appears and assigns good cause for his previous non appearance he may, upon such terms as the Court directs as to cost or otherwise be heard in answer to the suit as if he had appeared on the day fixed for his appearance

Sec 102 8 Where the defendant appears and the plaintiff does not appear when the suit is called on for hearing the Court shall make an order that the suit be dismissed, unless the defendant admits the claim, or part thereof, which case the Court shall pass a decree against the defendant upon such admission, and where part only of the claim has been admitted, shall dismiss the suit so far as it relates to the remainder.

9 (1) Where a suit is wholly or partly dismissed under rule 8, the plaintiff shall be precluded from bringing a fresh suit in respect of the same cause of action. But he may apply for an order to set the dismissal aside, and if he satisfies the Court that there was sufficient cause for his non-appearance when the suit was called on for trial, the Court shall make an order setting aside the dismissal upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit, and shall appoint a day for proceeding with the suit. Sec 103

Decree against plaintiff by default bars fresh suit.

(2) No order shall be made under this rule unless notice of the application has been served on the opposite party.

10 Where there are more plaintiffs than one, and one or more of them appear and the others do not appear, the Court may at the instance of the plaintiff or plaintiffs appearing permit the suit to proceed in the same way as if all the plaintiffs had appeared, or make such order as it thinks fit. Sec 105.

Procedure in case of non-attendance of one or more of several plaintiffs.

11 Where there are more defendants than one and one or more of them appear and the others do not appear, the suit shall proceed and the Court shall, at the time of pronouncing judgment, make such order as it thinks fit with respect to the defendants who do not appear. Sec 106.

Procedure in case of non-attendance of one or more of several defendants.

12 Where a plaintiff or defendant who has been ordered to appear fails to appear, the Court may, if satisfied that there is sufficient cause for his non-appearance, make such order as it thinks fit with respect to the plaintiff or defendants, respectively, who do not appear. Sec 107.

Consequence of non-attendance without sufficient cause shown by party ordered to appear in person.

Setting aside Decrees ex parte

13 In any case in which a decree is passed ex parte against a defendant he may apply to the Court by which the decree was passed for an order to set it aside, and if he satisfies the Court that the summons was not duly served, or that he was prevented by any sufficient cause from appearing when the suit was called on for hearing, the Court shall make an order setting aside the decree as against him upon such terms as to costs payment into Court or otherwise as it thinks fit, and shall appoint a day for proceeding with the suit. Sec 108

Setting aside decrees ex parte against defendant.

Provide that where the decree is of such a nature that it cannot be set aside as against such defendant only it may be set aside as against all or any of the other defendants also.

14 No decree shall be set aside on any such application as aforesaid unless notice of the application has been served on the opposite party. Sec 109

No decree to be set aside without notice to opposite party.

(2) Documents not admitted in evidence shall not form part of the record and shall be returned to the persons respectively producing them

8 Notwithstanding anything contained in rule 5 or rule 7 of this Order or in rule 17 of Order VII, the Court may, if it sees sufficient cause, direct any document or book produced before it in any suit to be impounded and kept in the custody of an officer of the Court, for such period and subject to such conditions as the Court thinks fit

Court may order any document to be impounded.

Sec 14

9. (1) Any person, whether a party to the suit or not, desirous of receiving back any document produced by him in the suit and placed on the record shall, unless the document is impounded under rule 8, be entitled to receive back the same,—

Return of admitted documents

(a) where the suit is one in which an appeal is not allowed, when the suit has been disposed of, and

(b) where the suit is one in which an appeal is allowed, when the Court is satisfied that the time for preferring an appeal has elapsed and that no appeal has been preferred or, if an appeal has been preferred, when the appeal has been disposed of

Provided that a document may be returned at any time earlier than that prescribed by this rule if the person applying therefor delivers to the proper officer a certified copy to be substituted for the original and undertakes to produce the original if required to do so

Provided also that no document shall be returned which, by force of the decree, has become wholly void or useless

(2) On the return of a document admitted in evidence a receipt shall be given by the person receiving it

10 (1) The Court may of its own motion, and may in its discretion upon the application of any of the parties to a suit, send for, either from its own records or from any other Court, the record of any other suit or proceeding, and inspect the same

Court may send for papers from its own records or from other Courts

(2) Every application made under this rule shall (unless the Court otherwise directs) be supported by an affidavit showing how the record is material to the suit in which the application is made, and that the applicant cannot without unreasonable delay or expense obtain a duly authenticated copy of the record or of such portion thereof as the applicant requires or that the production of the original is necessary for the purposes of justice

(3) Nothing contained in this rule shall be deemed to enable the Court to use in evidence any document which under the law of evidence would be inadmissible in the suit

11. The provisions herein contained as to documents shall, so far as may be apply to all other material objects producible as evidence

Provisions as to documents applied to material objects.

Sec 145

ORDER XIV

Settlement of Issues and Determination of Suit on Issues of Law or on Issues agreed upon

Sec 146

1. (1) Issues arise when a material proposition of fact or law is affirmed by the one party and denied by the other

Framing of issues

(2) Material propositions are those propositions of law or fact which a plaintiff must allege in order to show a right to sue or a defendant must allege in order to constitute his defence

(3) Each material proposition affirmed by one party and denied by the other shall form the subject of a distinct issue

(4) Issues are of two kinds : (a) issues of fact (b) issues of law

(5) At the first hearing of the suit the Court shall, after reading the plaint and the written statements, if any and after such examination of the parties as may appear necessary, ascertain upon what material propositions of fact or of law the parties are at variance and shall thereupon proceed to frame and record the issues on which the right decision of the case appears to depend

(6) Nothing in this rule requires the Court to frame and record issues where the defendant at the first hearing of the suit makes no defence

Para 2

2 Where issues both of law and of fact arise in the same suit, and the Court is of opinion that the case or any part thereof may be disposed of on the issues of law only, it shall try those issues first and for that purpose may if it thinks fit postpone the settlement of the issues of fact until after the issues of law have been determined

Sec 147.

Materials from which issues may be framed

3 The Court may frame the issues from all or any of the following materials

(a) allegations made on oath by the parties or by any persons present on their behalf or made by the pleaders of such parties

(b) allegations made in the pleadings or in answers to interrogatories delivered in the suit

(c) the contents of documents produced by either party

Sec. 148

4 Where the Court is of opinion that the issues cannot be correctly framed without the examination of some person not Court may examine witnesses or documents before the Court or without the inspection of some before framing issues document not produced in the suit, it may adjourn the framing of the issues to a future day, and may (subject to any law for the time being in force) compel the attendance of any person or the production of any document by the person in whose possession or power it is by summons or other process

Sec 149.

5 (1) The Court may at any time before passing a decree amend the issues or frame additional issues on such terms as it thinks fit, and all such amendments or additional issues as may be necessary for determining the matters in controversy between the parties shall be so made or framed

Power to amend, and strike out issues

(2) The Court may also, at any time before passing a decree, strike out any issues that appear to it to be wrongly framed or introduced

6 Where the parties to a suit are agreed as to the question of fact or of law to be decided between them, they may state the same in the form of an issue, and enter into an agreement in writing that, upon the finding of the Court in the affirmative or the negative of such issue,—

- (a) a sum of money specified in the agreement or to be ascertained by the Court, or in such manner as the Court may direct, shall be paid by one of the parties to the other of them, or that one of them be declared entitled to some right or subject to some liability specified in the agreement,
- (b) some property specified in the agreement and in dispute in the suit shall be delivered by one of the parties to the other of them, or as that other may direct or
- (c) one or more of the parties shall do or abstain from doing some particular act specified in the agreement and relating to the matter in dispute

Court if satisfied that agreement was executed in good faith, may pronounce judgment.

7. Where the Court is satisfied, after making such inquiry as it deems proper,—

- (a) that the agreement was duly executed by the parties,
- (b) that they have a substantial interest in the decision of such question as aforesaid, and
- (c) that the same is fit to be tried and decided, it shall proceed to record and try the issue and state its finding or decision thereon in the same manner as if the issue had been framed by the Court, and shall, upon the finding or decision on such issue, pronounce judgment according to the terms of the agreement, and, upon the judgment so pronounced, a decree shall follow

ORDER XV

Disposal of the Suit at the first hearing

1. Where at the first hearing of a suit it appears that the parties are not at issue on any question of law or of fact, the Court may at once pronounce judgment

2 Where there are more defendants than one, and any one of the defendants is not at issue with the plaintiff on any question of law or of fact, the Court may at once pronounce judgment for or against such defendant and the suit shall proceed only against the other defendants

3 (1) Where the parties are at issue on some question of law or of fact, and issues have been framed by the Court as hereinbefore provided, if the Court is satisfied that no further argument or evidence than the parties can at once adduce is required upon such of the issues as may be sufficient for the decision of the suit and that no injustice will result from proceeding with the suit forthwith, the Court may proceed to determine such issues and, if the finding thereon is sufficient for the decision may pronounce judgment accordingly, whether the summons has been issued for the settlement of issues only or for the final disposal of the suit

Provided that where the summons has been issued for the settlement of issues only the parties or their pleaders are present and none of them objects

(2) Where the finding is not sufficient for the decision the Court shall postpone the further hearing of the suit until at least six days for the production of such further evidence or for such further argument as the case requires

Sec 155 4 Where the summons has been issued for the final disposal of the suit and either party fails without sufficient cause to produce the evidence on which he relies, the Court may at once pronounce judgment or may, if it thinks fit after framing and recording issues adjourn the suit for the production of such evidence as may be necessary for its decision upon such issues

Order for payment of coin or currency notes to party entitled under decree

57. Where any property has been attached in execution of a decree but by reason of the decree holder's default the Court is unable to proceed further with the application for execution it shall either dismiss the application or for any sufficient reason adjourn the proceedings to a future date New.
Upon the dismissal of such application the attachment shall cease

Determination of attachment

Investigation of claims and objections

Sec 278 58 (1) Where any claim is preferred to, or any objection is made to the attachment of, any property attached in execution of a decree on the ground that such property is not liable to such attachment the Court shall proceed to investigate the claim or objection with the like power as regards the examination of the claimant or objector, and in all other respects as if he was a party to the suit

Provided that no such investigation shall be made where the Court considers that the claim or objection was designedly or unnecessarily delayed

(2) Where the property to which the claim or objection applies has been advertised for sale the Court ordering the sale may postpone it pending the investigation of the claim or objection

Sec 279 Evidence to be adduced by claimant 59. The claimant or objector must adduce evidence to show that at the date of the attachment he had some interest in or was possessed of, the property attached

Sec 280 60. Whereupon the said investigation the Court is satisfied that for the reason stated in the claim or objection such property was not when attached, in the possession of the judgment debtor or of some person in trust for him or in the occupancy of a tenant or other person paying rent to him or that being in the possession of the judgment debtor at such time, it was so in his possession not on his own account or as his own property but on account of or in trust for some other person, or partly on his own account and partly on account of some other person the Court shall make an order releasing the property wholly or to such extent as it thinks fit, from attachment

Sec 281 61 Where the Court is satisfied that the property was at the time it was attached in the possession of the judgment debtor as his own property and not on account of any other person or was in the possession of some other person in trust for him or in the occupancy of a tenant or other person paying rent to him the Court shall disallow the claim

Sec. 282. 62 Where the Court is satisfied that the property is subject to a mortgage or charge in favor of some person not in possession and thinks fit to continue the attachment it may do so subject to such mortgage or charge

Sec. 283 63 Where a claim or an objection is preferred, the party against whom an order is made may institute a suit to establish the right which he claims to the property in dispute but subject to the result of such suit if any, the order shall be conclusive

Sale generally.

64 Any Court executing a decree may order that any property attached to the decree and liable to sale or such portion thereof as may seem necessary to satisfy the decree shall be sold and that the proceeds of such sale or a sufficient portion thereof, shall be paid to the party entitled under the decree to receive the same Sec 284

67 (1) Every proclamation shall be made and published, as nearly as may be in the manner prescribed by rule 54 sub rule (2) Sec 289

clamation

(2) Where the Court so directs such proclamation shall also be published in the local official Gazette or in a local newspaper, or in both, and the costs of such publication shall be deemed to be costs of the sale

(3) Where property is divided into lots for the purpose of being sold separately, it shall not be necessary to make a separate proclamation for each lot unless proper notice of the sale cannot in the opinion of the Court, otherwise be given

68. Save in the case of property of the kind described in the proviso to rule 43 no sale hereunder shall without the consent in writing of the judgment debtor, take place until after the expiration of at least thirty days in the case of immoveable property and of at least fifteen days in the case of moveable property, calculated from the date on which the copy of the proclamation has been affixed on the court house of the Judge ordering the sale

69. (1) The Court may in its discretion, adjourn any sale hereunder to a specified day and hour and the officer conducting any such sale may in his discretion adjourn the sale recording his reasons for such adjournment

Provided that where the sale is made in or within the precincts of the court house no such adjournment shall be made without the leave of the Court

(2) Where a sale is adjourned under sub rule (1) for a longer period than seven days a fresh proclamation under rule 67 shall be made, unless the judgment debtor consents to waive it

(3) Every sale shall be stopped if before the lot is knocked down the debt and costs (including the costs of the sale) are tendered to the officer conducting the sale or proof is given to his satisfaction that the amount of such debt and costs has been paid into the Court which ordered the sale

last para

70 Nothing in rules 66 to 69 shall be deemed to apply to any case in which the execution of a decree has been transferred to the Collector

Sec 293

71. Any deficiency of price which may happen on a re sale by reason of the purchaser's default and all expenses attending such re sale shall be certified to the Court or to the Collector or subordinate of the Collector, as the case may be by the officer or other person holding the sale and shall, at the instance of either the decree holder or the judgment debtor, be recoverable from the defaulting purchaser under the provisions relating to the execution of a decree for the payment of money

Sec 294

72 (1) No holder of a decree in execution of which property is sold shall without the express permission of the Court, bid for or purchase the property

(2) Where a decree holder purchases with such permission, the purchase-money and the amount due on the decree may, subject to the provisions of section 73 be set off against one another, and the Court executing the decree shall enter up satisfaction of the decree in whole or in part accordingly

(3) Where a decree holder purchases, by himself or through another person, without such permission the Court may, if it thinks fit, on the application of the judgment debtor or any other person whose interests are affected by the sale, by order set aside the sale, and the costs of such application and order, and any deficiency of price which may happen on the re sale and all expenses attending it, shall be paid by the decree-holder

9 (1) Where the interest of the next friend of a minor is adverse to that of the minor or where he is so connected with ■ defendant whose interest is adverse to that of the minor as to make it unlikely that the minor's interest will be properly protected by him or where he does not do his duty or during the pendency of the suit ceases to reside within British India or for any other sufficient cause application may be made on behalf of the minor or by a defendant for his removal and the Court if satisfied of the sufficiency of the cause assigned may order the next friend to be removed accordingly and make such other order as to costs as it thinks fit Sec 446

(2) Where the next friend is not a guardian appointed or declared by an authority competent in this behalf, and an application is made by a guardian so appointed or declared who desires to be himself appointed in the place of the next friend the Court shall remove the next friend unless it considers, for reasons to be recorded by it that the guardian ought not to be appointed the next friend of the minor and shall thereupon appoint the applicant to be next friend in his place upon such terms as to the costs already incurred in the suit as it thinks fit

10 (1) On the retirement removal or death of the next friend of a minor further proceedings shall be stayed until the appointment of a next friend in his place Sec 448

(2) Where the pleader of such minor omits within a reasonable time, to take steps to get a new next friend appointed any person interested in the minor or in the matter in issue may apply to the Court for the appointment of one and the Court may appoint such person as it thinks fit Sec 449

11 (1) Where the guardian for the suit desires to retire or does not do his duty, or where other sufficient ground is made out to appear the Court may permit such guardian to retire or may remove him and may make such order as to costs as it thinks fit Sec 458

(2) Where the guardian for the suit retires, dies or is removed by the Court during the pendency of the suit the Court shall appoint a new guardian in his place Sec 459

12 (1) A minor plaintiff or a minor not a party to a suit on whose behalf an application is pending shall on attaining majority elect whether he will proceed with the suit or application Sec 450

(2) Where he elects to proceed with the suit or application he shall apply for an order discharging the next friend and for leave to proceed in his own name Sec 451

(3) The title of the suit or application shall in such case be corrected so as to read thenceforth thus —

‘A B late a minor by C D his next friend but now having attained majority

(4) Where he elects to abandon the suit or application he shall if a sole plaintiff or sole applicant apply for an order to dismiss the suit or application on repayment of the costs incurred by the defendant or opposite party or which may have been paid by his next friend. Sec 452

Sec 453. (5) Any application under this rule may be made ex parte but no order discharging a next friend and permitting a minor plaintiff to proceed in his own name shall be made without notice to the next friend

Sec 454. Where a minor co plaintiff attaining majority desires to repudiate suit 13 (1) Where a minor co-plaintiff on attaining majority desires to repudiate the suit, he shall apply to have his name struck out as co plaintiff, and the Court if it finds that he is not a necessary party, shall dismiss him from the suit on such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit

(2) Notice of the application shall be served on the next friend, on any co plaintiff and on the defendant

(3) The costs of all parties of such application, and of all or any proceedings theretofore had in the suit, shall be paid by such persons as the Court directs

(4) Where the applicant is a necessary party to the suit the Court may direct him to be made a defendant

Sec 455. Unreasonable or improper suit 14 (1) A minor on attaining majority may, if a sole plaintiff apply that a suit instituted in his name by a next friend be dismissed on the ground that it was unreasonable or improper

(2) Notice of the application shall be served on all the parties concerned, and the Court upon being satisfied of such unreasonableness or impropriety may grant the application and order the next friend to pay the costs of all parties in respect of the application and of anything done in the suit, or make such other order as it thinks fit

Sec 463. 15 The provisions contained in rules 1 to 14 so far as they are applicable shall extend to persons adjudged to be of unsound mind and to persons who though not so adjudged are found by the Court on inquiry, by reason of unsoundness of mind or mental infirmity to be incapable of protecting their interests when suing or being sued

(a) Where it is not framed and presented in the manner prescribed by rules 2 and 3 or Sec 405

(b) Where the applicant is not a pauper, or

(c) Where he has within two months next before the presentation of the application, disposed of any property fraudulently or in order to be able to apply for permission to sue as a pauper, or

(d) Whether his allegations do not show a cause of action, or

(e) Where he has entered into any agreement with reference to the subject matter of the proposed suit under which any other person has obtained an interest in such subject matter

6. Where the Court sees no reason to reject the application on any of the grounds stated in rule 5, it shall fix a day (of which at least ten days' clear notice shall be given) for receiving evidence if an Sec 408

notice is given thereof

7. (1) On the day so fixed or as soon thereafter as may be convenient, the Court shall examine the witnesses (if any) produced by either party, and may examine the applicant or his agent and shall make a memorandum of the substance of their evidence Sec 409

(2) The Court shall also hear any argument which the parties may desire to offer on the question whether, on the face of the application and of the evidence (if any) taken by the Court as herein provided, the applicant is or is not subject to any of the prohibitions specified in rule 5

(3) The Court shall then either allow or refuse to allow the applicant to sue as a pauper

Sec 410

8 Where the application is granted it shall be numbered and registered and shall be deemed the plaintiff in the suit and the suit shall proceed in all other respects as a suit instituted in the ordinary manner except that the plaintiff shall not be liable to pay any court fee (other than fees payable for service of process) in respect of any petition appointment of a pleader or other proceeding connected with the suit

9 The Court may on the application of the defendant or of the Government pleader of which seven days clear notice in writing has been given to the plaintiff order the plaintiff to be dispaupered—

(a) if he is guilty of vexatious or improper conduct in the course of the suit

(b) if it appears that his means are such that he ought not to continue to sue as a pauper, or

(c) if he has entered into any agreement with reference to the subject matter of the suit under which any other person has obtained an interest in such subject matter

Sec 411

10 Where the plaintiff succeeds in the suit the Court shall calculate the amount of court fees which would have been paid by the plaintiff if he had not been permitted to sue as a pauper, such amount shall be recoverable by the Government from any party ordered by the decree to pay the same, and shall be a first charge on the subject matter of the suit

Sec 412

11 Where the plaintiff fails in the suit or is dispaupered or where the suit is withdrawn or dismissed—

(a) because the summons for the defendant to appear and answer has not been served upon him in consequence of the failure of the plaintiff to pay the court fee or postal charges (if any) chargeable for such service, or

(b) because the plaintiff does not appear when the suit is called on for hearing, the Court shall order the plaintiff or any person added as a co plaintiff to the suit to pay the court fees which would have been paid by the plaintiff if he had not been permitted to sue as a pauper

New.

ORDER XXXIX

Temporary Injunctions and Interlocutory Orders

Temporary Injunctions

Cases in which temporary injunction may be granted. Sec 492

1 Where in any suit it is proved by affidavit or otherwise—

- (a) that any property in dispute in a suit is in danger of being wasted, damaged or alienated by any party to the suit, or wrongfully sold in execution of a decree, or
- (b) that the defendant threatens or intends to remove or dispose of his property with a view to defraud his creditors,

the Court may by order grant a temporary injunction to restrain such act, or make such other order for the purpose of staying and preventing the wasting, damaging, alienation, sale removal or disposition of the property as the Court thinks fit until the disposal of the suit or until further orders

2 (1) In any suit for restraining the defendant from committing breach of contract or other injury of any kind, whether compensation is claimed in the suit or not, the plaintiff may, at any time after the commencement of the suit, and either before or after judgment, apply to the Court for a temporary injunction to restrain the defendant from committing the breach of contract or injury complained of, or any breach of contract or injury of a like kind arising out of the same contract or relating to the same property or right. Sec 493

Injunction to restrain repetition or continuance of breach

(2) The Court may by order grant such injunction, on such terms as to the duration of the injunction, keeping an account, giving security, or otherwise, as the Court thinks fit

(3) In case of disobedience, or of breach of any such terms, the Court granting an injunction may order the property of the person guilty of such disobedience or breach to be attached and may also order such person to be detained in the civil prison for a term not exceeding six months, unless in the meantime the Court directs his release

(4) No attachment under this rule shall remain in force for more than one year at the end of which time if the disobedience or breach continues, the property attached may be sold, and out of the proceeds the Court may award such compensation as it thinks fit and shall pay the balance, if any, to the party entitled thereto

Sec 494 Before granting an injunction Court to direct notice to opposite party 3 The Court shall in all cases, except where it appears that the object of granting the injunction would be defeated by the delay, before granting an injunction direct notice of the application for the same to be given to the opposite party

Sec 496 Order for injunction may be discharged varied or set aside 4 Any order for an injunction may be discharged or varied or set aside by the Court on application made thereto by any party dissatisfied with such order

Sec 495 Injunction to corporation binding on its officers 5 An injunction directed to a corporation is binding not only on the corporation itself, but also on all members and officers of the corporation whose personal action it seeks to restrain

Interlocutory Orders

Sec 498 6 The Court may on the application of any party to a suit, order the sale by any person named in such order, and in such manner and on such terms as it thinks fit, of any moveable property being the subject matter of such suit or attached before judgment in such suit, which is subject to speedy and natural decay or which for any other just and sufficient cause it may be desirable to have sold at once

Sec 499 Detention preservation inspection etc., of subject matter of suit 7 (1) The Court may, on the application of any party to a suit, and on such terms as it thinks fit,—

(a) make an order for the detention, preservation or inspection of any property which is the subject matter of such suit, or as to which any question may arise therein

(b) for all or any of the purposes aforesaid authorize any person to enter upon or into any land or building in the possession of any other party to such suit, and

(c) for all or any of the purposes aforesaid authorize any samples to be taken, or any observation to be made or experiment to be tried, which may seem necessary or expedient for the purpose of obtaining full information or evidence

Powers of Court pending appeal 13 (1) Notwithstanding the grant of a certificate for the admission of any appeal the decree appealed from shall be unconditionally executed unless the Court otherwise directs Sec. 608.

(2) The Court may if it thinks fit on special cause shown by any party interested in the suit or otherwise appearing to the Court —

(a) impound any moveable property in dispute or any part thereof or

(b) allow the decree appealed from to be executed taking such security from the respondent as the Court thinks fit for the due performance of any order which His Majesty in Council may make on the appeal or

(c) stay the execution of the decree appealed from taking such security from the appellant as the Court thinks fit for the due performance of the decree appealed from or of any order which His Majesty in Council may make on the appeal or

(d) place any party seeking the assistance of the Court under such conditions or give such other direction respecting the subject matter of the appeal as it thinks fit by the appointment of a receiver or otherwise

Increase of security found inadequate 14 (1) Where at any time during the pendency of the appeal the security furnished by either party appears inadequate the Court may on the application of the other party require further security Sec. 609.

(2) In default of such further security being furnished as required by the Court —

(a) if the original security was furnished by the appellant the Court may on the application of the respondent execute the decree appealed from as if the appellant had furnished no such security,

(b) if the original security was furnished by the respondent the Court shall so far as may be practicable, stay the further execution of the decree, and restore the parties to the position in which they respectively were when the security which appears inadequate was furnished, or give such direction respecting the subject-matter of the appeal as it thinks fit

Sec. 610. 15 (1) Whoever desires to obtain execution of any order of His Majesty in Council shall apply by petition, accompanied by a certified copy of the decree passed or order made in appeal and sought to be executed, to the Court from which the appeal to His Majesty was preferred

(2) Such Court shall transmit the order of His Majesty in Council to the Court which passed the first decree appealed from, or to such other Court as His Majesty in Council by such order may direct, and shall (upon the application of either party) give such directions as may be required for the execution of the same and the Court to which the said order is so transmitted shall execute it accordingly in the manner and according to the provisions applicable to the execution of its original decrees

(3) When any monies expressed to be payable in British currency are payable in India under such order the amount so payable shall be estimated according to the rate of exchange for the time being fixed at the date of the making of the order by the Secretary of State for India in Council with the concurrence of the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury for the adjustment of financial transactions between the Imperial and the Indian Governments

Sec. 611. 16 The orders made by the Court which executes the order of His Majesty in Council relating to such execution, shall be appealable in the same manner and subject to the same rules as the orders of such Court relating to the execution of its own decrees

THE SECOND SCHEDULE.

ARBITRATION

Arbitration in suits

1 (1) Where in any suit all the parties interested agree that any matter in difference between them shall be referred to arbitration, they may, at any time before judgment is pronounced, apply to the Court for an order of reference Sec. 506.

Parties to suit may apply for order of reference

(2) Every such application shall be in writing and shall state the matter sought to be referred

2 The arbitrator shall be appointed in such manner as may be agreed upon between the parties Sec. 507.

Appointment of arbitrator

3 (1) The Court shall, by order, refer to the arbitrator the matter in difference which he is required to determine, and shall fix such time as it thinks reasonable for the making of the award, and shall specify such time in the order Sec. 508.

Order of reference

(2) Where a matter is referred to arbitration the Court shall not, save in the manner and to the extent provided in this schedule, deal with such matter in the same suit

4 (1) Where the reference is to two or more arbitrators, provision shall be made in the order for a difference of opinion among the arbitrators— Sec. 509.

Where reference is to two or more arbitrators, provide for difference of opinion

(a) by the appointment of an umpire, or

(b) by declaring that, if the majority of the arbitrators agree, the decision of the majority shall prevail, or

(c) by empowering the arbitrators to appoint an umpire, or

(d) otherwise as may be agreed between the parties or, if they cannot agree, as the Court may determine

(2) Where an umpire is appointed, the Court shall fix such time as it thinks reasonable for the making of his award in case he is required to act

5 (1) In any of the following cases, namely — Sec. 510

Power of Court to appoint arbitrator in certain cases

(a) where the parties cannot agree within a reasonable time with respect to the appointment of an arbitrator, or the person appointed refuses to accept the office of arbitrator, or Sec. 507 (2),

(i) dies, or

(ii) refuses or neglects to act or becomes incapable of acting, or Sec. 511,

(iii) leaves British India in circumstances showing that he will probably not return at an early date, or

- (d) where the award is imperfect in form, or contains any obvious error which can be amended without affecting such decision, or
- (e) where the award contains a clerical mistake or an error arising from an accidental slip or omission

Now.

13 The Court may also make such order as it thinks fit respecting the costs of the arbitration where any question arises respecting such costs and the award contains no sufficient provision concerning them

Sec. 519.

Order as to costs of arbitration

Where award or matter referred to arbitration may be remitted

14 The Court may remit the award or any matter referred to arbitration to the re-consideration of the same arbitrator or umpire, upon such terms as it thinks fit,—

Sec. 520.

- (a) where the award has left undetermined any of the matters referred to arbitration, or where it determines any matter not referred to arbitration, unless such matter can be separated without affecting the determination of the matters referred,
- (b) where the award is so indefinite as to be incapable of execution,
- (c) where an objection to the legality of the award is apparent upon the face of it

Grounds for setting aside award

15 (1) An award remitted under paragraph 14 becomes void on failure of the arbitrator or umpire to re-consider it. But no award shall be set aside except on one of the following grounds, namely —

Sec. 521.

- (a) corruption or misconduct of the arbitrator or umpire
- (b) either party having been guilty of fraudulent concealment of any matter which he ought to have disclosed or of wilfully misleading or deceiving the arbitrator or umpire
- (c) the award having been made after the issue of an order by the Court superseding the arbitration and proceeding with the suit or after the expiration of the period allowed by the Court, or being otherwise invalid

(2) Where an award becomes void or is set aside under clause (1) the Court shall make an order superseding the arbitration and in such case shall proceed with the suit

16 (1) Where the Court sees no cause to remit the award or any of the

¹ Any provisions of this Code

British India—British India—In the General Clauses Act, (X of 1897) s. 2, but not Singapore (Strait Settlements Act, 1866 s. 1) Any newly acquired province becomes on its annexation part of British India, but retains its own law until altered by the Crown or the Legislature. The Cantonment of Wadhwan in Kathiwar is within the limits of British India. The Cantonment of Secunderabad is one of British India. The Tributary Mahals of Orissa do not form part of British India.

Scheduled Districts—The Scheduled districts are enumerated in the First Schedule to the Scheduled Districts Act, (XIV of 1874).

Santal Parganas—In the Santal Parganas, which is one of the scheduled districts of Bengal the Code of Civil Procedure applies to suits exceeding Rs. 1000 and to suits established in the Courts established

Code of Civil Procedure to Civil Procedure into the Parganas, inasmuch as Act

XVI of 1869 which was then in force in the Bhutan Duars, excluded that jurisdiction in express terms. But the effect of the repeal of Act XVI (without any qualification) by Act VII of 1895, B.C., has left the Code of Civil Procedure to be administered in the Bhutan Duars.

Execution of decrees passed in Scheduled districts—Decrees obtained in scheduled districts cannot be executed by Courts in British India unless and until under the provisions of s. 5 of the Scheduled Districts Act (XIV of 1874) the Government has issued the notification therein referred to applying to the scheduled districts such portion of the Code of Civil Procedure as they think proper to apply.

Scheduled Districts in which Code is in force—The following statement of the Scheduled Districts in which the Code is in force has been prepared by the Legislative Department, Government of India.

1—The whole Code (except ss. 1 and 3) has been extended under s. 5 of the Scheduled Districts Act, (XIV of 1874), to the following Scheduled Districts—

Sindh
The Districts of Darjiling and Jalpaiguri (called in Act XIV of 1874 the Darjiling and Jalpaiguri Divisions)
The Districts of Hazaribagh, Lohardaga¹⁰ (including at this time the District of Palanau which was separated in 1894) and Manbhum the Pargana of Dhalbhum in the District of Singhbhum, and the Mahal of Angul

British India—British India is defined in the General Clauses Act, (X of 1857) as including all territories and places within His Majesty's dominions which are under the immediate Government of India, and include the City of Calcutta and the Town of Madras and the Town of Bombay (the newly acquired province becomes on its accession a part of British India and retains its own law until altered by the Crown or the Legislature). The Cantonment of Wadhwan in Kathiwar is within the limits of British India. The Cantonment of Secunderabad is one of British India. The Tributary Mahals of Orissa do not form part of British India.

Scheduled Districts—The Scheduled districts are enumerated in the First Schedule to the Scheduled Districts Act, (XIV of 1874).

Santal Parganas—In the Santal Parganas, which is one of the scheduled districts of Bengal, the Code of Civil Procedure applies to suits exceeding Rs 1,000 in value, provided that such suits are tried in the Courts established under the Civil Courts Act, XII of 1857.

Bhutan Duars—The notification extending the Code of Civil Procedure to Jalpaiguri had not the effect of introducing the Code of Civil Procedure into the Bhutan Duars, although the latter are a part of Jalpaiguri, inasmuch as Act XVI of 1869 which was then in force in the Bhutan Duars, excluded that jurisdiction in express terms. But the effect of the repeal of Act XVI (without any qualification) by Act VII of 1895, B.C., has left the Code of Civil Procedure to be administered in the Bhutan Duars.

Execution of decrees passed in Scheduled districts—Decrees obtained in scheduled districts cannot be executed by Courts in British India, unless and until under the provisions of s. 5 of the Scheduled Districts Act, (XIV of 1874) the Government has issued the notification therein referred to, applying to the scheduled districts such portion of the Code of Civil Procedure as they think proper to apply.

Scheduled Districts in which Code is in force—The following statement of the Scheduled Districts in which the Code is in force has been prepared by the Legislative Department, Government of India.

Interpretation of Acts—A Code must be construed according to the natural meaning of the language used and not on the presumption that it was intended to leave the existing law unaltered¹. The proper course in dealing with an Act intended to codify a particular branch of law is, in the first place to examine the language of the statute and to ask what is the natural meaning, uninfluenced by any considerations derived from the previous state of the law, and not to start with inquiring how the law previously stood. The purpose of such a statute surely was, that on any point specifically dealt with by it, the law should be ascertained by interpreting the language used, instead of, as before, roving over a vast number of authorities in order to discover what the law was, extracting it by a minute critical examination of prior decisions².

The Statement of Objects and Reasons attached to a Bill or the report of a Select Committee or the debates of the Legislature cannot be referred to in the interpretation of the Act, the Statute itself can alone be looked to³.

Marginal Notes Marginal Notes are not part of an enactment and cannot be referred to for the purpose of construing it⁴.

Headings form an important part of the Act, and may be referred to in construing the sections to which they refer⁵.

Definitions

2 In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "Code" includes rules :

This definition covers the variable Orders and Rules in Schedule I of the Act. For the effect of these rules and the power to vary the same, see Part X post

(2) "Decree" means the formal expression of an adjudication which, so far as regards the Court expressing it, conclusively determines the rights of the parties with regard to all or any of the matters in controversy in the suit and may be either preliminary or final. It shall be deemed to include the rejection of a plaint and the determination of any question within section 47 or section 144 but shall not include—

(a) any adjudication from which an appeal lies as an appeal from an order, or

(b) any order of dismissal for default

Explanation—A decree is preliminary when further proceedings have to be taken before the suit can be completely disposed of. It is final when such adjudication completely disposes of the suit. It may be partly preliminary and partly final.

Decree—Since the right of appeal is to some extent determined by reference to this definition, its importance is considerable, See Part VII Post. In considering the right of appeal however, and the effect of this definition, the remarks of the Privy Council in Meenakshi v Subraminay may be recalled. "It must not be assumed that there is a right of appeal in every matter that comes under the consideration of a Judge, such a right must be given by statute or by some authority equivalent to a statute."

Questions of difficulty have constantly arisen and will no doubt continue to arise in distinguishing between decrees and orders, an order being defined as "the formal expression of any decision of a Civil Court which is not a decree."

Preliminary and Final The principal modification in this definition existing in Act XIV of 1882 consists in the distinction now drawn between preliminary and final decrees, which recognizes as decrees many adjudications regarding which doubts existed under the former definition. The old code required an adjudication upon "some right claimed or defence set up which ended the suit or appeal. Now any adjudication which conclusively determines any matter in controversy in the suit ranks as a decree. So in a partnership suit a decision that the defendant is a partner, declaring the shares of the parties and directing an account to be taken before the suit is finally decreed, clearly falls within this definition." And so does an order declaring the rights of the parties in a partition suit, but leaving the property to be partitioned. Section 97 (post) renders it imperative for a dissatisfied party to appeal immediately from such a decision without delaying until the final decree is drawn up, and this new provision no doubt tends to expedite the final determination of such suits.

Explanation This makes it clear that a decree may be partly final and partly preliminary, as in the partnership suit above instanced, or, to take another example, in the case of a decree for the recovery of land and mesne profits.

Suit The words "right claimed or defence set up in a Civil Court" are not found in this definition, but in order to rank as a decree it is still necessary that the adjudication should be made in a "suit." This word has not been defined in either Act, and the latter half of Sec 582 of the old Code, in which it was decreed to include an appeal in certain cases has not been reproduced in this Act.

It has been held in Calcutta, with reference to the Bengal Court of Wards Act IX of 1879 that the term "suit" includes all contentious proceedings of an ordinary civil kind, whether they arise in a suit or proceedings. In a later case a less certain view seems to have been taken, and it was said that a "suit" ought to be confined to such proceedings, as under that description are directly dealt with by the Code of Civil Procedure, or such as by the operation of the particular Acts which regulate them are treated as suits.¹ A settlement case under s. 104 (2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, before it was modified by Act III of 1898 B.C. was held not to be a suit.² In Bombay the High Court has ruled that any proceeding which terminates in a decree such as a proceeding in execution ending with an order under s. 244 of Act XIV of 1882 (reproduced in Section 47 post), is a suit,³ and the decision in any such proceeding is binding on the parties in the original suit of which it is a continuation.⁴

In Madras, however a somewhat different view seems to have been taken and it was held that under Sec. 48 (Section 26 post), every suit must commence with a plaint, and no proceeding, even if capable of terminating in a decree or an order having the force of a decree is a suit if it has not commenced with a plaint.⁵

English Authorities. Under the Judicature Act 1873, Sec. 100 the word suit includes "action, which is itself defined as a civil proceeding commenced by writ or in such other manner as may be prescribed by rules of Court and shall not include a criminal proceeding by the Crown. A Caveat entered against a grant of probate does not constitute the commencement of an action under the English practice,⁶ being regarded as a mere direction to the Registrar to give notice to the Solicitor of the person entering the Caveat if any proceeding should subsequently be taken.

Questions within Section 47. These are the questions in execution which are to be determined by the Court executing the decree and are mostly those referred to in Sec. 244 of the old Code. It must be observed that the word 'within' has been substituted for the phrase mentioned or referred to in . The effect of this change of language is to bring within the definition orders made in execution against sureties under Section 142 post and also orders relating to Court fees in suits by paupers made under Order XXXIII, r. 13 post.⁷

Questions within Section 144. This is the Section substituted for Sec. 583 of the old Code and deals with applications for restitution in cases where a decree has been varied or reversed on appeal. An adjudication under this section now ranks as a decree.

Exception (a) merely reproduces the effect of the old definition by excluding appealable orders—see Section 104 post.

Dismissal for Default. Exception (b) clears up any doubt that may have existed as to the correctness of the decision in *Oshto Behari v. Hari Mohan*⁸ and the wording seems comprehensive enough to cover dismissals for any default whatsoever whether under Order IX, r. 8 or Order XI r. 20⁹, or in the case of an appeal from the decree¹⁰ or objections to the execution of a decree¹¹, all held to amount to decrees under the old Code.

¹³ Lal Narain v. Mahomed Rafie bin (1901) 24 Cal., 81.

Arbitration—Orders made under rr 17 and 21 of the second Schedule hereto are not to be deemed decrees within the meaning of the Code. This has been made clear in view of the expression of the Privy Council in Gulam Khan v. Mohammod Hassan and also in the decision of the Madras Full Bench in Gulam Khan v. Ghulam Hassan which is in conflict with the Allahabad ruling in Dewanul Kar Bakhtwar Singh.

Decrees and Orders—In order to determine whether any particular decree or order is an expression by a Civil Court is within the definition and so ranks as a decree or is merely an unappealable order the test seems to be

(1) Is there a suit

(2) Is the subject matter of the decision in controversy in such suit

(3) Does the decree or order merely determine the rights of the parties with regard to such subject matter

If these three questions can be answered in the affirmative the decree would seem to rank as a decree; if no it is merely an order. Questions in execution of decrees under ss 47 and 144 are of course expressly included in the definition and in the test is no bar. No direction to add a party to the suit or a refusal to add a party or the return of a plaint clearly fails to answer the test and will not constitute rank as order under the present Code as, after argument the were held so under Act XIV of 1859.

Orders—see section 36 post

(4) "district" means the local limits of the jurisdiction of a principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction (hereinafter called a "District Court"), and includes the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of a High Court

District Court—The Court of the Judicial Commissioner and not that of a Deputy Commissioner was held to be the District Court in Chota Nagpur under the similarly worded definition of the old Code. It was also held under that Act that the Deputy Commissioner of the Santhal Parganas has been vested with the powers of a District Judge the effect of which is to make the Santhal Parganas a district. The latter half of the old definition declaring the subordination of the various Civil Courts has been transposed to section 3—see notes thereto

(5) "foreign Court" means a Court situate beyond the limits of British India which has no authority in British India and is not established or continued by the Governor General in Council

(6) "foreign judgment" means the judgment of a foreign Court

The Privy Council of course include the Privy Council it does include all other Courts in rules of the Supreme Court gives that Crown wherever they may be
The same Court is a foreign Court and as such the judgment of a defendant who at the time of the suit was in the same country are not enforceable against

(7) "Government Pleader" includes any officer appointed by the Local Government to perform all or any of the functions expressly imposed by this Code on the Government Pleader and also any pleader acting under the directions of the Government Pleader

It should be observed that the definition has been extended to include a

Judge granting probate of a will under Act V of 1881—Umrao Chand

Annual rents. Where the rents are taken as the test, then, unless the tenants leases contain a contract to pay rent by defined instalments which, independently of any failure to pay on demand, might be made the subject of an action at a certain date within the year, the rents (i.e. mesne profits) must be taken to fall due annually and at the end of the year¹, for the right to mesne profits accrues only from the date on which the plaintiff would have received them, if he had not been dispossessed².

Profits. But in other cases mesne profits were held to cover whatever profits the wrong doer might, with ordinary diligence, have received from an occupation similar to that of the party wrongfully dispossessed,³ whether it be that of a cultivating ryot,⁴ land lord or zemindar,⁵ and, to determine the amount, it would be sufficient to show the profits for the years preceding dispossession or afterwards.⁶ When the position of the plaintiff is that of landlord and tenant combined, and the defendant a sub tenant, mesne profits must be assessed on the value of the crops raised by the defendant.

In a suit by a land lord against an occupancy tenant and his vendee, mesne profits must be assessed as damages against the vendee as a trespasser, and the proper measure of such damages is not the rent payable by the vendor, but the actual market value of the land for the purpose of letting.⁷

Deductions. Deductions, usually 10 per cent, are made for collection expenses⁸ and also for Government Revenue, losses by desertion and death of ryots, drought, &c,¹⁰ but charges for management are not allowed unless the party accounting has bona fide believed himself to be in rightful possession.¹¹ Lands of such a nature as would, under ordinary circumstances, yield no profit should not be taken into account, unless it has been shown that the judgment debtor could have gained a profit from them¹

In calculating mesne profits, payments of revenue and cesses should be deducted². A trespasser, who, after having been for some time in possession of immovable property, was ejected in execution of a decree obtained by the rightful owner, cannot have allowed to him in reduction of mesne profits expenses incurred by him in obtaining decrees for rent against tenants on the property in suit³. Mesne profits can only be ascertained after making deductions from the gross earnings of all such payments made by the defendant as the plaintiff would have been bound to make, if in possession⁴. A trespasser is entitled to a deduction of Government Revenue so as to show that there were no profits at all, but he cannot recover any sum so paid in excess of the profits claimed, but must bear the burden of his own wrong⁵.

From what date allowed The general rule is, that mesne profits are demandable from the date on which they become annually due⁶. To this there is an exception, a purchaser for valuable consideration without notice of plaintiff's title is not liable for mesne profits from any date earlier than the institution of the suit, if the plaintiff has been guilty of laches,⁷ though slight delay in bringing the suit will of itself be insufficient to remove the liability⁸. Under Art 109 Sch II of the Limitation Act XV of 1877 the defendant is liable for the mesne profits received by him or which he might have with due diligence received, during the three years before the date of suit and not before. The period of three years fixed has no reference to the time when the rents fall due⁹.

Proof necessary To establish a claim for wasilat, the plaintiff must show that he was entitled to possession¹⁰, and that he was wrongfully kept out of it by the defendant¹¹. Title need not be proved, unless the defendant proves a better title¹², but a declaratory decree stating that a person is entitled to property without previous possession is not sufficient¹³.

The onus is on the wrong doer to show what sums were realized as rent

In calculating mesne profit, payments of revenue and cesses should be deducted². A trespasser, who, after having been for some time in possession of immovable property, was ejected in execution of a decree obtained by the rightful owner, cannot have allowed to him in reduction of mesne profits expenses incurred by him in obtaining decrees for rent against tenants on the property in suit³. Mesne profits can only be ascertained after making deductions from the gross earnings of all such payments made by the defendant as the plaintiff would have been bound to make, if in possession⁴. A trespasser is entitled to a deduction of Government Revenue so as to show that there were no profits at all, but he cannot recover any sum so paid in excess of the profits claimed, but must bear the burden of his own wrong⁵.

From what date allowed The general rule is, that mesne profits are demandable from the date on which they become annually due⁶. To this there is an exception, a purchaser for valuable consideration without notice of plaintiff's title is not liable for mesne profits from any date earlier than the institution of the suit, if the plaintiff has been guilty of laches,⁷ though slight delay in bringing the suit will of itself be insufficient to remove the liability⁸. Under Art 109, Sch II of the Limitation Act XV of 1877 the defendant is liable for the mesne profits received by him or which he might have with due diligence received, during the three years before the date of suit and not before. The period of three years fixed has no reference to the time when the rents fall due⁹.

Proof necessary To establish a claim for wasilat, the plaintiff must show that he was entitled to possession¹⁰, and that he was wrongfully kept out of it by the defendant¹¹. Title need not be proved, unless the defendant proves a better title¹², but a declaratory decree stating that a person is entitled to property without previous possession is not sufficient¹³.

The onus is on the wrong doer to show what sums were realized as rent

during the period of their possession but it is incumbent on the plaintiff to establish not only the existence of his right but also the extent of it.

Entry unnecessary. All parties in wrongful possession, irrespective of how they got in are liable. Thus an auction purchaser whose purchase is declared invalid, a mortgagor after the year of grace, a bonafide holder, an intruder with his zemindar, an undertenant, a person in possession with apparent colour of right and afterwards legally ejected, a purchaser with notice of the defect of his title but not a vendor, unless he has kept the vendee out of possession, the actual occupier with his lessor, subsequent lessees taking possession and collecting rents after the expiry of the lease of the previous lessees but before notice of ejectment required to be given by the lessor under s. 36 of the A. W. I. Rent Act (XII) of 1881¹, are all liable for mesne profits but ryots are not bound to pay rent before the decree holder is put in possession. A purchaser of property at a sale under the Rent Recovery Act who enters into possession thereof is in rightful possession until the decree is set aside. He is not therefore a trespasser and liable to make good any loss sustained by the rightful owner being kept out of possession but he is bound to account for mesne profits the calculation of which is to be based on a proper discharge of the stewardship of the property.²

A lessor preventing ryots from paying his lessee is liable so a mortgagor who after the mortgagee had foreclosed and got a decree nevertheless gave up possession to the mortgagor, nor told his lessee to pay the latter rent was cast in mesne profits.³

Enjoyment of profits. It is also unnecessary to show that the defendant has enjoyed the mesne profits instead of the plaintiff. It is enough to show that he has been active in keeping the plaintiff out of possession and enjoyment of the property. If he has done so wrongfully he is bound to pay to the plaintiff consequential damages, whether he derived any profit himself from the possession of the land or not.⁴ In the case of every wrong done, the liability of a defendant is limited to damages for the wrong which he himself has done. If a defend-

Effect of a decree for mesne profits—The decisions declaring the incidents of the liability imposed by a decree for mesne profits in a suit for damages against several persons for whom they are all equally liable to him in proportion of the property in his possession suing any one of them probably a decree against the others would bar a new suit against him though in one case it was held that unless the plaintiff sued all the defendants under a decree for possession his suit would be dismissed, because if he did not do so, the parties cited would have no remedy against the other wrong doers, whereas this would not be the case if the decree bound them all, and only some of them paid.⁴

Contribution Form of decree—In some cases in an action for damages, the whole liability has been divided in proportion to the amount of profits that each has derived from the wrongful possession,⁵ and this rule has been followed, even though there was no such limitation in the decree,⁶ on the ground that a person's liability to satisfy a joint and common decree would in equity extend no further than to the particular land he was in possession of.⁷

Interpretation—A decree for interest on mesne profits from the date they are ascertained means the date they have been ascertained by the Court and not by the Ameen.⁸ A decree specifying no time down to which mesne profits are to be computed cannot be construed as giving mesne profits for more than three years from the date of the decree⁹ even though possession is not delivered during that period.¹⁰ When a decree for possession with mesne profits was taken to the Privy Council in appeal and was affirmed, held, that the three years up to which mesne profits may be given must be counted from the date of the King's order.¹¹

Shebait—A decree for mesne profits against a person who claimed the lands as shebait of a Hindu idol, where the profits of the lands had gone into the idol's treasury, has been held not to be a decree against the person as an individual but as shebait, and to be satisfied out of the idol's property,¹² the necessary expenses of the idol must be allowed.¹³

(13) "moverble property" includes growing crops

This new definition of moverble property puts an end to the uncertainty existing under the decisions of the different High Courts upon the point¹ In Bombay, Allahabad and Madras growing crops were held under the old Code to be immoverble property and in two later Calcutta cases it was held that crops were not moverble property until severed from the ground²

Growing Crops—Presumably this term covers only such vegetable growths as may be harvested from time to time thus tea bushes or coffee shrubs, it is submitted, will not fall within the definition the leaves and berries only being regarded as growing crops. A similar distinction appears to exist between grass and turf³

(14) "order" means the formal expression of any decision of a Civil Court which is not a decree

Order—This must be read with the definition of Decree see p 6 ante, and notes thereunder. The following decisions under Act XIV of 1882 in which various orders were held not to amount to decrees may be useful by way of reference

Under the Code of Civil Procedure—An order for the inspection of documents⁴ an order that when a condition should be performed a decree would be passed⁵ in order to pay the costs of the day,⁶ an order as to costs in a suit allowed to be withdrawn,⁷ an order disallowing an application under sect 372 (old Code) (See Order XXII, r 12) to be made a party as assignee⁸ an order under sect 373 (old Code) (See Order XXII, r 1) allowing a suit to be withdrawn⁹ an order directing a suit to be re-admitted and registered¹⁰ in order granting¹¹ or refusing¹² a certificate of fitness for appeal to the Privy Council, or refusing to extend time to furnish security,¹³ an order by the High Court refusing to appoint Receiver¹⁴ An order in exercise of the Court's inherent jurisdiction to punish contempt¹⁵

High Court, but not act—i.e., they can appear and represent the parties at various stages of the litigation at which it is necessary that the parties be present in person or by representative, but they cannot take part in the trial in Court or its offices necessary to try the cause properly before the Court. They cannot file an appeal or any other application in the Registry.

Instructions—There is an usage approved by the Courts in conducting to the benefit of suits and to the satisfactory administration of justice that counsel should be instructed by solicitors, and this usage applies to the Offices of the Chartered High Courts but does not extend to non-contentious business such as the preparation of writs in other courts in India a barrister may, it seems be instructed by a solicitor without the intervention of any attorney or pleader in cases where the case has appeared in the suit in person.¹

Fees—No binding contract can be entered into between a barrister and a client in respect of the former's service. He cannot demand a fee, but a "honorarium" and conversely the client has no remedy against a barrister for non attendance or negligence.²

Authority to bind Client—In England counsel have complete authority over the suit, the mode of conducting it, and all that is incident thereto, as withdrawing the record with a juror, a juror calling no other matters which properly belong to the suit and the management of the trial. And where counsel consents to withdraw a juror, his consent is binding upon the client although he dissents, unless such dissent is made to the knowledge of the opposite party at the time.³ A consent not to be set aside on the ground of mistake except for reasons stated in writing aside an agreement.⁴ But if counsel has received express instructions to the contrary⁵ or has consented against his client's express wish⁶ or through a misstatement or want of materials, or if all the instructions of a counsel ought to have, when he gives his consent is not before the Court, he is not bound.⁷ A compromise as to matters collateral to the suit is binding upon the client unless he expressly assents thereto,⁸ and under a misapprehension of his client's instructions and, believing that he has authority, acts without it, he cannot bind his client.⁹

Undertaking not to appeal—An agreement not to appeal, provided the decision be confined to a certain point is binding on the client¹. Where the undertaking was not embodied in the order an appeal was admitted and entertained in England². The giving of such an undertaking is within the implied authority of counsel and it cannot be withdrawn in the absence of misapprehension or surprise³.

Admission—An erroneous admission of counsel on a point of law does not bind the party⁴.

Oath The Court will accept a statement from counsel without burdening him with an oath.

Immunity from action for defamation—No suit lies against a barrister for defamatory words spoken as counsel in the course of any judicial proceedings, with reference thereto, even though unnecessary to support, and irrelevant to his client's case and uttered without justification or excuse⁵.

Robing—Where a advocate or pleader is himself a litigant, he must elect either to conduct the case entirely in person vel let another or leave the case to his counsel or pleader. If he conflicts his own case he should do so in the same way as any ordinary litigant and ought not to address the Court in robes or from the bar⁶.

Receipt—A receipt given by counsel for a fee for professional service is exempt from stamp duty.

Attorneys and Solicitors—An attorney having once undertaken the conduct of a case is bound to prosecute it with diligence⁷. He cannot say that unless a larger sum is paid to him he will not continue to conduct it⁸ or abandon it at his pleasure⁹.

An attorney is not entitled to any reward beyond his just and fair remuneration. He cannot split up his functions by acting partly as attorney and partly as agent¹⁰.

A party cannot appear if he has an attorney on the record¹¹. A warrant of attorney to defend unless specifically restricted in form empowers an attorney to act for the defendant in the High Court, whether in its original or appellate jurisdiction¹

Security for costs—There is no rule which prevents an attorney from taking security from his client for the payment of costs actually due with interest thereon at a fair and reasonable rate.

Authority to bind Client—An attorney has no authority to compromise a claim before suit² or to compromise a suit after judgment, and his authority only extends to doing his best for the purpose of obtaining the fruits of the judgment for his client³. A compromise made pending suit by an attorney will not be binding if the opposite party has knowledge that it is not sanctioned by the client of the attorney. If such a compromise be unreasonable or improper the attorney will be liable to the client for damages⁴. It has been held in England that if a solicitor acts on authority after it has been revoked he will be liable if he knew or by diligence might have known, of the revocation⁵.

Costs—When attorneys have been chained during the pendency of a suit, and the second attorney recovers the costs of both from the client after notice that the costs of the first attorney are unpaid he does so on behalf of the plaintiff's attorney of his costs and he could not make any payment under the compromise if he had notice of the attorney's lien⁶. An attorney has a right to insist on payment of past costs as a condition to the further prosecution of his client's cause⁷. An executor desiring to change an attorney must pay him his costs as well as his past costs incurred in the life time of the testator⁸. Leave will not be given by the Court for a change of attorney until the costs of the attorney are first paid or provided for⁹.

Infant—Where the client is an infant, the attorney may in some cases recover his costs as necessities¹⁰.

Taxation—Declining an attorney's offer to have his bill of costs taxed will not (at least in some cases) bind the client to pay without tax on it¹¹.

Lien—The general lien of a solicitor on documents is merely a right to keep back from his client any documents he has received and holds as a solicitor until his bill of costs is satisfied. It is a right derived through the client and he cannot have a better right than the client, if they are subject to the rights of third parties such parties can follow them into the hands of the solicitor.¹ He has the same lien on translations as on other documents, and cannot be compelled to produce them, when discharged by his client, unless on terms which will secure him from fraud.² When costs are paid the lien is at an end and the solicitor cannot retain them against a third party.³ An attorney who discharges himself from his client's service loses his lien over his paper,⁴ and will be prevented from acting for the opposite party in the suit.⁵

Mortgage—If in effect on a mortgage of his client's property, he also acts as solicitor for the mortgagee he cannot claim as against the latter, a lien on the title deeds or mortgage deeds for costs due by the mortgagor.⁶ The equitable right of a mortgagor to have back his deeds from the mortgagee on payment of the money due prevails over the solicitor's lien claimed in right of the mortgagee.

An attorney has no lien for costs on papers belonging to an estate being administered by the Court.⁷

His lien cannot be given effect to in summary proceedings, but should form the subject of a repleading suit.⁸

Pleaders and Vakils—Pleader and vakil are synonymous terms.¹⁰ The Courts in which a particular pleader is entitled to plead will depend upon the terms of his certificate.¹¹ He can plead in the criminal courts on behalf of either accused or the prosecutor.¹²

A pleader of a High Court can be admitted as agent to practise in the Privy Council.¹³ Pleaders of the High Court in Calcutta are entitled to practise in the Calcutta Small Cause Court,¹⁴ but the rule of the Bombay Courts is different.¹⁵ Pleaders of the Mofussil Courts in Bengal are not as such, entitled to practise in the Calcutta Small Cause Court.¹⁶

A pleader may decline a brief without giving any reason³

A vakil may present an application for the restoration, to the list of pending appeals of an appeal dismissed for default without filing a fresh vakalatnama⁴

Control of Case—The senior pleader present has the entire control of the case and a junior will not be allowed to argue points in appeal waived by him⁵ A pleader using improper expressions during the course of argument should be stopped⁶ and if he misconducts himself the Court may decline to hear him, but cannot dismiss the case in which he is engaged without trying it on the merits⁷ No pleader should be called upon to produce his instructions he is responsible for any statement he may make⁸

Binding Client—Pleadings bind the bona fide case of the client within the scope of their ground for avoiding them Courts before acting upon authority in the peculiar matter in which they are employed¹⁰ If a pleader conducting a case makes an admission as to payments made and the state of an account between the parties it is binding on his client,¹¹ and a record of an admission made by a pleader, must be taken to be correct until contradicted by an affidavit of the pleader, or admitted to be wrong by the judge,¹² but if a pleader be examined as a witness his evidence is not treated as an admission¹³

Under a vakalatnama couched in general terms, a vakil has power to withdraw a suit and bind his client¹⁴ A pleader may ask for an issue to be framed or may abandon one that has been framed and his action will bind his client¹⁵ It has been held that an admission of liability by a pleader is sufficient to warrant a decree¹⁶ An admission of fact by a pleader, which, but for such admission, the opposite party would have an opportunity of proving, will bind the client¹⁷ but it is not within the ordinary scope of his authority to compromise the suit he is engaged in¹⁸ or instead of conducting the

Section 17 of the same Act is utilized (see section 158 post) to apply this section to Provincial Small Causes Courts, and the result is that the entire Code applies to such Courts with the exceptions above specified.

Suits excepted. These are set out in the second Schedule to Act IX of 1887, and include suits instituted under O XXI of 62 and 63 or section 73.

The provisions for the bringing of suits relating to public nuisances and to public charities are expressly excluded (section 91).

Section 9. The jurisdiction of these Courts is defined by Chap III of Act IX of 1887.

Sections 90-112 relate to Appeals and section 113 to Revisions.

8. Save as provided in sections 24, 38 to 41, 75, 76, 77 and 155 to 158, and by the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882, the provisions in the body of this Code shall not extend to any suit or proceeding in any Court of Small Causes established in the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay.

Section 24 relates to the transfer and withdrawal of suits. Sections 38 to 41 to the transfer of decrees for execution or to the issue of commissions, and sections 155, 156 to amendments and repairs.

The Provisions in the body of this Code.—The rules in the first Schedule hereto are not excepted by this section. The High Courts have power to make rules prescribing the practice and procedure of the Small Cause Courts within their jurisdiction¹ and it is left open to them to apply these rules or such of them as may be found convenient.

SUITS IN GENERAL.

JURISDICTION OF THE COURTS AND RES JUDICATA

9 The Courts shall (subject to the provisions herein contained) have jurisdiction to try all Courts to try all civil suits unless barred suits of a civil nature excepting suits of which their cognizance is either expressly or impliedly barred

Explanation — A suit in which the right to property or to an office is contested is a suit of a civil nature, notwithstanding that such right may depend entirely on the decision of questions as to religious rites or ceremonies

This section applies to H C but not to Prov S C C It reproduces sect 11 of the Old Code, with the addition of the words "either expressly or impliedly," thus overruling the suggestion that only an express enactment such as Act 11 of 1886, sect 39 and Act IX of 1890 sect 41, could so bar the cognizance of the Courts¹ Section 10² of Act XIV of 1882 reproduced from Act XV of 1836, has been omitted from this Code as unnecessary³

A Munsif is not debarred by Act IX of 1861 from entertaining a regular suit by a Hindu father for possession of his minor son⁴ nor was an ordinary Civil Court prevented by s 265 of the Contract Act from trying a suit for dissolution of partnership⁵ But when it has been decided that land is service inam land, then the Civil Court is barred by s 4 (2) of Bombay Act X of 1876, (the Bombay Revenue Jurisdiction Act) from having jurisdiction over plaintiff's claim against Government in respect of the trees growing on such land, as such claim relates to property appertaining to the office of a village officer⁶

Since Bombay Act 111 of 1874 came into force, no suit will lie in a Civil Court for declaration that falling within the scope of the provision that they were entitled to participate in the profits of of 1874 the Civil Courts had

JURISDICTION OF THE COURTS AND RES JUDICATA

9 The Courts shall (subject to the provisions herein contained) have jurisdiction to try all Courts to try all civil suits in less barred suits of a civil nature excepting suits of which their cognizance is either expressly or impliedly barred

Explanation — A suit in which the right to property or to an office is contested is a suit of a civil nature notwithstanding that such right may depend entirely on the decision of questions as to religious rites or ceremonies

This section applies to H C but not to Prov S C C It reproduces sect II of the Old Code with the addition of the words either expressly or impliedly,^a less enactment such as Act II of 1876 which would so bar the cognizance of the reduced from Act XV of 1836,^b

A Munsif is not debarred by Act IX of 1861 from entertaining a regular suit by a Hindu father for possession of his minor son^c nor was an ordinary Civil Court prevented by s 26, of the Contract Act from trying a suit for dissolution of partnership But when it has been decided that land is service inam land, then the Civil Courts are barred by s 4 (2) of Bombay Act V of 1876, (the Bombay Revenue Jurisdiction Act) from having jurisdiction over plaintiff's claim against Government in respect of the trees growing on such land, as such claim relates to property appertaining to the office of a village officer^d

Since Bombay Act III of 1874 came into force, no suit will lie in a Civil Court for declaration that a person is eligible to officiate as a hereditary officer falling within the scope of that Act When plaintiffs sued to obtain a declaration that they were entitled to a third share in a Mithrki Vatan and to participate in the profits of the Vatan it was held that under Bombay Act III of 1874 the Civil Courts had no jurisdiction to make the declaration sought^e

In the United Provinces, by ss 13, and 241 of the Land Revenue Act, (XIX of 1873) some matters have been excluded from the jurisdiction of the Civil Court. So a suit by a co-sharer in a joint zemindari estate for partition and possession of his proportionate share of an isolate plot of land is not maintainable.¹ A suit by a zemindar to compel the purchaser of a putni in his estate, sold for arrears of rent to furnish security for the amount of half the annual jumma is not maintainable his remedy being as provided by ss 5 and 7 of Regulation VIII of 1819.² S 4 of the Lensons Act XVIII of 1871 bars a civil suit against Government upon an alleged agreement by it to pay money from its Treasury.³ A suit for declaration that a perpetual pension is payable is barred,⁴ as also a suit by a hereditary ishmunah relating to grant of Land Revenue,⁵ and a suit against Government to recover possession of munf lands with arrears of cash allowances annually paid from the Government Treasury,⁶ as also a suit for

and SHRUTI KATHA, munf

Suits of a Civil Nature For a definition of the word suit see note to section 2 (2) p 7 supra. Many cases were decided under Act XX of 1882 as to what suits were maintainable as suits of a civil nature within the meaning of the section here reproduced. The value of these decisions will be little diminished under this Code and they are grouped under heads arranged alphabetically as under for easier reference.

Account stated—By English law an account stated even though it amounts to nothing more than totalling up of the items adding interest and acknowledging their correctness can be directly sued upon the claim lies where there is an absolute acknowledgment made by the defendant of a debt due by him to the plaintiff.⁷

For the purpose of extending the period of limitation Act XV of 1877 Art 64 requires an account stated to be in writing and signed by the defendant and suits upon settlements not complying with these provisions have been dismissed by the Madras and Cutch High Courts.⁸

In dealing with a suit upon a razukhata or account stated the Bombay High Court has held⁹ that such an acknowledgment unsupported by evidence of a contemporaneous oral contract founded on consideration cannot be sued upon as a fresh contract being only evidence of the original debt. Neither in this judgment nor in the authorities followed is any reason assigned for the opposition to the long established view that such an account stated is an unequivocal admission of a debt, from which the law implies, as in England, a promise to pay, and thus except for limitation purposes, becomes a cause of action in itself. But even these decisions do not affect the maintainability of a suit upon an account stated where in addition to the adjustment of accounts the plaintiff

Illegal contract—Money paid under an illegal contract cannot be recovered.¹ A promissory note given to the plaintiff in consideration of his withdrawing his threatened opposition to the discharge of an insolvent and consenting to an arrangement among the general body of creditors, whereby the plaintiff was to obtain a special advantage, cannot be sued on, as the contract is illegal.² A suit will lie to set aside on the ground of duress and agreement by a zamindar for surrender of his land.³ A mortgage entered into for the purpose of carrying out the illegal purposes of an association, the formation of which is forbidden under the Indian Companies Act is an illegal transaction and a suit upon it must fail.⁴ An agreement is not illegal whereby a number of persons subscribe each a certain sum by periodic instalments with the object that each in his turn (to be decided by lot) shall take the whole subscription for each instalment all such persons being returned the amount of their contributions the common fund being lent to each subscriber in turn.

Marriage—A suit will lie for the consideration of a marriage among Hindus⁵ for a declaration that an alleged Hindu marriage is invalid⁷ also for an injunction restraining parents from marrying their daughter to other than plaintiff.⁸ But no suit will lie on a contract entered into by Hindus by which it is agreed that on the happening of a certain event a marriage is to become null and void.⁹ But a contract by a Muhammadan with his first wife not to marry else and is not illegal.¹⁰ Nor is authority granted to divorce him, if he either marries again or he violates any condition of the marriage contract.¹¹ Nor will a suit for specific performance of an agreement to marry lie,¹² though one for damages against a guardian for breach will.¹³ but a contract to marry a minor on payment of a consideration is void.¹⁴ A contract which entitles a father to be paid money in consideration of giving his son or daughter in marriage is against public policy and cannot be enforced in a Court of law.¹⁵ A suit for prevention of marriage will lie in a Civil Court in British India.¹⁶ A suit for dissolution of marriage under Act IV of 1861 will not lie when the parties have been married under the rites of Hindu law.¹ See 'RESTITUTION OF CONJUGAL RIGHTS, infra'.

Criminal Proceedings.—A suit A suit will not lie on a contract affecting the course of justice, such as to obtain the release of a badmish by killing the Police officer in whose charge he is¹ nor to hush up a case and suppress criminal prosecution for a consideration², otherwise, if the contract be to forego a prosecution in a case in which though a compromise could not be legally effected, it had been allowed by the Magistrate³ or it is to compound criminal proceedings in a foreign country for an offence committed there, and the law of the country permits the transaction⁴ Where the defendant agreed to execute a kabula of certain lands in favour of plaintiff in consideration of the latter's abstaining from taking criminal proceedings against the former with respect to an offence which is compoundable, such a contract cannot be regarded as forbidden by law or contrary to public policy and may be enforced⁵ but the contract would be void, if the offence was not compoundable⁶

Cesses.—Nor can a contract be enforced for or about any matter prohibited or made unlawful by Statute thus, where certain farmers agreed to pay over and above the jummas such sums as would be realized under the head of zabti bills, and were sued for these sums by the zemindar it was held that the stipulation was illegal and opposed to s 3 Regulation V of 1817 and the suit was dismissed⁷ So an agreement to pay the purabi collected from the village has been declared illegal under s 10 Act X of 1859⁸ Nor will a suit lie against a tahsildar to account for money 'exacted' in excess of the rent, otherwise, if the payment had been made voluntarily⁹ But where the talab beshi has been paid voluntarily for several years, and has been incorporated in the subject of one receipt the cess not in the North West it has been held that a by Regulation VII 1872 is not maintaining his right to a cess and to record it¹⁰ A suit levied as tax under the using out of the privilege suit¹⁴ So also is a suit for collection charges from a tenant, if the condition is definite and forms part estate was well founded, advanced the funds necessary to enable him to prosecute a successful appeal to the Privy Council, and the Allahabad High Court held that the reward stipulated for was in the circumstances excessive and unconscionable. Held that such a decree would not be reversed unless shown to be clearly wrong¹. But an assignment to the plaintiff with a view to litigation is not maintainable². When a person joins with the other plaintiffs under an agreement that he should defray the expenses of the suit from the Court of first instance up to the Privy Council, he has no right to join in the suit³.

Assam Regulations—The term "property" in s 70 of the Assam Land and Revenue Regulation (I of 1886) includes an entire estate as well as a share in respect of which revenue has been separately apportioned, so, in a case where revenue in respect of certain lands had been separately apportioned and arrears fell due in respect of the remaining portion of the taluk, and the taluk, minus those lands, was put up to sale and purchased by the plaintiff, held that the plaintiffs were entitled to maintain a suit to avoid an incumbrance.

The question of the right of a party to obtain a settlement is not excluded from the jurisdiction of the Civil Court by provisions of s 154 of the Assam Land and Revenue Regulation. A plaintiff is entitled to maintain a suit for a declaration that his rights are not affected by an order of the Collector under s 65 of the Assam Land and Revenue Regulation, specifying the revenue payable by the defendant and made without notice to the plaintiff. When a suit was brought for the partition of an estate excluding certain portions as brahmutter or debutter or as being held jointly by third persons, held that the jurisdiction of the Civil Court was barred by s 154 of the Assam Regulation (1 of 1886).⁷ So a suit for a imperfect partition of an estate in Assam is barred.⁸

Award—A plaintiff may sue to enforce an award when the matter was referred to arbitration without the intervention of a Court of Justice. § 523 of Act XIV of 1882 (Art 17, Sch II of this Code) is no bar to his doing so.

Benami Transaction—A suit does not lie for a declaration that a conveyance executed by a plaintiff is a benami and fictitious transaction, when the alleged transaction has been used to accomplish the fraudulent purpose for which it was intended¹⁰

Burial Ground—Where certain Mahomedans of a village brought a suit against other Mahomedans of the same village for the removal of a wall built by the defendants upon land which was found to belong in common to all the Mahomedan inhabitants of the village for the purpose of a burial ground, it was held that the suit was maintainable.¹¹

Canal Dues—The Civil Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit by a proprietor to recover moneys wrongfully taken from him as canal dues.¹

Carriers—See the Carriers Act, (III of 1865) the Indian Railway Act, (IX of 1880) and the Indian Contract Act, (II of 1872), ss. 151, 152 and 161. A suit will lie for damages against a Railway Company for the death of plaintiff's son that occurred in the Railway when travelling in it.²

Caste—A suit will lie for restoration to caste, and damages or compensation for cost of restoration to caste lost in consequence of the defendant having accused plaintiff of adultery.³ So, too, a suit lies to gain re-admission to caste only⁴ and expulsion without a hearing is illegal. But though suits may be instituted for restoration to caste or to membership of religious associations, a suit will not lie to compel Hindus to assist the plaintiff to take others to their houses and entertainments⁵ nor to obtain a declaration of a right to membership of a Samaj (society) upon the allegation that the other members have excluded the plaintiff from it the exclusion neither deprived him of caste nor affected any right to property⁶ nor to enforce the performance of certain services by barbers on the ground of custom or established usage⁷ and a claim to be chikhat of the Limniet caste of Bhalkot in Bombay will not be entertained by the Civil Courts.⁸ So a right to receive fees as head of a caste cannot be decided in the Bombay Civil Courts.⁹ nor will a suit lie for damages because the plaintiff has not received a share in funeral gifts.¹⁰ nor for recovery of half of certain vessels belonging to the caste or their value.¹¹ But the Civil Courts are not ousted of jurisdiction to try a suit for breach of contract or for possession of caste property because it may be incidentally necessary to determine the usages of the caste.¹² A court can determine whether plaintiff's expulsion from caste for violating caste rules, is valid or not.¹³ A suit to enforce caste rights and privileges and for an injunction restraining the defendant from preventing other members of the caste reconnoitring and treating the plaintiff is a member of the caste discloses no cause of action¹. As to the principles on which the Bombay High Court will enforce resolutions of the ment of caste property and Walji Wardhman². The confined to Hindus. An agreement between members of a caste for paying off the debts of the caste out of contributions to the caste funds involves a caste question³. A Civil Court has jurisdiction to enquire into the validity of a sentence of excommunication from caste, and it lies on the plaintiff who seeks to enforce the sentence and by virtue of it to deprive the defendants of their civil rights to prove that it was passed on justifiable grounds and after a fair and proper enquiry⁴. But when a caste has excommunicated one of its members, acting in good faith, and has proceeded regularly according to custom the Civil Court cannot interfere or examine the question on its merits⁵. Under Bom Reg II of 1827, s. 21, cl. 1, only such caste suits as claim damages for injury to caste or character of the plaintiff are maintainable. But when a claim to property is involved, the regulation is no bar so far as that claim is concerned. The Courts in that case have a distinct and separate jurisdiction, resting not on the caste dispute but on the claim to property⁶. In a matter relating to caste customs over which the ecclesiastical chief has jurisdiction, and exercises his jurisdiction with due care and in conformity to on mutual agreement, on one party paying to the other the expenses of the latter's original marriage⁸.

Compensation—A suit by a purchaser of an estate sold for arrears of to him under s. 2
 the sale, will lie in a wrongful seizure of on for the loss of his daughter's service on account of her abduction¹¹. A suit for damages will lie against a defaulting witness¹². But no suit will lie unless summons to attend has been personally delivered¹³. No suit will lie against a person who has not attended a feast (after accepting invitation) for the price of the food unconsumed on account of his absence¹⁴ and no suit for damages is maintainable by one joint owner of an undivided estate against another when the estate has been sold through the default of one or more of such co-shrers in paying their shares of the Government Revenue¹⁵.

Contribution—The right to contribution, in the absence of contract, rests on the equitable doctrine that in equali jure, the law requires equality. One shall

Canal Dues—The Civil Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit by a proprietor to recover money wrongly taken from him as canal dues.¹

Carriers—See the Carriers Act, (111 of 1865) the Indian Railways Act, (IX of 1880) and the Indian Contract Act, (IX of 1872), ss 151, 152 and 161. A suit will lie for damages against a Railway Company for the death of plaintiff's son that occurred in the Railway when travelling in it.²

Caste—A suit will lie for restoration to caste, and damages or compensation for cost of restoration to caste lost in consequence of the defendant having accused plaintiff of adultery.³ So also a suit lies to gain re-admission to caste only⁴ and expulsion without a hearing is illegal.⁵ But though suits may be instituted for restoration to caste or to membership of religious associations, a suit will not lie to compel Hindis to assist their will to ask others to their houses and entertainments⁶ nor to obtain a declaration of a right to membership of a Samaj (society) upon the allegation that the other members have excluded the plaintiff from it the exclusion neither deprived him of caste nor affected any right to property⁷ nor to enforce the performance of certain services by members on the ground of custom or established usage⁸ and a claim to be chilvadi of the Lin, not caste of Lil, at Lil in Bombay will not be entertained by the Civil Courts.⁹ So a right to receive fees as head of a caste cannot be decided in the Bombay Civil Courts¹⁰ nor will a suit lie for damages because the plaintiff has not received a share in funeral gifts¹¹ nor for recovery of half of certain vessels belonging to the caste or their value.¹² But the Civil Courts are not ousted of jurisdiction to try a suit for breach of contract or for possession of caste property because it may be incidentally necessary to determine the usages of the caste.¹³ A court can determine whether plaintiff's expulsion from caste for violating caste rules is valid or not.¹⁴ A suit to enforce caste rights and privileges and for an injunction restraining the defendants from preventing other members of the caste recognising and treating the persons jointly execute a bond, and on the expiration of the stipulated time only one of them executes a second bond, and the debt is subsequently paid off, the latter is entitled to sue all the debtors for contribution.¹ Where a claimant having obtained possession of an estate under a decree has in good faith, paid the revenue and cesses, although the decree may have been reversed afterwards and he may have been deprived of possession, he is nevertheless entitled to be repaid by his opponent who benefits by it.² When the payment is not voluntary and the plaintiff is interested in the payment, a suit for contribution will lie.³ A claim for contribution creates only a personal liability and does not create a charge on the estate.⁴ A suit for contribution by a partner against some of his co partners, on account of money paid by him for the satisfaction of a debt, contracted by him jointly with the said co partners is maintainable.⁵ When there is no endowment or trust to support an idol, no suit for contribution is maintainable for payments made on account of the expenses of the idol.⁶ The Courts trying the case can go into the facts of the previous litigation.⁷ The decree of the Appellate Court did not award mesne profits, but in execution the first Court realized them from plaintiff. Held, he could not sue his co defendants for contribution, as mesne profits were not authorized by the decree.⁸

Parties—In a suit for contribution all the parties interested should be made parties,⁹ and the plaint must set out the amount due by each party sued, otherwise it should be rejected.¹⁰

Copy right—Calcutta High Court has jurisdiction to order entry in Bombay Registrar to be expunged.¹¹

Co-sharers—A co parcener in a joint Hindu family is entitled to claim joint possession of a portion of the joint estate and need not sue for partition.¹² Where a co sharer sets up ferry at his own expense on the joint property, but does not dispossess the other co sharers or restrict their user of the land or ferry, they cannot obtain any relief by way of injunction, damages or accounts of the profits, even though he denies their title.¹³ There is no such broad pro possession against any other until there has been a disclaimer of the latter's title.¹⁴

Buildings—In Nocury Lall Chuckerbutty v Bindabun Chunder Chuckerbutty,¹ it was laid down that when a permanent building has been erected by some or one of several co-sharers on the land jointly held, and another co-sharer seeks to have the building removed, the principle on which the Court acts is that, though it has a discretion to interfere and direct removal of the building, this is being erected by a joint owner on land without the permission of his co-owners and even in spite of their protest is not sufficient to entitle such co-owners to obtain the demolition of such building, unless they can show that the building has caused such material and substantial injury as could not be remedied in a suit for partition of the joint land. One co-sharer in a mahal is entitled to a perpetual injunction restraining another co-sharer from proceeding further with the erection of a building.

him on partition and direct him to pull down and prohibit the co-sharer from erecting a building on the joint property at any future time. One of several joint owners of land is not entitled to erect a building upon the joint property without the consent of the other joint owners notwithstanding that the erection of such building may cause no direct loss to the other joint owners.⁴

Costs—A suit will not lie for the costs of defending a possessory action under Act V of 1864 (Bom.) or for costs incurred in resisting a claim under §§ 278, 279, 280 of Act XIV of 1882 or §§ 58, 59, 60 of this Code, Ref Case, 3 Mad H. C., 341, or for costs incurred in prosecuting a person for a criminal offence,⁵ and the assignment away of its assets. Id., in it the plaintiff was entitled to maintain the suit.¹⁰ Where a decree for costs was assigned by the decree holders, and the assignee took the costs out of court, it was held on the decree being reversed on appeal to the Privy Council that no suit would lie against the assignee for the costs so realized by him.¹¹ A civil suit will lie for costs incurred in appearing to give evidence in a proceeding under § 145, Crim. P. Code.¹²

Court of Wards—The High Court cannot restrain the Court of Wards, from interference in the bestowal in marriage of a minor.¹³

Probate.—A suit did not lie to set aside a certificate granted under Act XXVII, 1860¹² though one for declaration of title to be used as a reason for asking the certificate to be withdrawn was admissible¹³. Existing Decree—A decree or judgment must be considered valid until reversed or superseded. Hence, money recovered under a decree or judgment, cannot be recovered back in a regular suit so long as the judgment or decree under which it was recovered remains in force,³ though there is no bar to a suit for retention when the decree is reversed. As to recovery of money paid that the petitioner had falsely and maliciously made him a bankrupt,¹ and a conviction unreversed on appeal bars an action for malicious prosecution.² The charge must have been made without any reasonable or probable cause,³ and this must be proved by the plaintiff.⁴ And if the first Court supports the charge, this strongly negatives this proposition, even though its decision may have been set aside on appeal.⁵ The plaintiff must also prove injury to his person, reputation or property.⁶

False Evidence—No civil action lies against a witness for giving false evidence. The only remedy against a false witness is a prosecution for perjury.⁷

Ferry—The owner of a ferry granted under a Government settlement will have an action against any person running a ferry over the same spot, when the latter does not use the ferry for his own conveyance, and that of the servants merely,⁸ and a rival ferry cannot be set up so as to interfere with the proprietary right in an existing ferry,⁹ nor will a suit lie to reopen a ferry which had been included in a settlement of an estate obtained from Government but which had been closed by an order of a Magistrate.¹⁰ A suit for compensation for converting a ferry under private management to a public ferry is not maintainable,¹¹ and though a man may set up a ferry on his own land and take tolls,¹² it is doubtful if he can claim a monopoly without a grant from the Crown.¹³

Fishery—The right of fishing in a navigable river does not belong to the public nor is the Government prohibited by any law from granting to individuals the exclusive right of fishing in such a river.¹⁴ and a private right of fishery in a tidal navigable river must be derived from the Crown.¹⁵ The right of fishery in such a river, as also the bed of river itself may be granted by Government to private individuals,¹⁶ and a Civil Court has jurisdiction to try a suit for damages for, and to restrain by injunction, an illegal disturbance of the plaintiffs right to fish in the sea below low water mark.¹⁷ But a suit for the possession of a right to fish in a thal the soil of which does not belong to the plaintiff, does not come within the provisions of s 9 of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877).¹⁸ Where a lease transferred to the lessee an incorporeal right, it was held that the suit for the rent of such a tank was triable by the Civil Court and not by a Revenue Court under Act V of 1859¹

Foreign State—Courts have no jurisdiction to interfere with the public property of a foreign sovereign, though he may have submitted to the jurisdiction of the Court for the purpose of enabling the Court to order the property to be delivered over to him. An act of state by a foreign power cannot affect rights to property in British India. Defendant No. 1 domiciled in the Native State of Cochin obtained from the Resident a certificate to collect the debts of a deceased karnavan of the plaintiff's taluk. The plaintiff whose domicile was the same as that of the defendant No. 1 sued for a declaration of the right to receive the interest accrued due on certain Government promissory notes, being the property of the deceased karnavan. Held that the suit did not lie. A suit will lie on a judgment of a Court in a Native State. There is no appeal to the King in Council from the political jurisdiction of Agency Courts in Kaira &c.²

Forest Officer—A munsiff has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit to cancel the decision of a Forest officer confirmed by a District Judge under s. 10 of the Madras Forest Act (V of 1882) and recover a certain tank a claim to which had been rejected under that section. The plaintiff sued in Court at Nasik in British India to establish his right to a share in the income derived from certain grants of land situate outside of British India but received by the defendant within the jurisdiction of the Nasik court. Held that the suit was within the jurisdiction of the Court.³

Fraud—A suit will lie to set aside a decree on the ground of fraud. On the ground that the plaintiff's father's agent had colluded with the person who had obtained the decree and had given false evidence and that the decree had been obtained thereby.⁴ The plaintiff must prove the fraud. It is not enough for him to show that the defendant has told an untrue story.⁵ There must be an allegation of actual not constructive, fraud,⁶ but not if the plaintiff urged fraud in the first Court after the decree had been passed and failing did not appeal though an appeal was allowed.⁷ In England the judgment of a foreign Court on fraud is not conclusive,⁸ and generally a suit will lie unless the question of fraud has been decided,⁹ or it has been committed by one party in execution proceeding,¹⁰ but unless the parties sue to set aside the decree directly it cannot be impugned indirectly, and must be given effect to.¹ Fraud may be also raised as a defence.² But in the execution of a decree ordering the sale of immovable property, it is not competent for the Court to refuse to sell it, because a stranger to the suit who is in possession of the property impeaches the decree on the ground of fraud he must file a suit and get an injunction.³ Definite and clear knowledge of facts constituting fraud must be proved.⁴ The Original side of the High Court of Calcutta can on the ground of fraud entertain a suit to set aside a decree passed by another Court of concurrent jurisdiction.⁵ A Court can treat as a nullity a decree of another Court of concurrent jurisdiction, if such decree has been obtained by fraud.⁶ If a decree is not tainted with fraud, no suit lies to set it aside. The suit must be brought in the District in which the fraudulent decree is obtained.⁷

Pleading.—In all cases of fraud the plaintiff must set forth the particular acts alleged to constitute the fraud,⁸ and the plaintiff cannot succeed on any other.⁹ Fraud not mentioned in the plaint or raised in the issues cannot be taken into consideration.¹⁰ See also 'FRAUD'.

Interest—As to advances and interest on advances when a deed is set aside for fraud, see the undernoted case ¹

Effect of suit—Where a decree is set aside for fraud the parties are not remitted to the position they held before the decree ² Though a decree may be declared fraudulent and void against the one defendant, it remains a subsisting decree against the others ³

Limitation—When the appellant claimed in 1836 that a qanad, which, in 1803 appointed the zemindar of Shivragar, had been obtained from the Government by the fraud of the grantee, who, with his descendants, had thenceforth enjoyed the estate to the knowledge of the appellant's predecessors, it was held that no suit would lie after such a lapse of time ⁴

Haut—When a plaintiff alleged that plaintiff held a hut on his land for many years, that the defendant had set up a rival hut on the same days, and tried to prevent persons from attending plaintiff's hut that this led to the Magistrate's passing an order prohibiting the plaintiff from holding his hut, in consequence of which he suffered loss and damage. Held, a good cause of action ⁵

Hereditary Office and Pension—As to how far a suit will lie for a pension, see the undernoted cases ⁶ A suit for a share of a watan will lie, ⁷ or to be declared a qanadai, ⁸ but managments of a personal or political character are within the prohibition. A suit for managments attached to the hereditary office of village carpenter is barred by the operation of s. 3, Reg. VI of 1831 ⁹ A Civil Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit for a declaration of a plaintiff's status as representative istanfar. This equally with the duty of ascertaining the custom of the watan as to service, is a duty by s. 15 of the Bombay Hereditary Offices Act (Bombay Act III of 1873) imposed on the Collector and not on the Civil Court—Krovi v. Genu, 23 Bom. 344. When a Collector's certificate under s. 10 of the Watan Act (Bombay Act III of 1874) is based on a misunderstanding of the term watan, it is illegal and is not binding on the Civil Court ¹⁰ A suit by one member of a family against another for the declaration and enforcement of a hereditary right to officiate as priest

Suitors—Suits under the Pensions Act require sanction. A suit for a grant of money which comes under the definition of pension under s. 4 Act XXIII of 1871 will not lie in the absence of the Collector's certificate though Government is not a party ². A suit brought against a Sardar in the Court of the Agent for Sardars in the Deccan requires a Collector's certificate ³. A suit for malikana will not lie without a certificate under the Pensions Act, s. 6 ⁴. A village, part of an estate had been made over to the Government by the parties who in consideration received a malikana in perpetuity. Held that the right to the malikana was on a construction of ss. 3 and 4 of the Pensions Act in the absence of a certificate obtained under that Act excluded from judicial cognizance in the suit ⁵. A plaintiff claimed to be a co-trustee of certain dargahs and entitled to a share in the management and in the profits thereof which consisted of a certain cash allowance from Government. Held, that the suit so far as it related to the cash allowance from Government required a certificate under s. 4 of the Pensions Act ⁶. S. 4 of the Pensions Act, 1871 applies to a heritable right to receive Land Revenue granted by Government as a reward for services rendered ⁷. If the requisite sanction is obtained before decree the original defect is cured ⁸. A suit brought in relation to the management of anyam land is prima facie one not included in the Pensions Act ⁹. In a suit by an inamdar of a village against a khote for rent, it was held that the Court was not precluded from entertaining the suit for want of a Collector's certificate under the Pensions Act (XXIII of 1871) s. 4 ¹⁰. Suit in s. 4 of the Pensions Act, does not include execution proceedings so the Collector's certificate is not necessary to validate a sale in execution of a decree ¹¹. A suit relating to inam land granted before the time of the British Government does not fall within the provisions of the Pensions Act, s. 4, and the Collector's certificate is unnecessary ¹².

Assignee—The assignee of a pension under the Pension Act cannot sue ¹³ unless the assignment took place before the Pensions Act ¹⁴.

Hindu Widow—A suit for recovery of property is not maintainable by a Hindu widow who on remarriage forfeits the estate inherited from her husband ¹⁵.

Instalment—When a creditor evades the attempts of a debtor to pay the instalments of a bond as they became due, no suit is maintainable by the debtor to compel the creditor to accept an instalment due ¹⁶.

Interest—A suit will not lie for interest in respect of money deposited under a decree subsequently reversed on appeal.¹

In execution of a decree plaintiff attached certain money, but was opposed by the defendant. Plaintiff finally succeeded in obtaining the money. He then sued the defendant for interest during the time he was prevented by him from obtaining it. Such a suit was held to be maintainable.²

Inam—A suit by the grantees to contest the right of Government to resume an inam granted for feeding Brahmins will lie.³

Karnams—The lessees of a zamindari are not entitled to sue for the removal of a Karnam from office though their lease contains a provision purporting to authorise them to appoint and remove Karnams but if they suffer any loss from the Karnam's neglect of his statutory duty they are entitled to bring an action for damages against him.⁴

Land Registration—The Collector with the subsequent sanction of the Board of Revenue ordered on notice to the proprietor and lessees of a zamindari that separate registration and valuation of the appellants' village situate therein be made under Reg. XXX of 1855 and Act I of 1876. Thereafter the Government on the application of one of the lessees without notice either to the appellant or the Collector ordered the latter to cancel the registration. In a suit by the appellant praying for a declaration that this order was ultra vires and illegal, held that the Collector's order could only be questioned in a Civil Court and that separate registration is distinct from the amount of sub-assessment, was a matter of private right with which the Government had no power to interfere.⁵

Land Revenue—A suit will lie against the Secretary of State to have it declared that certain lands lie within the ambit of a permanently settled estate and are not liable to be again assessed.⁶

Legal Representative—A plaintiff is entitled to sue the legal representative of his deceased debtor without proving that assets have come into his hands. It is sufficient if there are assets of which he may become possessed.⁷ See notes under §§ 47, 57, 152 and O VII rr 2, 4, 5 and 6 and O XX r 6. In a suit by a creditor against the estate of a deceased debtor, his heirs on intestacy do not represent the estate, and the suit is bad, unless the estate is represented.⁸

Mahomedan Law—A creditor is only entitled to sue one heir, when the whole estate is in his possession,⁹ and if the heirs have divided the property he can only recover against each according to his share.¹⁰ A suit for money due by a deceased Mahomedan lies against one of the heirs in respect of his share in the property left by the deceased though it cannot proceed so as to bind the widow's share.¹¹

Maintenance—Widow—A widow who is unchaste has no right of maintenance¹² and even if she is chaste, she has no right of maintenance against her father in law who has not ancestral property,¹ but generally in heir taking property is bound to support those whom the previous owner was morally bound to support.² And the right to maintenance may be made a charge on the family property.³ A decree in favour of a widow can be set aside on proof of subsequent unchastity.⁴ A Hindu widow cannot sue for arrears of maintenance when she has made no demand before suit.⁵ But if the right to the income of certain assigned property is based on a compromise in a suit made between the widow and the brothers of her deceased husband and there is no express stipulation for forfeiture on the ground of unchastity, the widow does not forfeit her right in the event of her being proved to be unchaste.⁶

Wife—A wife and daughter must be maintained out of the husband and father's property, and the maintenance may be made a charge on it.⁷ But an unchaste wife is not entitled to maintenance.⁸

A Hindu woman obtained a decree for maintenance against her husband and subsequently sued him for a declaration that certain land should be charged, saying that he had alienated other property to get rid of her maintenance. It was held she had no cause of action.⁹ An order for maintenance made under a summary decree of a court of civil judge will be a suit lie.¹⁰

Daughter in law—The obligation of a Hindu to maintain his daughter in law.

Illegitimate Son—A suit brought against a Hindu by a woman who was a Mahomedan and the wife of a Mahomedan, for maintenance of her illegitimate child, of which she alleged the defendant to be the father was held not to be maintainable.¹¹ But a suit for maintenance of an illegitimate child lies in a Civil Court, though in application under s. 488 Crim. P. C., Act V of 1898, has been refused.¹² Under Mitakshara law, an illegitimate son is entitled to maintenance.¹³ This is a personal right, which does not descend to his son.¹⁴ performance of certain religious ceremonies in certain villages in Behar.¹ There is no doubt that the Civil Courts will recognize and enforce the rights of persons holding office connected with the management and regulation of pragadars and if the holder of such office be entitled to remuneration for his services in the way of salary or otherwise, he would have a civil right entitling him to maintain a suit, if that remuneration has been improperly withheld. So, too, suits are commonly entertained for the purpose of trying and deciding who are fit and proper persons of right to be entitled dharma-kartas of a pragoda. In such cases it will be found that offices have a secular character and are so dealt with though religious duties are attached to them the occupants being employed to exercise business functions either as trustees and managers of the property and funds of the pragoda or a necessarily civil religious observances in accordance with the ritual or conventional practice of their race or sect is, in the absence of express legal recognition and provision, an imperfect obligation of a moral, and not a civil nature. Of such obligations, the present Civil Courts cannot take cognizance. Where a swami, or chief priest, of the smartana sect claimed an exclusive right of being carried crosswise in a palki on ceremonial occasions in virtue of a grant from the ruling power to a predecessor in office, their Lordships of the Privy Council had some doubt whether he could maintain an action against a party who had assumed the like privileges.² Nor can a servant of a temple who takes food offered to the idol sue for damages the inamdar for not making the usual offering.³ The plaintiff is Anandji Raja guru claimed to be entitled and now sued for a declaration of his title to the hereditary office of priest of Samrajcharan. The defendants claimed the office and had collected voluntary contribution in the character of the holders of such office. The office was not connected with any particular temple. No specific pecuniary benefit was attached to it, and the alleged duties of the office were to exercise spiritual and moral supervision over persons wearing a certain caste mark in a certain tract of country, Held, that the suit was not cognizable by a Civil Court.⁴

Alienation—As a rule religious offices cannot be the subject of sale, but a decree may be given in favour of a purchaser of a muti office in a temple, when the question of its alienability is not raised.⁵

Partition—Rights as joint trustees to the management and superintendence of worship at certain temple, none of the trustees having any pecuniary interest in the temple, or their income cannot be made the subject of partition by a Civil Court that is to say, a Civil Court is not competent to grant a decree declaring that each of such trustees in rotation shall for a certain definite period enjoy exclusively the rights of management and superintendence.⁶

Partition—A joint estate of any kind is partitionable, and possession not obtained by force or fraud is sufficient to support a partition⁷ but a partial partition cannot be enforced, if objected to,⁸ unless perhaps a portion of the property is

Party-wall—A suit will lie in the instance of one of two tenants in common of a party wall for the removal of a newly erected portion of it³

Partnerships—As to the practice pleading and procedure which should be followed in these suits, see * A member of a joint Hindu family cannot maintain a suit for an account of the profits of a partnership which is alleged to be joint family property in an award of his share in such profits, when ascertained This rule of Hindu law does not prevent an injunction being granted in cases in which one member of the family is prevented from taking part in the business of the firm⁴

A surviving partner can sue alone for a partnership debt Such a suit may also be brought by a surviving partner jointly with the heir of the deceased partner⁵

Penalty—Where a penalty given by statute is enforceable in a particular way, it cannot be enforced by action⁶ But where by statute a new mode of procedure is given where an action had been previously allowed the right of action is not taken away though it may affect the question as to costs⁷

Possession—Specific Relief Act 1—A person dispossessed otherwise than in due course of law may sue within six months under s 9 Act I of 1877 and recover possession notwithstanding any other title that may be set up But a trespasser who has been dispossessed cannot bring such a suit⁹ It has been held that a Court should in all cases in which it applies give effect to the provisions of s III of the Specific Relief Act whether that section is expressly pleaded or not¹¹ Where the plaintiff alleged that he was in possession of a certain room as representing his father and uncle who were alive but who were not parties to the suit and that he had been dispossessed from such room within six months it was held that his possession was not a juridical one and that he was not entitled to maintain a suit under s 9 of the Specific Relief Act¹²

Bengal Tenancy Act—There is no legal bar to the maintenance of a suit in the Civil Court for possession and mesne profits by ejectment of the defendant for certain plots of land in respect of which survey and preparation of a record of rights have been ordered under chapter V of the Bengal Tenancy Act, in which record the defendants have already been recorded as tenants, when the plaintiff's objections to such record are still pending before the Revenue officer and the record has not been finally published¹³ A Revenue Court alone has jurisdiction

Mamlatdar's Court—A suit will lie in a Mamlatdar's Court when a person has been dispossessed or deprived of the use, or when he has been disturbed or obstructed, or when attempt has been made to disturb or obstruct him in the use, of water of which he is in possession or was in possession within six months before suit ² There must be to invoke the Mamlatdar's ass Bombay Act III of 1876 A suit for an injunction or dispossessory mortgage is not possession cases 15 of Mamlatdar's Act (Bombay jurisdiction under that section ⁴ When in execution of a decree, a person not a party to the suit is dispossessed, his dispossession does not give him a cause of action within the jurisdiction of the Mamlatdar ⁵ In a possessory suit before a Mamlatdar, though a tenant cannot deny his landlord's title at the date of his lease, he can show it has since been determined ⁶

Title—According to the Calcutta High Court, a suit for recovery of possession on title will not lie on mere previous possession ⁷ In Nisa Chand v. Kanchiram, ⁸ it was pointed out that in the case of Ismaul Ariff v. Mahomed Ghous, ⁹ in which their lordships of the Privy Council held that a plaintiff was entitled on proof of mere possession to obtain a declaration of title against a wrong doer, the plaintiff had not been dispossessed, but was in possession and that the decision in this case is therefore no authority for holding that a plaintiff, who has been dispossessed can recover without proof of title In Bombay, however, it was held in Pemraj v. Narayan, ¹⁰ that possession is a good title against all persons except the rightful owner and entitles the possessor to maintain enjoyment against any person other than such owner who dispossesses him ¹¹ In one case, the Bombay High Court seemed disposed to agree with the Calcutta High Court, for in Kalu v. Barua, ¹² it ruled that in an ejectment suit the defendant though a trespasser, is entitled to require the plaintiff to prove that he has a superior title But in Tuljaram v. Bamanji, ¹³ it was said that a person sued as a trespasser cannot without proof of his own right oust an apparent owner by pointing out some defect in the title of the latter The plaintiff in another case being in possession of certain land sued for a declaration that it belonged to him He failed to prove title to the land, but proved that he had been in possession of it for ten years, and had built a shed on it Held, that no declaration of the plaintiff's title could be made, but that on the authority of *Ismail Ariff v. Mohamed Ghous*¹ the plaintiff was lawfully entitled to the land and the shed thereon -

In Mahira, the rule laid down by the Calcutta High Court seemed formerly to prevail²

In Tukho v. Har Sahu,³ the question was raised but not decided. In this suit, which was one for the possession of immovable property the plaintiff proved that he and his predecessors in title had been in actual possession for thirty or forty years previous to his dispossession by the defendant. The defendant alleged but failed to prove that the plaintiff had put him out as a tenant. It will be seen from the case that the plaintiff was adverse. He also said - It seems to me that it is usually for the plaintiff who seeks redemption to prove his title. But I also hold that when possession for thirty or forty years is proved to have been peacefully enjoyed the person who has been dispossessed such plaintiff has to meet the presumption of law that the plaintiff's long possession indicates his ownership of the property. As the lower Court had erroneously regarded the plaintiff as only a licensee of the defendant he was remitted for disposal on the merits.

Evidence of title - A possession in the part of a property which is not shown to have commenced in writing is only an established fact and not proof of a superior title in another party.⁴ Possession for a long time of years in the absence of evidence to the contrary for plaintiff. A suit for damages for the value of fruit crops taken away by the defendant is a claim alleged to be in the plaintiff's possession and not a claim for a title. The plaintiff was in possession up to the date of the institution of the suit. It is not necessary for him to prove his title to the land unless the defendant shows a better title.⁵ A plaintiff is certainly entitled to a decree on proof of possession for more than twelve years.⁶

Pre-emption - A suit for pre-emption must embrace the whole property.⁷ A purchaser takes subject to all the equities of his vendor.⁸ As to a suit for a portion of the purchase money paid into Court where the decree has fallen through.⁹

Privacy—In Bengal it has been held that there is no right of privacy. It was ruled that a right to privacy was not a right inherent to property. It might be gained by prescription, grant or express local usage.¹ In Bombay it has been decided that, except in Gujarat, an invasion of privacy is not an actionable wrong.² In Madras, it has been laid down that the invasion of privacy by opening windows is not a wrong for which an action will lie.³ Illustration (b) to s 18, Act V of 1887 however, points out that in the North Western Provinces a right to privacy can be acquired by prescription and this has been held the law in the North Western Provinces.⁴ The law of the North Western Provinces is not dependent on the changed the arrangement of the range of the rights of privacy.⁵

legal right of suit is given to a neighbour on the other side of the road complete of loss of privacy.⁶

Privilege—A Judge is not liable for words spoken in office,⁷ and the same privilege extends to letters which a Judge in this country is bound to forward to the High Court.⁸ No suit will lie against a Magistrate acting judicially and with jurisdiction though carelessly and irregularly.⁹ Nor does a political Agent.¹⁰ A counsel is absolutely privileged for words spoken in the Queen v Christie.¹¹ It was held that a pleader or mooters is not liable for relying on the statement of his client he in good faith introduced defamatory matter in the pleadings and see ss 148—150 of the Evidence Act.

Defamatory and libellous expressions when used by a party in the course of a judicial proceeding either in the pleadings, or the conduct of the suit are not actionable.¹² And the rule in England is that neither party witness counsel jury nor judge can be put to answer civilly or criminally for words spoken in office.¹³ Thus where a witness said that a will was a rank forgery. Held that the statement was privileged and no action for slander would lie. Although the jury found that the words were not spoken by the defendant in good faith as a witness and that he spoke them as a volunteer.

Privacy.—In Bengal it has been held that there is no right of privacy. It was ruled that a right to privacy was not a right inherent to property. It might be gained by prescription, grant or express local usage. In Bombay, it has been decided that, except in Gujerat, an invasion of privacy is not an actionable wrong. In Madras, it has been laid down that an invasion of privacy by opening windows is not a wrong for which an action lies.

It is a right of privacy which prevails in various parts of the Provinces is a right which attaches to property, and a suit will lie to set aside such a document that a document is void under 77 and 24 of the Act. If a purchaser may bring a suit to set aside such a document, the same privilege extends to letters, registration of a fresh deed.

Privilege.—A Judge is not liable to a suit for a privilege. It is doubtful if the Courts have any jurisdiction to interfere with the same.

temporal suit cognizable. But a Civil Court can adjudicate on a suit of exclusive worship of an idol at a particular place set up by a caste. A suit will lie for an offence, even although there are no fees attached, to declare an exclusive right to perform a certain portion of religious worship in a Hindu temple and to recover dues, not voluntary offerings, for certain religious services performed, and if to determine the right thereto it becomes necessary to determine incidentally the right to perform certain religious services, the Court has jurisdiction to do so, and an injunction will be given against a person interfering with a right to give a crown and water at a religious festival.

also a suit by a Hindu for a perpetual injunction forbidding the Mahomedans to resort to a ghat on the Ganges and for a declaration of right to use it for religious purposes, will not lie¹. A right to officiate at funeral ceremonies is incapable of transfer and a suit in respect of it will not lie². A suit for a right of easement over a ghat used for religious purposes was held to be maintainable and defendants were restrained from using it for trading purposes³. A suit will lie for the exclusive right to the privilege of administering Purohitam to pilgrims restoring to Ramiswaram,⁴ is also a suit by worshippers to restrain a superintendent of a mosque from using it for purposes other than those for which it was intended to be used⁵ and a suit to restrain interference with a right of devotion in a mosque⁶. Khote Settlement Act—When entries of the rent payable by occupancy tenants have been duly made under s 17 of the Khote Settlement Act (Bombay Act I of 1889) they are final and conclusive evidence of the tenants liability which it is not open to a Civil Court to question.⁷ But this does not apply to an entry of a Survey officer specifying that an occupant, not a dharekari or privileged occupant should pay assessment and local fund cess only for the lands in his possession⁸, nor to the decision of a Survey officer determining the tenure on which a survey number is held and which can be reversed by a competent Court⁹, but it is binding upon the parties affected by it until reversed or modified.¹⁰ The Khote Settlement Act does not make the decision of rent final. S 17 only makes the entry, which is the result of the decision final and conclusive evidence. An appeal lies from the decision which can be revised under s 211 of the Land Revenue Code (Bombay Act V of 1899).¹¹ A decision of a Survey officer as to tenure is not final and when a Survey officer has entered the defendants in the Survey register as occupancy tenants, a suit will lie at the instance of the khote of the village to obtain a declaration that the lands were held by them on the dhara tenure, and that the defendants were ordinary tenants.¹² So an entry by a Survey officer that an occupancy tenant holds the land rent free is not final.¹³

tainable for recovery of the amount of stamp duty and penalty which plaintiff was compelled to pay on an instrument which the defendant was bound to pay under the Stamp Act¹

Right to Sue—The assent of a mere right to sue for damages has no cause of action. Thus, the purchaser of a right to sue for mesne profits cannot sue for them² see also note under s 60 cl (e)

Secretary of State—No action lies against the Secretary of State in respect of an act of State or of Sovereignty. No action can be based on any libel however malicious, contained in a resolution of Government³

Torts—The failure of an injured party to institute criminal proceedings does not deprive him of his right to bring a suit in the Civil Court to recover damages⁴

User—Mere user will not support a claim to exclusive possession⁵

Voluntary Associations—See *Advocate General v Devaker*⁶

Voluntary Payments—Voluntary payments give no cause of action. Thus, where A paid money in his own name to satisfy a decree against others, he could not get it back⁷. And where A a purchaser of B's title and B were afterwards sued for arrears due by B, and A paid to save the tenure from sale it was held he could not sue B for it—*I am Tuksh v Hindymonee*⁸. So also a shareholder voluntarily paying in arrears of revenue for a defaulting co-sharer who has a separate account under s 1, Act XI 1859 cannot claim to be reimbursed by the defaulter⁹. There is no general rule of equity to the effect that whoever having an interest in an estate makes a payment in order to save the estate obtains a charge on the estate and therefore in the absence of a statutory enactment a co-sharer who has paid the whole revenue and thus saved the estate does not by reason of such payment acquire a charge on the share of his defaulting co-sharer¹⁰. A has obtained the right title and interest of B in execution paid in a sum of money in another execution against C in which the interest of B and the sons of C was attached. Held that as there was nothing to show how B could be liable for C's debt the payment of A was voluntary and he could not recover from B¹¹. A obtained a decree against C and D. C hid as guardian of a minor got a decree against A for a certain sum and A deposited the amount but withdrew it in execution of his suit against C and D. Subsequently, C sued D for contribution on the ground that she had repaid her minor son the sum taken by A. Held it was a voluntary payment¹². Jan Choudhry,¹ was discussed and held not to apply. In that case a family estate was about to be sold under a decree against A's husband. A had a lien for dower on the estate, and, after vainly opposing the order to sell, deposited the amount decreed in Court under protest and with a declaration of bringing a regular suit to set aside the sale order, but she agreed that the sum should be handed over to the decree holder. Held, that the deposit into Court was to prevent a sale that would be injurious to A's rights, and the only voluntary act was the consent given that instead of the money remaining in Court, it should be paid over until the rights of the parties could be determined, and was not a voluntary payment.² Payment of the putni rent by the mortgagee of the taluk in order to avoid a sale for arrears of rent is not a voluntary payment, even though the mortgagee has inserted in the mortgage deed a stipulation for his protection in case such a sale should take place.³

No suit for vasilat lies in respect of profits derived from offerings to an idol. They are in the nature of voluntary payments intended for the person performing the worship.⁴

Water Cess. A suit will lie for the recovery of water cess levied from a tenant of water, and on whose lands it is to be used, but from which under s. 48 of the Irri. Act the jurisdiction of Civil Courts in a suit for the determination of the legality or otherwise of such levy depends upon whether the incidence of the rate is authorized by the provisions of the section. Under the condition precedent to levying the rate is not the fact ascertained by evidence whether the water in dispute has percolated from the canal, but the opinion of the Civil Officer that it has so percolated, he and not the Civil Court being made the judge of such percolation for the purposes of the Act.⁵ A landholder has a right to charge water cesses when his tenant cultivates a wet crop on dry land by means of water taken from the landlord's tank.⁶ In the United Provinces, under the Land Revenue Act, XIX of 1873, and Act VIII of 1873, no suit lies in a Civil Court to recover payment alleged to have been made in respect of irrigation dues in excess of what was properly leviable.⁷

10 No Court shall proceed with the trial of any suit in which the matter in issue is also directly and substantially in issue in a previously instituted suit between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim litigating under the same title where such suit is pending in the same or any other Court in British India having jurisdiction to grant the relief claimed, or in any Court beyond the limits of

British India established or continued by the Governor General in Council and having like jurisdiction, or before His Majesty in Council

Explanation —The pendency of a suit in a foreign Court does not preclude the Courts in British India from trying a suit founded on the same cause of action

This section applies to H C and Prov S C C

It reproduces with slight modifications in the wording, Section 12 of Act XIV of 1882

Proceed with the trial of—These words replace the word "try" and dispose of the argument put forward under the corresponding section of Act XIV of 1882 that it prohibited the institution of a second suit. In a suit for money the defendant had admitted money dealings but averred that the trial of an account would shew that the plaintiff was indebted to him. The Court dismissed the suit but decided to take an account against the plaintiff holding that he was not precluded by this section from suing for an account while the plaintiff's suit was pending.¹ Here the words are still more clear and it may be taken that this clause does not bar the institution of a second suit if the law requires such institution

Previously Instituted When two suits are pending in different Courts regarding the same subject matter priority of time is the proper guide in order to proceed. Thus A who was employed by B for the balance of an account filed a suit in Calcutta for an account, and for interest thereon. It was held that the latter suit must be tried first and that a suit for an account for one year does not bar a suit for interest thereon.² In a Madras case³ it was held that a proceeding under section 244 (section 47 of this code) was not a suit within the meaning of the corresponding sections of Act XIV of 1882

Foreign Court—The judgment of a foreign Court obtained on a decree of a Court in British India is no bar to the execution of the original decree.⁴

11 No Court shall try any suit or issue in which the matter directly and substantially in issue has been directly and substantially in issue in a former suit between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim, litigating under the same title, in a Court competent to try such subsequent suit or the suit in which such issue has been subsequently raised, and has been heard and finally decided by such Court.

Explanation 1—The expression "former suit" shall denote a suit which has been decided prior to the suit in question whether or not it was instituted prior thereto

Explanation II—For the purposes of this section the competence of a Court shall be determined irrespective of any provisions as to a right of appeal from the decision of such Court

Explanation III—The matter above referred to must in the former suit have been alleged by one party and either denied or admitted, expressly or impliedly, by the other

Explanation IV—Any matter which might and ought to have been made ground of defence or attack in such former suit shall be deemed to have been a matter directly and substantially in issue in such suit

Explanation V—Any relief claimed in the plaint, which is not expressly granted by the decree, shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to have been refused

Explanation VI—Where persons litigate bonâ fide in respect of a public right or of a private right claimed in common for themselves and others, all persons interested in such right shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to claim under the persons so litigating

Act XIV of 1882, section 13

This Section applies to H C and Prov S C C

Res Judicata—The section remains substantially as enacted in 1882 and in effect reproduces the old established law of England relating to Estoppel by record. The principle underlying this provision is long since settled. A matter once put in issue tried and decided in a competent Court of Justice yet by persons privy thereto, it presents itself on this Bill the complete exposition of the principle in narrow limits of cases we cannot yet dispense with a consideration of the older authorities

Since its first authoritative exposition in the Duchess of Kingston's case in the year 1776, a vast number of decisions of the Courts, both in England and in India, have been recorded in illustration of this principle of Res Judicata. These decisions are by no means easy of comprehensive analysis and various arrangements have been adopted by authors of Indian text books. Having before us in this work the single purpose of assisting in the interpretation of the text it will be perhaps convenient to closely follow the wording of the section. Every plea of Res Judicata made under this section must be submitted to four test questions —

- 1 Has the matter in issue been directly and substantially in issue in another suit?
- 2 Was that suit between the parties now litigating or between their privies?
- 3 Is the Court in which that other suit was decided of jurisdiction competent to try the present suit?
- 4 Was the matter in issue heard and finally decided in the other suit?

Matter—The meaning of this word is rendered clear by explanation 11, which embodies the rule of English law that when the allegation on the record is uncertain, there is no Res Judicata.¹ Such allegations contained in statements in the pleadings may be relevant in a subsequent proceeding by way of admission, but this Explanation offers a preliminary obstacle to their operation as Res Judicata by requiring that they shall have been denied or admitted by the other party.² If such statements satisfy this test, it will still have to be considered whether they were directly and substantially in issue or whether they were in fact immaterial or irrelevant. The same explanation further excludes all obiter dicta, or observations of the Court upon matters not put in issue by the parties and unnecessary to the determination of the suit.³

The first real difficulty encountered is in the meaning of the words,

Directly and substantially in issue—It seems sufficiently clear that the Courts are precluded by this section from trying not only any suit but any issue in which the matter to be determined has been directly and substantially in issue in another suit (not another suit or issue) between the same parties and which has been heard and finally decided by a competent Court. There is seldom room for doubt as to whether the matter under discussion is directly and substantially in issue in the suit or issue being or about to be tried for not only the suit in course of trial itself, but any separate single issue raised by the parties thereto will be barred if the matter to be determined therein has been directly and substantially in issue in another suit. The real difficulty lies in deciding the question whether the said matter was or was not directly and substantially in issue in the former suit. The reason of this is that there may have been issues raised and tried in that former suit but not essential to the judgment or decree therein, which do not fall within the meaning of the words "directly and substantially in issue in the suit and a decision in respect of such issues cannot operate as res judicata. The question amounts practically to this—What matters, though embodied in issues heard or determined in a former suit, may be disregarded in considering the plea of Res Judicata as falling outside the meaning of the words "directly and substantially in issue in a former suit"?

This question may be separately considered, (a) In suits brought on the same claim or demand as the first suit, when the first judgment operates as an absolute bar to the second suit, and (b) In suits in which a new claim or demand is made. In these last cases the other judgment amounts to Res Judicata in respect of issues essential to the decree and such issues only.¹ This is clearly stated in the judgment of an American Court reported in the Law Times of 14th July 1877.²

Before considering the reported Ind in cases we may glance at the general rule as stated by the courts in England. In the *Duchess of Kingston's case*³ the unanimous opinion of the Court was thus expressed by the Chief Justice:—
From the variety of cases relative to judgments being given in evidence in civil suits these two deductions seem to follow as generally true—first that the judgment of a Court of concurrent jurisdiction directly upon the point is as a plea or is evidence a bar conclusive between the same parties upon the same matter directly or indirectly in another Court; secondly that the judgment of a Court of exclusive jurisdiction directly upon the point is in like manner conclusive upon the same matter between the same parties coming incidentally in question in another Court for a different purpose but neither the judgment of a concurrent or exclusive jurisdiction is evidence of the truth of the facts alleged or of the legal consequences thereof though within the jurisdiction or of the truth of the facts alleged or of the legal consequences thereof referred by the court to the facts. These very words were quoted in an appeal from the High Court of Admiralty by the Lordships of the Privy Council who added:—There is nothing technical nor peculiar to the law of England in the rule so stated. It is recognized by the Civil Law and is perfectly consistent with the second section of the Code of Procedure under ed clear by explanation II, the allegation on the record legations contained in state quent proceeding by way of obstacle to their operation as Res Judicata by requiring that they shall have been denied or admitted by the other party.* If such statements satisfy this test, it will still have to be considered whether they were directly and substantially in issue or whether they were in fact immaterial or irrelevant. The same explanation further excludes all obiter dicta or observations of the Court upon matters not put in issue by the parties and unnecessary to the determination of the suit.[†]

Directly and substantially in issue — It seems sufficiently clear that the Courts are precluded by this section from trying not only any suit but any issue in which the matter to be determined has been directly and substantially in issue in another suit not another suit or issue between the same parties and which has been heard and finally decided by a competent Court. against B and C for money due to him on a joint contract, but the judgment remained unsatisfied. A then sued B, C and D for the same money alleging that B and C had entered into the contract as agents on behalf of D, and it was held that the suit was barred.¹ The dismissal of a suit in which the plaintiff sued the defendants as principals was held to bar a second suit on the same contract, charging the same defendants as responsible agents under a trade usage.² But it often happens that the cause of action in the second suit, though similar to that in an earlier suit is not in reality identical. So in *Nilmadhav v. Brajo Nath*³ the plaintiff had sued the defendant for the rent of certain land. The defendant pleaded that part of the land was in the plaintiff's possession, but failed to prove his contention. The plaintiff sued again for the rent of subsequent years, and the defendant raised the same objection. Held, that the question was not Pes Judicati as the cause of action being for the rent of subsequent years, was different and the question of the area of the land in the defendant's possession had not been definitely determined in the first suit.

In *Modhu Sudan v Promod Nath*⁴ the plaintiff's predecessor in title sued a Municipality for possession of certain land on which the Municipality had stacked stones and the suit was dismissed. Subsequently the plaintiff sued a purchaser from the Municipality for ejectment from and declaration of title to the same land. It was held that the second suit was not barred on the ground that the plaintiff's claim to possession of the land as owner after its relinquishment by the Municipality was essentially different to his cause of action in the first suit against the Municipality, which had then maintained its right to possession under the provisions of a special Act (Bengal Act III of 1864 sect. 10).

In Abdul the principal defendants alleging principal defendants. It was held that the second suit was not barred, the cause of action in the first suit being the refusal of defendants 3 to 7 to execute the deed of sale and in the second the resistance of the principal defendants to the plaintiff's taking possession of the property.

In Lalit Mohan v. Bala Devi,⁶ maintenance against one defendant. Another suit for arrears of maintenance maintainable and the plaintiff's case

In 1867 a Hindu widow obtained a decree for maintenance against her husband's coparceners but the decree created no charge on the land. The family estate has now passed to a son of the deceased husband and the question arises whether the widow's charge extends to the land.

A plaintiff, Vinayak, obtained possession of certain land from one Balu in execution of a decree of a Civil Court. He then leased the land to Balu. On expiry of the lease, Balu refused to vacate and Vinayak sued again for possession. Held, that the suit would lie, since a fresh cause of action accrued to Vinayak on the refusal of the Defendant to vacate on the expiry of the lease.¹

Decrees for redemption—There has been some conflict of decisions on the question whether, notwithstanding the institution of a suit and the passing of a decree for redemption, a subsequent suit for redemption of the same mortgage can be brought when the first decree has not been executed. In *Vedapuratti v Vallabha Ialaya Raja*² a Full Bench of the Madras High Court considered most of the reported cases³ on the subject at great length and held that where a suit for redemption has been instituted and a decree for redemption passed therein but not executed, a subsequent suit is not maintainable for the redemption of the same mortgage. In this case, however, the decision of the Allahabad Full Bench in *Sita Ram v Madho Lal*⁴ does not appear to have been before the Court. In this last case the same question was fully considered and the second suit was held not to be barred. It certainly seems reasonable that a mortgagor should not be placed in a worse position as against the mortgagee merely because he has obtained a decree against him.

On appeal to the Privy Council in *Amanat Bibi v Indat Husain*⁵ it was held that a suit for redemption was not barred by the dismissal of two earlier suits, one to establish a sub proprietary right, the other for possession on a statutory right.

We now come to the class of cases to which Explanation IV refers, where all possible claims have not been raised in the other suit. This explanation is only applicable where the subject matter of the two suits or issues is identical.⁶ In the case of Srimat Raja Periya Odaya Taver v Katama Natchiar,⁷ the widow of one A sued B for possession of A's estate, alleging that the property was the self acquired property of A, and that a will relied on by B was a forgery. B alleged that the property was undivided family property, and that he did not rely upon A's will as a testamentary disposition. The widow's claim was decreed on the ground that the property was self-acquired. B then brought a suit against A to recover back possession as devisee under A's will, and this was held to be barred.

In delivering judgment Lord Westbury stated the law on this point clearly¹

Alternative claim; not raised in first suit. An extract from this judgment was cited with approval by the Judicial Committee in the later case of *Tekaitni Doorga Persad v Doorga Kunwari*² in which A (claiming as heiress of her deceased son) sued B for possession of an estate. Defence, that B was the heir according to the Mitakshara law, and that he had been installed on the gudde according to ancient usage. The plaintiff got a decree in execution of which she entered into possession. Then B, claiming, under a family custom, to be the next heir in succession to A's son, sued A for possession of the same property, and also for a declaration that on A's death he (B) would become entitled to the property under the family custom. In the second case, the plaintiff (B) denied that he had set up the family custom in his defence in the previous suit; the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council found that he had set up the family custom in the previous suit, but assuming that he had not done so, he ought to have done so, and his suit for possession was barred.³

³ In support of their decision, the Judicial Committee cited Lord Westbury's dictum in Srimut Raja v Katama Natchiar, (1866) "When a plaintiff claims an estate, and the defendant being in possession resists that claim, he is bound to resist it upon all the grounds that it is possible for him according to his knowledge then to bring forward," and relied on the principle laid

This case illustrates the distinction with which we have been dealing between old and new claims brought forward in the second suit.¹ Dealing with B's further claim that he was presumptively entitled to succeed on the death of A the judgment in Barr v.—“As to the second portion o have it declared that the ul is void and invalid as against the reversionary heirs, the plaintiff must prove that he is the person presumptively entitled to succeed upon the death of the defendant. For although the plaintiff is barred by the former adjudication from setting it up for the purp the life of defendant No her death he, if he survi Woomatara Debia v Unn 1,500 bighas of land, alleging that they were situated outside the boundaries of her talook, but that she was entitled to them by virtue of having taken possession of the lands and brought them under cultivation. The suit was dismissed. A second suit by her, claiming 770 of the 1,500 bighas of lands actually lying within the boundaries of her talook, was held to be barred. Clearly this alternative plea should have been raised in the first suit. In *Deno Bundhoo Choudhury v Kristo Monnee*² the first suit was brought by a Hindu widow against the husband of her deceased daughter for possession of certain property, which had belonged at one time, admittedly, to the plaintiff's husband. She said that the defendant claimed to hold the land under an alleged deed of gift from the plaintiff's husband to his daughter (the defendant's wife) and she alleged that the deed of gift was a forgery. That suit was dismissed on the ground that the deed was genuine, and the widow brought a second suit claiming the property as the heir of her deceased daughter. Held, that the suit was barred. In a suit on a general balance of accounts the defendant omitted to claim by way of set-off certain monies alleged by him in a second suit for recovery as received by the plaintiff on his behalf. The second suit was held to be barred.⁴

In Soorjomonee Dabee v Suddanund Mohapatte,¹ the first suit was by the son against his father and an intended devisee under his father's will to have it declared (in substance) that the father had no power to devise the property as it was all ancestral, or had been acquired with the income of the ancestral property. The declaration was granted as to the ancestral property but the suit was dismissed as to the acquired property. A second suit against the devisee after the father's death to recover possession of the acquired property was barred.

In Krishna Behary Roy v Brojeswari,² A sued B (a putni) to set aside a putni granted by the adoptive mother of A (before the adoption of A), on the ground that she had only a widow's estate. Defence, that A had not been adopted. C intervened and was made a defendant to contest the adoption. It was held that the adoption was good, but that the putni had been properly granted. C appealed on the question of adoption but the decision of the lower court was affirmed and it was held, that a subsequent suit by C to set aside the adoption was barred.

In Pittapur Ray v Buchi Sittay,³ the first suit had been brought by Sittay's husband against the Rajah's father Venkata, claiming possession of the zemindary of Pittapur as the elder (adopted) brother of Venkata. The adoption was denied and the suit was dismissed on failure to prove the adoption. Sittay's husband appealed but the case was compromised, and he withdrew his appeal. Some years afterwards he died, leaving one son who died, leaving his mother Sittaya. The second suit was brought by the Rajah, claiming a declaration that he was entitled to succeed to Sittaya's son's estate on her death. He based his claim on the fact that Sittaya's husband was the adopted brother of his (the Rajah's) father. Held, that the suit was barred.

And where a decree is couched in general terms, the extent to which it ought to be regarded as Res Judicata can only be determined by ascertaining what were the real matters in controversy². In order to effect this, the pleadings³ as well as the judgment⁴ in the other suit must be looked at, and it has been laid down in a Privy Council case⁵ that to support the plea of Res judgment, that decision is Res Judicata between the parties on the question as to the rate of rent¹ but unless that question is clearly in issue the decision will not so operate²

Questions of law—In determining whether a matter is Res Judicata by reason of a previous judgment, the question is not whether that judgment was right, but whether it did or did not finally decide the matter in issue³. It is immaterial whether the decision is or is not sound law,⁴ or that it has been disapproved in a later case by a higher authority⁵. An erroneous decision on a pure question of law in a previous suit may operate as *Res Judicata*⁶. But it has been held that when a decree has been set aside on appeal no issue determined by that decree can operate as Res Judicata even if the Appellate court disposes of the case on other grounds⁷.

seen a finding between co defendants which is not necessary for the determination of the suit is not res judicata.¹ A finding on an issue between the plaintiff and some other parties to the first suit will not bar a suit by the same plaintiff against those defendants who were not concerned in or by that issue.²

Probate—Section 41 of the Evidence Act sets out concisely and definitely those judgments in rem which amount to conclusive proof in any subsequent suit.³ A grant of probate is conclusive proof of the title of the executors and of the genuineness of the will admitted to Probate so long as the grant remains unreversed,⁴ but the refusal of a grant does not bar a subsequent suit by the applicant to establish his rights under the will.⁵ Similarly a grant of letters of administration to a defendant in preference to the plaintiff is no bar to a suit by the plaintiff to determine his rights of inheritance.⁶ A will held not to be a forgery may be impugned in a subsequent suit as invalid.⁷

The only judgment that can be put forward in a Court of Probate in support of a plea of res judicata is a judgment of a Court of Probate⁸ and the proceedings must be put in evidence.⁹

Courts of concurrent jurisdiction, and that "in order to make the decision of one Court final and conclusive in another Court, it must be a decision of a Court which would have had jurisdiction over the matter in the subsequent suit in which the first decision is given in evidence as conclusive."

The two Courts must have concurrent jurisdiction as regards the pecuniary limits as well as the subject matter,¹ and the extent of the jurisdiction of course depends on that of the Court in which the first suit was instituted² at the time the first suit was brought³ so that for the purposes of this section a rise in the value of the subject matter after plaint filed need not be considered even though the Court ceased to be the proper Court to try that suit so far as pecuniary jurisdiction was concerned.

The plea of res judicata should be given effect to if the Court, which passed the decree in the first suit is a Court of jurisdiction competent to try the second suit, irrespective of its inability to entertain it owing to the existence of another Court with preferential jurisdiction.⁴

Right of Appeal—Explanation II, newly added to this Code, definitely settles a point on which the High Courts differed⁵ under Act XIV of 1885, sect. 13, and in determining the question of "competence" it is no longer necessary to consider the right of appeal from the Court in which the "other" suit was tried. In considering the jurisdiction of a Court to entertain any particular suit, the nature of the claim and the matter involved therein are to be looked at: the defence raised is immaterial to such an inquiry.⁶

Consent of parties—The consent of litigants cannot give a Court jurisdiction which it does not enjoy,⁷ but it seems that a party may in some cases be estopped by his acquiescence in earlier proceedings.⁸

On an application for execution of a decree, the Court is not competent to try finally whether the applicant is the legitimate son of the deceased decree holder, and a decision of the question on such application will not prevent its being raised in a subsequent suit—Abdoonissa v. Aemeroonissa, (1877) 1 R. 41 A., 75.

The rule in England is that nothing shall be intended to be out of the Presumption ■ to jurisdiction of a superior Court, but that which specijurisdiction ally appears to be so and nothing is intended to be within the jurisdiction of an inferior Court but that which is expressly alleged

A party, who relies upon the decision of an inferior tribunal must be prepared to show that the proceedings were within its jurisdiction¹ and this rule has been quoted and followed in India². The Chartered High Courts and the Chief Courts of the Punjab and British Burma are probably the only Indian Courts, which may be regarded as superior Courts in applying this rule³.

Declaratory Decree—For the purposes of jurisdiction the value of a suit for a mere declaratory decree must be taken what it would be, if the suit were one for possession of the property⁴. Where in a suit for enhancement of rent, the plaintiff failed to prove notice of enhancement but the Court enquired into and gave a declaratory decree as to his right to enhance, such decree is decisive of the right in a subsequent suit for enhancement of rent of the same tenure⁵.
Where a person having previously obtained a decree declaratory of his title sues his co sharer, who is bound by the decree to recover arrears, the previous decree operates as res judicata regards the title of the plaintiff⁶. The dismissal of a suit for the declaration of plaintiff's right to receive rent from a tenant of a portion of an estate cannot be pleaded as an estoppel in a suit to establish plaintiff's general right as proprietor of the whole estate⁷.

Revenue Courts—The finding of a Revenue Court on a matter exclusively reserved by the legislature for their decision will operate as res judicata in a Civil suit subsequently brought in a Civil Court,⁸ but in proceedings of a civil nature such as a suit for a declaration of proprietary right, the decision of a Court of Revenue on a question of title cannot omit the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts to decide the same question¹. And this rule applies even where the decision was necessary for the disposal of the proceedings before the Revenue Officer².

Dismissal of a suit by Mamlatdar—A possessory suit filed in the Mamlatdar's Court was dismissed by the Mamlatdar on the merits. The plaintiff thereupon filed another suit under s 9 of the Specific Relief Act, I of 1877, in a Civil Court which allowed the decree and passed a decree in his favour. Held, that having regard to sec 18 of the Mamlatdar's Courts Act (Bombay Act 111 of 1876) the Mamlatdar's decision could not operate as *res judicata*³.

Civil Court's jurisdiction under special Acts—An award as to the apportionment of compensation under Act V of 1870, sec 40 is final and binding on the parties in whose presence it is passed,⁴ but a decision under sec 39 of Act X of 1870, is not res judicata in respect of the title to portions of the property not taken up under the Act⁵. The dismissal of an application under sec 63 of the Administrator General's Act, II of 1874, for an order for the payment of money,⁶ and the dismissal of an application under sec 53 of the National Debt Act, 1870 for the transfer of stock⁷ will bar a subsequent application. Otherwise, where an application for the guardianship of a minor is made under Act XI of 1861⁸ the decision would not prevent a regular suit for recovery of possession of the minor⁹.

An entry of a record prepared under sec 108 of the Land Revenue Code (Bom Act V of 1879) by the Survey Officer describing certain lands as khoti is by force of sec. 17 of the Khoti Act (Bom Act 1 of 1880) conclusive and final evidence of the liability thereby established, and shuts out the evidence of a prior decision under sec 40 of the Evidence Act otherwise relevant (as proof of res judicata) whereby a Civil Court adjudged the land to be dhara.¹

A Collector's decision under Sec 13, Act III of 1895, as to whether lands are the emoluments of an office operates as res judicata.²

Under Act VIII of 1876 (B C) a suit is maintainable in the Civil Court to determine a question of right and title, it is not barred by Sec 149 cl (d) of that Act.

Special Courts—Where a suit was dismissed in the Agency Court at Vizagapatam and the dismissal upheld by the Governor of Madras in Council on the ground of political expediency the Privy Council held that no such consideration could bar the plaintiff's legal right to have his rights determined by a Civil Court.³

Small Cause Courts—Are not Courts of exclusive jurisdiction and the consent of parties cannot give them jurisdiction to decide questions relating to immoveable property.⁴

Criminal Courts.—No fact found proved in a Criminal Court shall on that account be taken to be proved in a Civil Court.⁵ The finding of a Criminal Court that A had abducted B is not res judicata in an action for damages brought against A by B's father.⁶ The adjudication by a Magistrate that a street is a highway does not bar a regular suit to declare it is private property,⁷ but his decision as to possession under sec 530 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is final.⁸ When a High Court directs that criminal proceedings be taken against a party to a suit before it for perjury or forgery, the High Court has no power on an appeal being preferred against that decision to direct that such proceedings be stayed until the appeal shall have been heard and determined.⁹ It is not an invariable rule that criminal proceedings should be stayed during the pendency of civil litigation regarding the same subject matter.¹⁰

Foreign Court—The word "Court" includes a Foreign Court.¹¹

Heard and decided.—There must have been a decision upon the matter alleged to be res judicata;¹² the other suit will not operate as a bar if it was held that a compromise and consent decree in a right of way case could not bind the public at large, although by the law of Scotland one person is allowed to represent the public in such an action, and the result of a contested action is binding on the public. This decision was followed in *Keshava v Rudran*⁴ where the first suit was decided on the plaintiff's oath with the defendant's consent. The Scotch case has been considered and explained in the English Court of Appeal where a judgment by consent or default has been held to be as effective as an estoppel between the parties as a judgment in a contested case.⁵

In Madras it has been still more recently held that as between the parties to a suit a decree arrived at after taking an oath on a question of fact is a final adjudication.⁶

The principle of Res Judicata has been held to apply to a case in which the plaintiff's first suit was partly gone into and then dismissed for default.⁷

Fraud—It was held under Act XIV of 1882 that the corresponding section did not bar a suit to set aside an ex parte decree on the ground of fraud where the plaintiff has not appealed against an order rejecting an application to set it aside.⁸

Jurisdiction—Where the first suit has been dismissed on the ground of jurisdiction, the second suit will not be barred,⁹ even though the plaintiff might have given the Court jurisdiction by obtaining a certificate under the Pensions Act of 1871¹⁰, or by applying to the High Court,¹¹ or to the Collector.¹² liability of one only was determined, and a decree given against him, a second suit against the other defendant was held not to be barred¹. Where the name of the intervenor in a suit was ordered to be struck off the record, but by mistake was not, a subsequent suit by the intervenor will not be barred;² nor will a subsequent suit be barred where the decree in the first suit expressly reserves all questions between the intervenor and the plaintiff in the second suit³.

Review.—The dismissal of an application for review will bar a suit to set aside the decree on the same grounds⁴.

... has been set aside can operate as an estoppel as regards matters not referred to in it are necessary to make the appellate decree possible⁵.

Questions of Law.—After some conflict of opinion, it has been held that a decision in a suit can operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit on the dictum that a point was decided in the first suit. A point of law decided in a suit is a fact that the decision of a competent Court was founded on an erroneous view of the law does not affect its validity as evidence in subsequent proceedings⁶.

Interlocutory orders and orders in execution-proceeding.—These do not come within the language of the section but in some cases the doctrine of res judicata is applied⁷. Such orders, are, if not appealed from, binding on the parties to the suit in all subsequent proceedings in that suit, on principles analogous to those of res judicata strictly so called. Thus the decree will bar a suit to set aside a decree on declining (though erroneous) ground by limitation is final, if not a decree in execution proceedings.

No such adjudication can take place where the plaintiff's suit has wholly failed¹

There is no res judicata in a dispute between parties all of whom claim under the person in whose favour the decision in the previous suit was given²

Co-plaintiffs On the 8th February 1889, the defendant sold to the plaintiff under a registered conveyance, land of which he was not in possession, and the purchase money was paid. The plaintiff and the defendant sued for possession but failed on the ground that the vendor had no title. The plaintiff then sued on the 7th February, 1892, to recover with interest the purchase money and the amount of costs incurred by him in the previous litigation, held, that the defendant was not entitled to give evidence of this alleged title, as that matter was *res judicata*³

661 A suit instituted in 1879 against a minor was compromised by the plaintiff and guardian ad litem and a decree for the plaintiff was passed by consent. In 1882, the minor sued by his next friend to have the consent decree set aside on the ground that it had been obtained by fraud practised on the guardian ad litem. That suit was dismissed. In 1894, an application was unsuccessfully made in the original suit objecting that the compromise had been entered into without the sanction of the Court. The minor having attained majority now sued to have the consent decree set aside on the ground that it had not been sanctioned by the Court. Held, (1) that the consent decree had not ipso facto sanctioned the compromise, and that the suit was not barred by the order dismissing the application in 1894, (2) that it was barred by the decree in the suit of 1882 as the want of sanction might and ought to have been made ground of attack in that suit—Arunachalam v Meyappa, (1894) 21 Mad, 91, but see Veerana v Muthu Kumara (1904) 27 Mad, 192. Where it was alleged for the appellant before the Privy Council that the Judges of the three Courts below were mistaken in saying that a certain bond had not been set up by him in a previous litigation, whereas in fact it had been so set up and that the decree was wrong in not dealing with it, held, that no decree might have been corrected if not in accordance with the judgment or appealed against when both judgment and decree were wrong and their lordships could not go behind such decree when neither of such courses had been adopted—Sri Gopal v Pirithi Singh (1902) 6 Cal W N, 840, L R, 29 I. A, 118.

Suits held not barred A decree in a suit for redemption of a usufructuary mortgage, not being a conditional decree under s 92 of the Transfer of Property Act, but simply dismissing the suit on the ground that the mortgagor had not, prior to its institution, paid or tendered the whole of the mortgage money at a time authorised by the deed did not have the effect

Explanation V—The following decisions under the corresponding explanation No III of Act XIV of 1882, may still be of service

In Luteefooniss v Lu kee noonce,¹ the first suit was for possession of land and wasit from 1253 the date of plaintiff's dispossession. Decree for possession and wasit from the filing of the plaint. Second suit for wasit from 1253 to filing of plaint, held barred as res judicata. A sued for possession of property and his suit was dismissed, though he had proved a title to one third, with leave to bring another suit for the one third. It was held that the leave was inoperative and the decision was res judicata in regard to the one third.² A suit for possession and mesne profits up to the date of the suit only was held not to bar a subsequent suit for mesne profits accruing after the date of suit.³ Where a suit has been brought for possession of immovable property and for mesne profits, both before and after suit, the mere omission of the Court to adjudicate upon the claim for future mesne profits will not by reason of section 13 Expl III (Act XIV of 1882) operate as a bar to a subsequent suit for mesne profits accruing due after the institution of the former suit.⁴

A suit was instituted for possession and mesne profits. A decree for possession only was given. A second suit was instituted for the same mesne profits and for mesne profits for a subsequent period. Held, that the claim for mesne profits prior to the institution of the fresh suit was barred.⁵ A sued for future maintenance, but in the decree, founded on a compromise, the date of payment was not given, and it could not be executed. It was held a of foreclosure or of res judicata.—Dondh Bahalur v Tek Narain (1899) 21 All, 251. Where a mortgagee in suing upon his mortgage included in his plaint certain property which was not included in the mortgage deed and this fact was overlooked by the defendant, and when while the judgment declared 'that a decree be given against the hypothecated estate,' in the decree the property affected was described as the property described in the plaint. Held that the decree must mean the hypothecated property mentioned in the plaint and that s. 13 (Act XIV of 1882) did not conclude the defendant from subsequently suing to recover the property wrongly included in the plaint.—Ram Chander v Kondo, (1900) 22 All, 443. second suit would not lie.¹ A sued to sell certain property in execution of a decree. He withdrew the suit without obtaining leave to bring another suit. He sued again to sell the same property in execution of another decree, held, that the second suit was not barred, Expt III applying only to a decree which does not expressly grant the relief applied for.² Certain partners who had been parties in a previous partnership suit sued on the allegation that the partnership account had been adjusted by an Amin in the previous partnership suit, and that the debts and dues of all parties had been adjusted therein. They therefore prayed for the recovery of the amount due to them under the Amin's adjustment, held, that the suit was not barred under Expt II or Expt III to section 13 Act XIV of 1882.³ A decree awarded a plaintiff possession of land together with mesne profits. Plaintiff subsequently applied in execution for delivery of the land and for mesne profits. The Court directed plaintiff to be put in possession of the land, but passed no order with regard to mesne profits. Plaintiff subsequently made another application for mesne profits, held that the application was not barred.⁴

issue is no more a bar to a future suit than it would be, if that judgment were reversed by the Court of Appeal.

Where the first suit A v. B for damages for cutting down trees was dismissed B did not cut down the round that he had failed subsequent suit A v. B for barred as res judicata.⁵

Explanation VI—The insertion of the words public right seems to secure the application of this explanation to suits which may be brought under section 91 for relief in cases of public nuisances. This addition in conjunction with section 91 renders it possible for a decree to be obtained apparently binding upon all persons interested as members of the public and in the event of a consent decree being obtained in such a suit, the Court in India will no doubt reconsider the House of Lords case of *Jenkins v Robertson*⁶ and decide whether such a decree arrived at without judicial consideration, can bind the general public.

Private right claimed in common—In suits of this kind leave must be obtained from the Court under O II s 8, so there is a simple test by which to ascertain whether any particular case comes within this explanation.⁷ The explanation applies to an easement or other right claimed by a number of persons under a common title or custom, but not to a prescriptive right claimed by

This section seems to have been inserted to give effect to the provisions of section 42 to 45 of Act XIV of 1859, which reproduces the provisions of sections 42 to 45 of Act XIV of 1859, making it imperative for a plaintiff to include in his suit the whole of his claim, and prohibiting the joinder of certain causes of action without the leave of the Court first had and obtained. These provisions having been relegated to the schedule to this Act, this substantive and definite enactment has been considered necessary to secure their proper enforcement, in addition to section 121 of the Code and definition of "Rules" Page 30 Ante Act XIV of 1882, sect. 14. This section embodies the English law¹ and the old section has been altered and added to by the compilers of this Code.

A "foreign judgment" and a "foreign Court" are defined in clause 2 p 11 ante.

This section definitely enacts that a foreign judgment shall be conclusive except in the instances mentioned.

Competent jurisdiction—Clause 14 post provides that the competency of the foreign tribunal shall be presumed upon the production of a certified copy. In several Madras cases, it has been held that where the defendants had taken the chance of a judgment in their favour in the Foreign Court, they were estopped from afterwards pleading want of jurisdiction,² but these decisions must no doubt be regarded in the light of the peculiar circumstances in respect of which they were given, and not as conflicting with the general rule that consent of parties cannot give a Court jurisdiction which it does not in fact enjoy. A judgment by consent in the British Court has been held to be no bar to a suit in the Bombay Civil Courts on the ground that the foreign Court was not of competent jurisdiction.³

Not given on the merits—In England, when a suit is based on the judgment of a foreign Court of competent jurisdiction which was not obtained by fraud, such judgment must be presumed to be right and the same result is achieved in British India by this section. No irregularity can be objected to so long as the proceedings do not offend against English views of substantial justice.⁴

Under Act XIV of 1887, sect. 14 a discretion was given to Courts in India to inquire into the merits of judgments of certain Asiatic and African Courts, but that provision has been omitted from this Code.⁵ Proviso (b) does not sanction a re-opening of the enquiry before the foreign Court nor can a judgment be impeached on grounds which could have been but were not taken in the foreign Court.⁶

But if the cause of action did not arise nor the defendant reside within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the foreign Court when the suit was brought the judgment will be no bar.⁷ A judgment passed against a British subject in absentem by a foreign Court to which he has not submitted himself will not support a suit.⁸

The following decisions under Act XIV of 1882 may be worth noting—

The decree of a foreign Court cannot directly affect land situated in British

India.¹ An Act of State by a foreign power is not analogous to a foreign judgment.²

The mere fact that a suit is pending in a foreign Court at the time the suit is instituted in this country is no bar.³ A foreign judgment on matters in form only will not bar a suit in this country on the merits.⁴ In a suit on a foreign judgment the plaintiff cannot recover more than appears on the face of the judgment and when such judgment is silent as to interest he cannot make the defendant liable for interest on the amount of the English judgment.⁵ When a foreign judgment on which the action purports to be brought is not a judgment for an ascertained sum of money, it cannot constitute a foundation for an action.⁶ The judgment of a foreign Court obtained on a decree in British India is no bar to execution of the original decree.⁷

An order under s. 12 of the Arbitration Act, (52 and 53 Vict., c. 49) enforcing an award made in England is not such a judgment that a suit in a Court in this country can be instituted on it as on a foreign judgment.⁸

The Courts in India treat a call order made by the Court of Chancery in England upon a contributory of a Company registered in England, and being wound up under the Court of Chancery, as a foreign judgment and will not allow the liability of a defendant sued upon such order to be disputed, unless it be shown that the Court had no jurisdiction to make the order or that the defendant had no notice of it or that it is not in its nature a final order.⁹

claim under O XVI r 99 is a fresh suit, so that where by reason of a change in the law as to the mode of valuing suits for the purpose of jurisdiction between the date of the original suit and the claim the Court that dealt with the original suit ceases to have jurisdiction over the subject matter of the claim that Court cannot try the claim¹

Valuation of suits—By chapter 3 Act VII of 1887, the ordinary jurisdiction of Judges and Subordinate Judges extends subject to the present section, to all original suits, that of Munsifs to all such suits in which the subject matter in dispute does not exceed one thousand rupees and an appeal lies to the District Judge where the amount or value of the subject matter in dispute (in the original suit) does not exceed Rs 5000. The valuation of a suit for the purposes of stamp duty and the valuation of the subject matter of the suit for the purpose of determining the jurisdiction of the Court may be different. Thus, an appeal to a District Judge against a decree in a suit for property of the value of more than Rs 5000 will be set aside in a special appeal though the valuation for the purpose of stamp duty may have been less than Rs 5000 and though the first appeal may have been heard by consent of the parties.² But now s 8, Act VII of 1887 (the Suits Valuation Act) provides that where in suits other than those referred to in the Court Fees Act 1870 s 7, paras v, vi, and ix and para x cl (1) (i.e. suits for possession of lands and houses, for pre-emption to redeem or to close a mortgage, and for specific performance of a contract) all Court fees are payable the value is determinable for the computation of Court fees and the value for purposes of jurisdiction shall be the same.³ It has been ruled that this section applies to Appellate Courts as well as to Courts of First Instance so where in a suit of the description mentioned in s 8 Act VII of 1887 the plaintiff valued his claim at Rs 664 for the computation of Court fees and at Rs 14000 for the purposes of jurisdiction held that the appeal from the decree of the Court of first instance lay to the District Court and not to the High Court.⁴

Questions of jurisdiction whether with reference to the nature of the suit or the pecuniary limits of the claim are matters to be governed by the statements contained in the plaint. The valuation of the claim is preferred by the plaintiff and not as set up by the plea in defence would govern the action not only for the purposes of the original Court but also for the purposes of appeal and throughout the litigation.⁵ But when the plaintiff fixes a certain sum as the amount of his claim only approximately or tentatively and prays that the amount of his claim may be ascertained in the course of the suit the amount fixed by the Court to be due to him must be regarded as the value of the original suit for the purpose of determining the forum of appeal.⁶

Accounts—The plaintiff in a suit for accounts must state the amount at which he values the relief sought, but he is free to fix it as he thinks proper.⁷ When therefore, the approximate amount of the claim was stated in the plaint to be Rs 510, that must be taken to be the value of the subject matter of the suit for purposes of jurisdiction⁸ and valuation of a suit for an account should not be allowed to be increased so as to oust the jurisdiction of the Court¹ According to s 8 of the Suits Valuation Act (VI of 1887) in suits for taking an account the Court fee stamp and jurisdiction are both determined by the amount of claim as fixed by the plaintiff

Adoption suit—The value for the purposes of jurisdiction of a suit to set aside an adoption is not the value of the property which may possibly change hands if the adoption be set aside, but the value put upon his claim by the plaintiff² For the purpose of determining the jurisdiction over a suit by a reversioner to set aside an adoption, the loss which would accrue to the adopted son, should the adoption be declared invalid, is the measure of the value of the subject matter of the suit³

Administrative suit—The plaintiff filed an administration suit in the Court of a Subordinate Judge of the Second Class, valuing the relief claimed at Rs 130. The Subordinate Judge found that the property in suit was worth over a lakh of rupees, that the liabilities came to Rs 5,729 and that the defendant was indebted to the estate in the sum of Rs 15,199. He drew up a preliminary decree directing inter alia, that the defendant should pay this amount into Court within two weeks. Against this order the defendant appealed to the District Court. The District Judge returned the appeal for presentation to the High Court, on the ground that the subject matter exceeded Rs 5,000. Held, reversing the order of the District Judge, that the appeal lay to the District Judge⁴

Alienations—When reversioners sued to have declared invalid as against them alienations by a Hindu widow, a Court fee of Rs 10 must be paid in respect of each of the alienations⁵

Alternative Relief—The larger of the two reliefs determines the stamp⁷

Declaratory decree—For the purposes of jurisdiction the value of a suit for a mere declaratory decree must be taken to be what it would be if the suit were one for possession of the property regarding which the plaintiff seeks to have his title declared⁸ In such a suit, with a prayer for consequential relief the valuation of the relief sought rests with the plaintiff, and not with the Court⁹ But if on appeal the plaintiff only appeals against that part of the decree in which the prayer for a declaratory decree is refused he is not liable to pay more than Rs 10 as ad valorem fee on the memorandum of appeal under art 17, cl (3), of the Court Fees Act¹⁰

Ejectment of tenant—A suit to eject a tenant at fixed rates is a suit for the possession of land and the valuation of such a suit for the purpose of Court fees and of jurisdiction is the value of the subject matter of the suit, that is to say, of the tenant right, not of the land itself nor of merely one year's rent¹¹

claim under O XXI r 99 is a fresh suit so that where by reason of a change in the law as to the mode of valuing suits for the purpose of jurisdiction between the date of the original suit and the claim the Court that dealt with the original suit ceases to have jurisdiction over the subject matter of the claim that Court cannot try the claim.¹

Valuation of suits—By chapter 3 Act VII of 1887 the ordinary jurisdiction of Judges and Subordinate Judges extends subject to the present section, to all original suits, that of Appeals to all such suits in which the subject matter in dispute does not exceed one thousand rupees and an appeal lies to the District Judge where the amount or value of the subject matter in dispute (in the original suit) does not exceed Rs 5000. The valuation of a suit for the purposes of stamp duty and the valuation of the subject matter of the suit for the purpose of determining the jurisdiction of the Court may be different. Thus, an appeal to a District Judge against a decree in a suit for property of the value of more than Rs 5000 will be set aside in spite of appeal though the valuation for the purpose of stamp duty may have been less than Rs 5000 and though the first appeal may have been heard by consent of the parties.² But now s 8, Act VII of 1887 (the Suits Valuation Act) provides that where in suits other than those referred to in the Court Fees Act 1870, s 7, paras v, vi, and ix and para x c l (i.e. suits for possession of lands and houses, for pre-emption to redeem or discharge a mortgage, and for specific performance of an award) and all other Court fees are payable the value as determinable for the computation of Court fees and the value for purposes of jurisdiction shall be the same. It has been ruled that this section applies to Appellate Courts as well as to Courts of First Instance so where in a suit of the description mentioned in s 8 Act VII of 1887 the plaintiff valued his claim at Rs 664 for the computation of Court fees and it Rs 14000 for the purposes of jurisdiction held that the appeal from the decree of the Court of first instance lay to the District Court and not to the High Court.³

Accounts—The plaintiff in a suit for accounts must state the amount at which he values the relief sought, but he is free to fix it as he thinks proper.⁶ When therefore, the approximate amount of the claim was stated in the plaint to be Rs 510 that must be taken to be the value of the subject matter of the suit for purposes of jurisdiction,⁷ and valuation of a suit for an account should not be virtually a suit for money and should be valued not at the principal debt but at the entire amount including interest¹

Trust Property—The valuation in a suit for the removal of the defendant from the management of certain trust funds, is the plaintiff's interest in the subject matter of the suit and the plaint should bear a stamp of a value proportionate to the subject matter of the suit²

Additional Court fees—It is competent to a Court which has made an order under s 10 cl ii Act VII of 1870 for the payment of an additional Court fee to enlarge, either before or after its expiration, the time limited for payment of such additional fee³. See notes to ss 53 54

Appeal—An appeal lies against a decision as to the class to which a suit belongs, although it does not lie against a decision as to the valuation of the suit in that class. A decision of the lower Court holding that a suit is one for specific performance of a contract for sale and to be valued according to the amount of the consideration money is appealable⁴

No value—Where the subject matter of the suit has no money value, as in a suit for possession of a minor son the amount of the stamp fee should be computed according to the amount at which the relief sought is stated in the plaint⁵ but jurisdiction may not depend on that alone, and if the management of property is involved its value decides jurisdiction⁶. A suit for the removal of a karnavan,⁷ or for restitution of conjugal rights,⁸ is incapable of valuation

Shall be instituted—This section refers to procedure only, and regulates the practice of the Courts, but does not deprive any Court of jurisdiction which it may otherwise possess. Thus where a Subordinate Judge entertained a suit contrary to his section, the High Court held that it was a mere irregularity which did not prejudice the appellant, and refused to enter on the question of valuation with a view to determine in what Court the suit should have been brought⁹. So where the first Appellate Court dismissed a suit on the ground that the subject matter of the suit being less than a thousand rupees the suit should have been brought in the Munsif's Court and that the Subordinate Judge had acted without jurisdiction in trying it the High Court decided that under Act VI of 1871 s 19 the Subordinate Judge was empowered to try causes of any value, and although he should if he had found the value of the subject of the suit to be under a thousand rupees have sent it to the Munsif, still the fact that he tried it himself was no ground of error in special appeal¹⁰. So it has been held the fact of a suit decreed by a Subordinate Judge for less than a thousand Rupees being cognizable by a Munsif's Court is no ground for dismissing it, but the plaintiff should not be allowed more costs than if he had sued in the lower Court¹. In a suit upon a mortgage in which the amount claimed was in excess of the pecuniary limits of the jurisdiction of a District Munsif and which was filed in the Court of a Subordinate Judge, it appeared that there had been an adjudication by a District Munsif in a previous suit affecting the rights of the parties now in issue and that the present claim was largely composed of interest. The Subordinate Judge, having framed issues relating to the claim for interest and having tried them as preliminary issues, decided that the suit was within the pecuniary limits of a District Munsif and that the claim had been exaggerated with a view to filing the suit in a superior Court and so avoiding the plea of res judicata; and he thereupon returned the plaint to be presented to the proper Court. Held, the procedure was wrong and that the whole suit should have been tried². The pecuniary jurisdiction of a Civil Court on its original or appellate side is ordinarily speaking governed by the value stated by the plaintiff in his plaint and if a suit having regard to the valuation in the plaint is within the jurisdiction, such jurisdiction is not ousted by the Court finding that a decree for a sum exceeding its jurisdiction should be given to the plaintiff. There is nothing in Act VII of 1887 to confine the sum for which a Civil Court may pass a decree to the limit of its jurisdiction to entertain a suit³.

Subordinate Judge—As to the case of a Subordinate Judge appointed in Bombay under ss 23 and 24 Act XIV of 1863 see *Shri Sidheshwar v Harihar*⁴. A Joint Subordinate Judge of the Second Class has jurisdiction to try a suit under s 4 of the Dekkan Agriculturists Relief Act (XVII of 1879), when the suit has been instituted in the Court of the Subordinate Judge of the First Class⁵. Where a Subordinate Judge had tried a suit which a Munsiff might have tried it was held he had not acted without jurisdiction⁶.

Under value—But if a suit was under valued and taken into the wrong Court, it was otherwise⁷ unless the objector was equitably estopped or had delayed in raising the objection. If it applied before a Subordinate Judge to sue in forma pauperis and was met by the plea of over valuation and the Subordinate Judge holding that the suit was over valued declined to entertain it. Subsequently he obtained a decree before the Munsiff and defendant appealing raised the objection of valuation, and the suit was dismissed as beyond the Munsiff's competency to try. Held this decision was wrong, that the defendant could not turn round and object to the jurisdiction of the Munsiff since it was on his opposition that the original application had been rejected⁸. Plaintiff's suit was dismissed by a Munsiff as above his jurisdiction. He appealed. The Court of Appeal, reversing the Munsiff's decision, directed him to try the suit. He did so and dismissed it but on appeal plaintiff obtained a decree. In special appeal defendant again raised the question but it was ruled that he was not entitled to do so. The Court held "the objection as to jurisdiction cannot be taken at this stage of the case. the appellant had a right to come up here in special appeal from the order passed on the 14th of June, 1873. This question of jurisdiction has no bearing upon the merits, and simply refers to the form in which a suit should be brought.¹

Costs—When a suit is dismissed, or the plaint returned, for want of jurisdiction, the defendant is entitled to his costs.²

Small Cause Court—Munsiff's Court—When a Munsiff was vested with powers up to fifty rupees under Act VI of 1871, and there was a Court of Small Causes, under Act VI of 1865, with jurisdiction extending to five hundred rupees, at the same place, a suit of the nature cognizable by Small Cause Courts, if not above fifty rupees in value, must have been brought in the Munsiff's Court.³ So, where two Courts with different money limits possess jurisdiction to try the cause, it should be instituted in the Court of the lower limit.⁴ This rule does not apply to Village Munsiffs established in Madras under Regulation VI, 1816, s. 5, to try suits not exceeding ten rupees, and in such cases the Munsiffs and Small Cause Courts possess concurrent jurisdiction, and one does not exclude the other.⁵ As to the present law, see ss. 16 and 23, Act IX of 1887. In Act I of 1889, s. 13, proviso 3 the word 'land' includes land covered by a house, and consequently a suit for house rent, unless due under a written contract signed by the defendant, is not cognizable in a Village Munsiff's Court.⁶

Jurisdiction of Small Cause Courts—General—A person claiming damages for personal injury where actual pecuniary damage has resulted, has a right to sue in the Small Cause Court of the claim to damages which is not cognizable by a Small Cause Court, unless the defendant is a plaintiff in the same suit.⁷ but see, as to the present law, s. 15, Act IX of 1887. A plaintiff whose claim has been disallowed under O XXI r. 58 may sue in the Small Cause Court to recover possession of it. In substance the suit is for goods, though as a matter of form the decree may contain a declaration. The plaintiff may abandon part of his claim so as to bring the suit within the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court.⁸ The plaintiff sued to recover from his landlord a sum which the defendant had collected in excess of what was properly due to him by distraint of the plaintiff's cattle. Held, that the suit was cognizable by a Court of Small Causes.⁹ A suit for damages for use and occupation of land is cognizable by a Court of Small Causes.¹⁰ A suit by a manager of a temple against his predecessor in office for damages sustained by the temple owing to the negligence of the defendant is not cognizable by a Court of Small Causes.¹¹ A suit by a Mahomedan to obtain a share in property distributable under the terms of a certain endowment is not cognizable by a Court of Small Causes.¹²

Small Cause Court, Provincial—Under Act IX of 1887, a Small Cause Court has power to try all suits of a civil nature not excluded by the second schedule to the Act, and it is the nature of the suit as described in the

Where a contract provided for the delivery of goods in two monthly shipments by the plaintiffs and the defendants refused to take delivery or pay for either shipments of the goods in accordance therewith, it appeared that the total amount of the damages sustained by reason of the two breaches if added together, exceeded Rs 2,000, whereas if taken separately they were respectively less than that amount. The contract provided that each shipment was to be treated as to separate contract. Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to bring sep rate suits for the damages sustained in respect of each shipment, and that, therefore, the Presidency Small Cause Court had jurisdiction.¹

Madras City Civil Court—A house was attached and sold as the property of one against whom a decree of the Small Cause Court, Madras, had been passed. determine a right to rent against a person claiming as landlord,¹ nor a suit to restrain a tenant from changing the nature of his holding,² nor to remove trees.³

Settlement Officers cannot determine the rights of contending parties in the soil.⁴ Where a Zamindar brought a suit for arrears of land revenue payable by the proprietors against several defendants, of whom some were co-sharers and others mortgagees in possession, held that such suit was one of the nature contemplated by s 93 (2) of the N W P Rent Act 1881, and was cognizable by a Court of Revenue as against all the defendants.⁵ The plaintiffs alleging themselves to be occupancy tenants and to have been wrongfully dispossessed by their landlords who had made a lease of lands in suit, sued the landlords and their lessees for recovery of possession and for damages held that such a suit was exclusively cognizable by a Revenue Court.⁶ The reason which a land holder may have for desiring to eject a tenant of agricultural land, has nothing to do with the procedure to be adopted for the tenant's ejectment. When the procedure laid down in s 36 et seq. of the N W P Rent Act, 1881 is available, the land holder must adopt that procedure and the mere fact that the land holder's alleged cause of action is the denial by the tenant of the land holder's title will not give the land holder a right to sue for ejectment in the Civil Court.⁷ S P and others, zamindars sued M K and others as trespassers to eject them from certain land alleged to form part of the plaintiff's zamindari. The defendants pleaded that they were mortgagees holding under a mortgage with possession given by one S G, said to be tenant at fixed rates, of the land in suit. It was found that S G had been an occupancy tenant not at fixed rates, but that he had died without heirs prior to the institution of the suit. Held, that the suit brought under the above circumstance, was cognizable by a Civil Court.⁸

Bengal—By Act VIII (B C) of 1869 Revenue Courts were abolished over the greater part of Bengal and the trial of rent suits was made over to the ordinary Civil Courts. It is now regulated by Act VIII of 1885. This question of jurisdiction can but seldom arise. It has been held that a Court was not justified in dismissing a suit wrongly instituted under Act VIII (B C) of 1869 if it could give relief under the ordinary procedure⁹ if necessary, it should allow the plaint to be amended.¹⁰ A suit for enhancement not cognizable under the rent law may be brought under the ordinary procedure.¹¹

Objections to jurisdiction how raised—A Court cannot try a cause where there is no jurisdiction. If it did, it would be nothing more than a private arbitrator,¹² and submission by the defendant cannot oust the jurisdiction of the Appellate Court to set the decision aside.¹³ but it has been held in England that, where a Judge acts ultra vires by consent, no appeal lies; ¹ though if the person who is cast by the decision succeeds in first appeal, he cannot object to a second appeal ². In India where an appeal lies, appeals have been always allowed on the question of jurisdiction ³. If the objection is not raised till a late stage, and the jurisdiction is doubtful, the proper course is to proceed and determine the suit ⁴.

Regular Appeal—When no objection to the jurisdiction of the first Court was raised in the grounds of appeal, and the first Appellate Court declined to hear the question argued, it was held that the objection should have been considered and decided ⁵ otherwise, if it were only an irregularity, ⁶ and when a Judge acted without jurisdiction, their Lordships of the Privy Council set aside the decree, although the point was not raised either in the first Court or the Court of Appeal in India ⁷.

Consent—Where a Court has no jurisdiction, no consent of parties can give it jurisdiction ⁸. But by s. 20 of the Presidency Small Cause Court Act, XV of 1881, it is provided that 'when the parties to a suit which, if the amount or value of the subject matter thereof did not exceed two thousand rupees, would be cognizable by the Small Cause Court, have entered into an agreement in writing that the Small Cause Court shall have jurisdiction to try such suit, the Court shall have jurisdiction to try the same; although the amount or value of the subject matter thereof may exceed two thousand rupees'.

Waiver—There cannot be a waiver of jurisdiction ⁹. The fact of a defendant not subject to the jurisdiction of a Court having waived his privilege in previous suits brought against him does not give the Court jurisdiction to entertain a suit against him in which he pleads that he is not subject to such jurisdiction ¹⁰.

Objection to jurisdiction, when it may be raised—An objection to jurisdiction the validity of which is patent on the face of the proceedings, can be taken at any stage of the proceedings ¹¹. Such an objection can even be taken for

determine a right to rent against a person claiming as landlord,¹ nor a suit to restrain a tenant from changing the nature of his holding,² nor to remove trees³

Settlement Officers cannot determine the rights of contending parties in the soil.⁴ Where a limbardar brought a suit for arrears of land revenue payable by the proprietors against several defendants, of whom some were co-sharers and others mortgagees in possession, held that such suit was one of the nature contemplated by s 93 (g) of the N W P Rent Act 1881, and was cognizable by a Court of Revenue as against all the defendants.⁵ The plaintiffs alleging themselves to be occupancy tenants and to have been wrongfully dispossessed by their landlords who had made a lease of lands in suit, sued the landlords and their lessees for recovery of possession and for damages: held that such a suit was exclusively cognizable by a Revenue Court.⁶ The reason which a land holder may have for desiring to eject a tenant of agricultural land, has nothing to do with the procedure to be adopted for the tenant's ejection. When the procedure laid down in s 36 et seq. of the N W P Rent Act, 1881 is available, the land holder must adopt that procedure and the mere fact that the land holder's alleged cause of action is the denial by the tenant of the land holder's title will not give the land holder a right to sue for ejection in the Civil Court.⁷ S P and others, zemindars sued M K and others as trespassers to eject them from certain land alleged to form part of the plaintiffs' zemindari. The defendants pleaded that they were mortgagees holding under a mortgage with possession given by one S G, said to be tenant at fixed rates of the land in suit. It was found that S G had been an occupancy tenant not at fixed rates, but that he had died without heirs prior to the institution of the suit. Held that the suit brought under the above circumstance was cognizable by a Civil Court.⁸

Bengal—By Act VIII (B C) of 1869 Revenue Courts were abolished over the greater part of Bengal and the trial of rent suits was made over to the ordinary Civil Courts. It is now regulated by Act VIII of 1885. This question of jurisdiction can but seldom arise. It has been held that a Court was not justified in dismissing a suit wrongly instituted under Act VIII (B C) of 1869 if it could give relief under the ordinary procedure⁹ if necessary, it should allow the plaint to be amended.¹⁰ A suit for enhancement not cognizable under the rent law may be brought under the ordinary procedure.¹¹

Objections to jurisdiction how raised—A Court cannot try a cause where there is no jurisdiction if it did it would be nothing more than a private arbitrator,¹² and submission by the defendant cannot oust the jurisdiction of the Appellate Court to set the decision aside,¹³ but it has been held in England that, where a Judge acts ultra vires by consent, no appeal lies,¹ though if the person who is cast by the decision succeeds in first appeal, he cannot object to a second appeal.² In India where an appeal lies, appeals have been always allowed on the question of jurisdiction.³ If the objection is not raised till a late stage, and the jurisdiction is doubtful, the proper course is to proceed and determine the suit.⁴

Regular Appeal—When no objection to the jurisdiction of the first Court was raised in the grounds of appeal, and the first Appellate Court declined to hear the question argued, it was held that the objection should have been considered and decided.⁵ otherwise, if it were only an irregularity,⁶ and when a Judge acted without jurisdiction, their Lordships of the Privy Council set aside the decree, although the point was not raised either in the first Court or the Court of Appeal in India.⁷

Consent—Where a Court has no jurisdiction no consent of parties can give it jurisdiction.⁸ But by s. 30 of the Presidency Small Cause Court Act, XV of 1887, it is provided that when the parties to a suit which, if the amount or value of the subject matter thereof did not exceed two thousand rupees, would be cognizable by the Small Cause Court, have entered into an agreement in writing that the Small Cause Court shall have jurisdiction to try such suit, the Court shall have jurisdiction to try the same although the amount or value of the subject matter thereof may exceed two thousand rupees.⁹

Waiver—There cannot be a waiver of jurisdiction.¹⁰ The fact of a defendant not subject to the jurisdiction of a Court having waived his privilege in previous suits brought against him does not give the Court jurisdiction to entertain a suit against him in which he pleads that he is not subject to such jurisdiction.¹¹

conduct from objecting to irregularities in the institution of the suit. When a Judge has no inherent jurisdiction over the subject matter of suit, the parties, though they insist on the authorities to try, the defendant there were none, would not strictly be within those authorities, because the defendant's plea was stated before issue was joined on the merits, and in reliance on that plea, he objected to the case being tried and withheld his objections to the validity of the patent.¹ Their lordships then found that defendant had not consented to the case being tried by the District Judge, and dismissed the suit.

The plaintiffs sued the defendant for partition of family property, which consisted both of moveable and immoveable property. The moveable property was within the jurisdiction, but all the immoveable property was outside the jurisdiction of the Court. Held that the Court had no jurisdiction to hear the suit.² The plaintiff sued for partition of certain property alleging it to be joint family property. It consisted of a house in Bombay and certain fields at Valva in the Thana District. The parties were all resident in Bombay. Held, that as to the Valva property the Court had no jurisdiction but the suit might proceed as regards the property in Bombay.³ Where the plaintiffs brought a suit for their share of family property consisting of lands situated outside the jurisdiction of the High Court and for moveables situated within it it was held that the High Court had no jurisdiction as to the lands.⁴

Alternative Relief—Where plaintiff claims different reliefs to some of which he is not entitled, jurisdiction depends on the other reliefs.⁵

Irregularity in exercise of jurisdiction—In Sadasiva Pillai v Ramalinga Pillai,⁶ their lordships of the Privy Council, referring to a question of mesne profit under a decree, held that the respondent did come under subsequent mesne profits of the land enforced by proceedings in execution of the Act of 1861.

The case, therefore, seems to fall within the principle laid down and enforced by this Committee in the recent case of *Pisani v Attorney General of Gibraltar*⁷ in which the parties were held to an agreement that the questions between them should be heard and determined by proceedings quite contrary to the ordinary cursus curiæ. Again in the case of *Ben v. Mahton v. Ram Kishan*¹ the High Court had held that execution proceedings not carried on as required by s 416 (O XIV rr 1 & 2) of this Code were null and void. Their lordships in setting aside that decision said:— A purchaser under a sale in execution ss judgment of a case to inquire satisfied or not. If inquire into the correctness of an order for execution than he is as to the correctness of the judgment upon which the execution issues. So it has been held that the omission to record reasons for admitting new evidence as directed in O XII r 26 (Act XI of 1887) is only an irregularity and does not touch jurisdiction,² so where the Judicial Commissioner of Mysore struck a pleader off the rolls without hearing him, although the Act declared that notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, no pleader shall be suspended or dismissed under this Act, unless he has been allowed an opportunity of defending himself, the order was set aside on the ground of irregularity only³ and where a suit cognizable by a Munsif was brought contrary to the corresponding section of Act VIII of 1859 in the Court of a Subordinate Judge it was held that the Court had power to try the case by virtue of the Civil Courts Act and this power was not affected by the prohibition in Act VIII which was merely a procedure code⁴.

Holiday—A party who on a close holiday does attend and without protest takes part in a judicial proceeding cannot afterwards successfully dispute the jurisdiction of the Judge to hear and determine such matter⁵. See also s 15 of Act XI of 1887 cl (3) which lays down that a judicial act done by a Civil Court on close holiday shall not be invalid by reason of its having been done on that day.

Officer not appointed—As to objections to jurisdiction on the ground that the officer whose act is impugned was not properly appointed or was disqualified, see *Glyn v. Bonnard*⁶ and cases there cited. Acts done by Justices in a judicial character have in no instance been thought invalid⁷. Provided that a suit to obtain relief respecting, or compensation for wrong to, immovable property held by or on behalf of the defendant may, where the relief sought can be entirely obtained through his personal obedience, be instituted either in the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property is situate or in the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the defendant actually and voluntarily resides, or carries on business, or personally works for gain

Explanation—In this section “property” means property situate in British India

Act XIV 1882 of Section 16—This section applies to Prov S C C and to the H C but not in its original civil jurisdiction See section 120 post

The words ‘with or without rent or profits’ have been added to sub section (a) to remove any difficulty there might have been under Act XIV of 1882 in suits to recover rent in addition to land

Immovable Property—By sect 17 of the Charter of 1866 the High Court has jurisdiction in the case of suits for land or other immovable property situated within the local limits of its original jurisdiction and under this sect on it has been held that the following amount to such suits

Suits for foreclosure or redemption of land against a receiver in possession of lands after the mortgagee has foreclosed¹ asking for an account and to redeem,² for specific performance of a contract to sell land outside the jurisdiction³ Against trustees to carry out the terms of a trust deed executed by A for himself and B and compel the sale of lands outside Calcutta where B denies A’s authority to act for him⁴ to restrain persons working a mine in the mofussil beyond a certain line⁵ for specific performance to execute a mortgage of lands¹ or for partition². This term and the expression "interest in immoveable property" are to be held to include not only land and houses and such other things as are physically incapable of being moved, but also such incorporeal hereditaments as issue out of, or are connected with, immoveable property, so called, e.g., rights of common, rights of way and other profits, as for instance rents, pensions and annuities secured upon land³. The equity of redemption of the mortgagor is immoveable property which can be attached and sold under s 266 (sec 60 of this Code)⁴. A tree standing on land is immoveable property,⁵ so are standing crops⁶ and tiled huts,⁷ but tiled huts are moveable property for all purposes of execution under s 28 of the Presidency Small Cause Court Act, (XV of 1882)⁸. But this only means that as between the judgment debtor and the judgment creditor, they shall for the purposes of execution be deemed to be moveable⁹.

In Madras, it has been held that the right to mesne profits under a decree is not immoveable property¹⁰.

contract for sale of land¹ and so is a suit to have certain mortgaged lands declared liable for the debt². So also is a suit brought to enforce payment of principal and interest both as a simple contract liability and as a debt secured by a collateral mortgage of immovable property³. So is a suit for a declaration that lands are mortgaged or charged with a debt and to have them sold in execution notwithstanding a later disposition,⁴ or a suit for a sum of money where plaintiff asked that the decree should be enforced against the person of the borrower and the property pledged⁵.
 In favour of an assignment of rent not due, annual allowances charged on the revenue territory and paid to the defendants by in the same territory are immovable.
 Determined according to the law in force in the Nizam's dominions. Plaintiffs could not claim a declaration of title or ask for a refund of the allowance in a British Court merely because the defendants happened to be residents in British territory.

A claim to an easement is one relating to an interest in land⁶. A bond whereby the superstructure of the land beneath is hypothecated creates an interest in immovable property⁷. The right to possession and management of a sarajim is an interest in immovable property⁸. The life interest of a widow in the income arising from the lands of her husband's estate is immovable property⁹.

A suit to follow the purchase money of land taken up under the Land Acquisition Act over which the plaintiff had a mortgage lien is not a suit under cl (d)¹⁰. Neither is a suit to enforce a contract for the purchase of land or in the alternative for damages¹¹. A right to be placed on the revenue register is not an interest in immovable property¹².

A suit to recover dhut leviable on the crops of village lands is not a suit for an interest in land¹³ nor is a suit to recover a sum of money due by custom as an emolument of an hereditary office¹⁴. An agreement to grant a lease cannot be said to create an interest in immovable property¹⁵. The right to possession and management of a sarajim is an interest in immovable property¹⁶. Sijer is not an interest in immovable property¹⁷.

The Sudder Dewany Adawlut declined to take cognizance of a suit for the title deeds of property in Calcutta, by a person claiming as a Hindu widow¹

The plaintiff sued in the Court at Nasik in British India to establish his right to a share in the income derived from certain grants of land outside British India but received by the defendant within the jurisdiction of the Nasik Court. Held, that the suit was within the jurisdiction of the Court, as it was not a suit in respect of immovable property²

This section determines the powers of the Courts to act in personam, when jurisdiction The entirely obtained t claimed by the "between persons" re siding within jurisdiction respecting, and outside it thus, it is doubtful whether our Courts will be able to entertain suits for foreclosure or sale of property beyond their local jurisdiction³

Actually and voluntarily resides—The Supreme Courts established at Calcutta, Madras and Bombay were empowered to try "all and all manner of singular the inhabitants of the said Calcutta, and 'inhabitant for the purpose of "jurisdiction did not include a person having daily employment in Calcutta, but residing outside it, and coming in the morning and returning in the evening⁴ but otherwise when in addition he often slept at his father's house in Calcutta⁵ or where though carrying on business all day in Calcutta and earning his livelihood he slept in Entally at night to *void jurisdiction*⁷

Length of time—No length of time was necessary to make a person an inhabitant⁸ and a man who had come to Calcutta with no definite object, but slept there, and the plaint was filed when he was in Calcutta, was held subject to the Court's jurisdiction⁹ The Bombay Court held that residence at the time of the contract or at the commencement of the suit was sufficient¹⁰

Evidence—A bond reciting the obligor to be 'of Calcutta' was prima facie evidence that he was an inhabitant¹¹

Voluntary—But the residence must have been voluntary¹² A person confined in jail without just cause having been brought down from the mofussil by process in a suit as to which he had been discharged for want of proceeding, was not considered to be an inhabitant¹³ Otherwise if he had been lawfully

The property is situate —In a suit on a mortgage and money bond in a district other than that in which the property is situated, the Court has no jurisdiction to pass any but a money decree, leaving the Court of the district in which the property is situated to execute it against the property mortgaged.¹ So a mortgage decree passed by a Court other than that described in the section can be only looked on as a money decree.²

Mortgage Charge —A Court has power to give a decree for mortgaged property situate within its jurisdiction, though the mortgage of which redemption is sought includes property without the jurisdiction,³ but it cannot declare a charge on property wholly outside its jurisdiction, if it does, a purchaser under such a decree would not be in a better position than a purchaser under a money decree.⁴ A suit by a mortgagee to recover the mortgage debt from the mortgagors personally as well as by sale of the mortgaged property is a suit under cl. (c) and (d) of s. 16 (Act XIV of 1882) and can only be instituted in that Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the mortgaged property is situate.⁵

Not immoveable property relief by personal obedience —Under the Charter, suits for foreclosure or for redemption of land in the Mofussil are excluded as being suits for land (see cases above mentioned), and only a limited relief can be given against the individual. A suit to declare that a person resident in Calcutta holds certain lands in the Mofussil, subject to certain trusts, is not a suit for land, and may be tried in Calcutta,⁶ neither is a suit to enforce the right of parties to act as co-sheriffs to an idol endowed with lands in the Mofussil, where possession of any land is not claimed,⁷ nor is a suit for specific performance of a contract to sell lands outside Calcutta,⁸ nor a suit by another, although asking for a sale arising from a dispute regarding a partnership entered into in Calcutta in regard to lands outside,⁹ nor a suit to recover title deeds,¹⁰ nor a suit for trespass to land in the plaintiff's possession outside the limits of the Court's jurisdiction, and for an injunction.¹¹ The proviso to s. 16 (Act XIV of 1882) requires not only that the relief sought should be entirely obtainable through the personal obedience of the defendant, but also that he should reside within the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit is filed.¹²

ances, he was dwelling within jurisdiction¹ In the case of Orde v Skinner,² Skinner, at the time of suit was actually residing at Mussoorie in the district of Saharanpore. He resided there during the hot weather, and during the cold weather he travelled through the joint estate putting up sometimes at Hansi, sometimes at Delhi, and sometimes at Bilaspur in one of the houses kept at the expense of the estate. The question for decision was, "did Skinner reside at Bilaspur?" Their lordships held he could have more than one residence, that as he was not a mere manager, but a part owner, and had a residence there which his predecessor contemplated to be the principal place of residence of the family and in which Skinner kept the accounts of the estate, he dwelt in it within the meaning of s 5, Act VIII of 1859.³ When a person resides at one place, his mere casual presence, or even residence for a temporary purpose within jurisdiction without the intention of remaining is not "dwelling" within the meaning of the Small Cause Court Act.⁴ Where a servant, whose home was in Nuddea, resided with his master at Monghyr, and had no intention of returning home soon, it was held he dwelt at Monghyr and not at Nuddea.⁵ Whether persons imprisoned can be said to dwell at their homes or not depends on whether they have any intention of returning to their previous place of abode on the termination of their imprisonment.⁶ The decisions under the County Courts Act in England are to the same effect. Thus, a man having his permanent residence at one place and a lodging at another for a temporary purpose only, was held not to dwell in the latter place.⁷ A mere visitor acquires no dwelling.⁸ A person who has no permanent place of abode "dwells" at the place at which he may be temporarily residing.⁹ Where the payee sued the maker of a note which was dated "Madras, 27th September, 1860" and delivered to plaintiff at Madras, it was held that this was prima facie evidence of dwelling within the High Court's jurisdiction.¹⁰

Residing—In the present Act the word "dwell" has been replaced by "reside." What is meant by residing is a question of fact depending on the circumstances of each case. The words "dwell" and "reside" express the same idea,¹¹ and the explanation shows that "reside" must be construed more liberally in this section than in s 37, cl (a) Act XIV of 1882 see (O III r 2).¹²

Guardian and Minor—Where a mother residing at Poona, the widow of a deceased European resident applied to be appointed guardian of her three minor children (two of whom were residing with her and the third, a girl of the age of sixteen years, was residing in England), and to have certain payments made to her out of the estate of the deceased father on their account, and to have certain powers over their persons given her, and to have the costs of the application paid broker for a commission received from the purchasers. In Corbett v General Steam Navigation Company,¹ and in Minor v London and N W R Company,² it was held that the defendants in those cases did not carry on business within the meaning of the County Courts Act at a place where they employed general agents to act on their behalf, and in the present case I think Narayana is the only person who can be said to have carried on business with the meaning of the section in question with respect to the paddy sent to him for sale. For these reasons, I am of opinion that the Court has no jurisdiction to entertain the suit."

It has been held that the test of carrying on business as a retail dealer is "sale," and that a retail dealer in European goods, residing and carrying on business at an up country station, is not within the jurisdiction of the High Court for the purpose,³ and that an employing a firm resides on business at a place by a commission agent, to whom he only consigns goods, does not carry on business within the local limits of a Court where the commission agent resides,⁴ and generally, that it could not be intended that a person residing at a distant place, and there carrying on his business in person, might, because of his carrying on business within local limits by a gomastah, clerk or agent, or because of occasional visits only, be sued in the High Court at the discretion of the plaintiff, without any regard to the place where the cause of action arose.⁵ It will be seen, however, on comparing this case with that of Chunammal cited above, that Scotland, C J., somewhat modified his opinion, and it is settled in Madras that it is not necessary for jurisdiction that a person should personally carry on business.⁶ In addition to actual inhabitancy, the Supreme Court had jurisdiction by constructive inhabitancy on the ground of trading. The decisions on this point will be found in Morton's Reports Morley's Digest, and 3 Moore's Indian Appeals. Carrying on business by factors was not sufficient to ground that jurisdiction.⁷ A person who has no regular office, but comes once or twice a week from the mofussil to a friend's house in Calcutta, and sees people there on business, and contracts with B in Calcutta for the hire of cargo boats, carries on business in Calcutta,⁸ and so does the Captain of a foreign ship trading to this port.⁹

Zemindari business is not business of the kind contemplated in this section,¹⁰ nor is the receipt of presents or offerings.¹¹ The expression "carry on business" is intended to relate to business in which a man may contract debts and ought to be liable to be sued by persons having business transactions with him.¹²

Personally works for gain.—These words were inserted to give the Courts jurisdiction over persons who, though dwelling out of the local limits

Partnership—A suit to wind up a partnership may be brought in the Court within whose jurisdiction the defendants reside, notwithstanding the provisions of the Contract Act, s 263.²

Rent—A suit by a lessor against his lessee to recover rent which had accrued due in respect of agricultural land situated in Gwalior, the plaintiff being a subject of the Gwalior State, but the defendant a British subject resident in the district of Jhansi is properly brought in a Civil Court in the district of Jhansi.³

Insolvency—By 11 and 12 Vict. c 21 s 5 jurisdiction in insolvency is conferred when the person 'shall reside within the jurisdiction' of any of the High Courts. A petitioner came down from Cawnpore where he resided for some time and left his wife to file his petition which he did after living eight days in a hotel. It was held that the petitioner had come to file his petition and not to reside (though he had stated that he intended to remain in Calcutta after his discharge) and that the Court had not jurisdiction.⁴ And where a person whose family residence in Bhagulpore had been sold in execution of a decree, left his family in that district, and coming to Calcutta lived in a hired house from May till September when he left to obtain funds to carry on a petition of insolvency which he had filed in July he was held not to reside within jurisdiction, although he returned in November and lived as before.⁵ In Hurruck Chund Golicha, in re,⁶ an insolvent was held to 'reside' in Calcutta, who carried on business there by means of a komashti.⁷ But the residence contemplated by s 5 of the Insolvent Act need not be permanent residence. Its object is to extend the benefit of the Act to bona fide residents for the time being within the jurisdiction of the Court at the time they filed their petitions.⁸

Carry on business—In the case of Chinamal v. Tulukunnimal,⁹ it was decided that a trader in the mofussil who habitually sent grain to Madras to be sold by a party who was a general agent for the sale of goods sent to him by different persons did not carry on business within the jurisdiction of the High Court although he himself had sometimes accompanied the loads. Scotland C. J., said—¹⁰ "It could not have been intended, as observed in the judgment of the Court in *Subbaray v. Mudali v. Government*¹¹ that the words 'carry on business' were to be understood in their most general sense. Giving proper effect to the other words of the provision, the section, I think, requires that the defendant should, at the time of the commencement of the suit, carry on, within the local limits of the Court's jurisdiction, some independent regular business in person, as in the case of Witkell v. Hender,¹² or at an office or other fixed place of business,¹³ either personally or by clerks or servants employed by the defendant and conducting the business under his control and in his individual or partnership name. Here the defendant had no place of business in Madras and the sales were effected by Narayana in his independent trade or business of a general

18 (1) Where it is alleged to be uncertain within the local limits of the jurisdiction of which of two or more Courts any immoveable property is situate, any one of those Courts may, if satisfied that there is ground for the alleged uncertainty, record a statement to that effect and thereupon proceed to entertain and dispose of any suit relating to that property, and its decree in the suit shall have the same effect as if the property were situate within the local limits of its jurisdiction

Provided that the suit is one with respect to which the Court is competent as regards the nature and value of the suit to exercise jurisdiction

(2) Where a statement has not been recorded under sub section (1), and an objection is taken before an appellate or revisional Court that a decree or order in a suit relating to such property was made by a Court not having jurisdiction where the property is situate, the appellate or revisional Court shall not allow the objection unless in its opinion there was, at the time of the institution of the suit, no reasonable ground for uncertainty as to the Court having jurisdiction with respect thereto and unless there has been a consequent failure of justice

Act XIV of 1887, s. 16 A This section applies to H. C. and Prov. S. C. C.

Failure of justice The addition of the last line to this section still further restricts technical objections to jurisdiction made on appeal and the section is now imperative, no objection shall be allowed unless there has been failure of justice

Under Act XIV of 1887 it is held that a suit for rent of a fishery was a suit for immoveable property within the meaning of the words of this section. A suit for rent of a fishery was brought in a certain Court and there was reasonable ground of uncertainty as to the jurisdiction of that Court to entertain the suit. On an objection that the suit ought to fail for want of jurisdiction held that the conditions required by s. 16 A (Act XIV of 1882) had been satisfied, and that the objection as to jurisdiction ought not to be entertained.¹

19 Where a suit is for compensation for wrong done to the person or to moveable property, if the wrong was done within the local limits of the jurisdiction of one Court and the defendant resides, or carries on business, or personally

Art. IV of 1859, Sec. 18. This section applies to H. C. and F. R. S. C. C.

20 Subject to the limitations aforesaid every suit shall be instituted in a Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction—

- Other suits to be instituted where defendants reside or cause of action arises
- (a) the defendant or each of the defendants where there are more than one at the time of the commencement of the suit actually and voluntarily resides or carries on business or personally works for gun or
 - (b) any of the defendants where there are more than one at the time of the commencement of the suit actually and voluntarily resides or carries on business or personally works for gun provided that in such case either the leave of the Court is given or the defendants who do not reside or carry on business or personally work for gun as aforesaid acquiesce in such institution or
 - (c) the cause of action wholly or in part arises

Explanation I—Where a person has a permanent dwelling at one place and also a temporary residence at another place he shall be deemed to reside at both places in respect of any cause of action arising at the place where he has such temporary residence

Explanation II—A corporation shall be deemed to carry on business at its sole or principal office in British India or, in respect of any cause of action arising at any place where it has also a subordinate office at such place

(a) A is a tradesman in Calcutta. B carries on business in Delhi. B by his agent in Calcutta buys goods of X and requests A to deliver them to the East Indian Railway Company. A delivers the goods accordingly in Calcutta.

A may sue B for the price of the goods either in Calcutta, where the cause of action has arisen, or in Delhi, where B carries on business

(b) A resides at Simla, B at Calcutta and C at Delhi. A, B and C being together at Benares, B and C make a joint promissory note payable on demand, and deliver it to A. A may sue B and C at Benares, where the cause of action arose. He may also sue them at Calcutta, where B resides, or at Delhi, where C resides; but in each of these cases, if the non resident defendant objects, the suit cannot proceed without the leave of the Court

Act XIV of 1882, sect 17. This section applies to Pro. S. C. C., and to the H. C., but not in its original civil jurisdiction, clause 120. Illustration (a) is taken from Winter v Way,¹ and illustration (b), from DeSouza v Coles.²

Cause of Action—For the meaning of these words we may turn to the English cases³ where we find that they are held to comprise every fact which it is material to be proved to entitle the plaintiff to succeed, and every fact which the defendant would have a right to traverse.⁴ It does not comprise every piece of evidence which is necessary to prove each fact, but every fact which is necessary to be proved in order to obtain judgment.⁵

In Chand Kour v. Partab Singh,⁶ it has been said by Lord Watson that "the cause of action has no relation whatever to the defence which may be set up by the defendant, nor does it depend upon the character of the relief prayed for by the plaintiff. It refers entirely to the grounds, set forth in the plaint as the cause of action, or in other words, to the media upon which the plaintiff asks the Court to arrive at a conclusion in favour of." "Relief is not synonymous with cause of action, that term including all the relief covered by the facts on the strength of which a plaintiff comes into Court".⁷

Explanation III of Sec 17, Act XIV of 1882 defined "cause of action" in contract cases, and declared it to arise in the place where the contract was made, in the place of performance or completion of performance, or in the place where the money was expressly or impliedly payable. All these places are included in the present section by the addition of the words "or in part arises" to sub clause (c).

The following decisions under Act XIV of 1882 may be of service in construing this clause—

Where a partnership business had been carried on at Agra and Rutlam, and a balance was struck in the books at Agra, it was held that the cause of action arose at Agra.⁸

To constitute a cause of action there must be an infraction of a right.²

arrangement is made subsequent to the contract to pay there.³ The plaintiff was a member of a family which had the management and received the income of certain property situate in British India belonging to a temple situate at Ashta in the Nizam's territory. Part of the income was devoted to religious service and part to the support of the family. The plaintiff sued to recover by partition his share of the income and for an injunction restraining the defendant from interfering with the plaintiff in celebrating religious worship at the time when his turn came to officiate. The defendant (his brother) resided at Ashta. It is that the right to share in the income followed the devolution of the office and that the Court could not grant the relief sought for as the Courts in British India could not execute their decree by putting the plaintiff in possession of his office, when his turn came to officiate at the temple, which was outside British India.⁴ Where certain plaintiffs claimed possession of separate portions of land situated in two districts on the same title against the same defendants alleging a dispossession on one day from part of the property claimed in district A and from the whole in district B and on another day from the rest of the property in district A held, that the plaintiff could bring one suit for the recovery of the whole property in both districts and that such suit was properly brought in a Court in district A.⁵ Where property lost in one district is found in another a suit to recover possession must be brought in the district in which it is found.⁶

Conjugal rights—The cause of action in a suit by a husband for restitution of conjugal rights consists in the wife absenting herself from her husband's house without his consent, and it must therefore be deemed to arise at his house.⁷

Divorce—Under s 2 of Indian Divorce Act (IV of 1869) a District Court has jurisdiction to make a decree for dissolution of marriage upon being satisfied that the adultery charged has been committed in India, without going into evidence as to the place of the marriage of the parties.⁸

Dower debt—A suit for the recovery of a dower debt from the assets of a deceased Mahomedan being a suit on a contract, is subject to the provisions as to jurisdiction contained in s 17 (Act XIV of 1832),⁹ and when it was held to be well instituted in the place where the marriage took place although the defendant worked and resided elsewhere.¹⁰

Joinder—The right to join in one suit two causes of action against a defendant cannot be exercised, unless the Court to which the plaint is presented has jurisdiction over both causes of action¹

Legacy—A suit for a legacy must be brought, not within the jurisdiction where the legatee resides, but within the jurisdiction where the heir resides²

Probate—Under s 56 of Act V of 1881, a District Judge has jurisdiction to grant probate of a will executed out of British India by a person who is not a British subject, if the testator had at the time of his death moveable or immoveable property within the jurisdiction of the Judge. The discretion vested in a Judge by s 56 does not extend to a case where there is no Court of concurrent jurisdiction in India to which application for probate can be made³

Minor Removed—See *Sarat Chander v Forman*⁴

Rent suits, Bengal—See Act VIII of 1885, s 144 (1). A suit for recovery of rent due on a tenure for a sum not exceeding Rs 1,000 is cognizable in a Munsiff's Court, although a suit for recovery of possession of the tenure lies in a Subordinate Judge's Court, the capital value of the tenure being Rs 4,000⁵

Domicile in Native State.—Defendant No 1 who was domiciled in the native state of Cochin obtained from the Resident a certificate to collect the debts of the deceased karnavan of the plaintiffs tirwad. The plaintiff, whose domicile was the same as that of defendant No 1, sued in British Cochin for a declaration of his right to receive the interest accrued due on certain Government promissory notes, being the property of his deceased karnavan. Held, that the suit did not lie and that the appellant should either have established that he was a party to such action⁶ or have brought his action against the defendant No 1 as a party to such action⁶ the agent of each member within the meaning of this section⁷. British Courts are empowered to pass judgment against a non resident foreigner, provided that the cause of action has arisen within the jurisdiction of the Court pronouncing the judgment⁸. In Murugasa Chetti v Annamalai Chetti,⁹ it was argued that no foreigner is subject to jurisdiction except by residence or domicile and that the Indian Legislature had no power to legislate in conflict with this rule of international law. The point was further raised before their lordships of the Privy Council, when this case went before them on appeal but was not decided by their lordships¹⁰

Plaintiff has right to select Court—Where a suit may be filed in more than one of several Courts, it is a general principle of law that the plaintiff may select the forum in which to bring the suit. Where a plaintiff sued in a District Munsiff's Court having jurisdiction at the place where the money due under a contract was to be paid, there being no Small Cause Court having jurisdiction at such place, held, that the jurisdiction of the district Munsiff was not ousted by the fact that there was in existence at the date of the suit a Small Cause Court having jurisdiction at the place where the contract was made¹¹

Onus of proof—When the defendant is not within jurisdiction, plaintiff must show that, at the time of the commencement of the suit, the defendant actually and voluntarily resided or carried on business, or personally worked for gain, within the jurisdiction.¹

Acquiescence—If the defendants who do not reside within the local jurisdiction do not apply under s. 20, (Act XIV of 1882) they will be held to have acquiesced.²

High Court This section does not apply to the Original Side of the High Court, (see sec. 120) which is governed by its Charter, and under it the words 'cause of action' mean the whole cause of action and not a material part of it. Thus in a case on contract, it includes both the contract and the breach.³ If however, only part of the cause of action arises within the jurisdiction then the suit can be brought on the Original Side of the High Court, if leave has been first obtained.⁴

Leave An order granting leave is not a mere formal order regulating procedure but a condition precedent to jurisdiction and from it an appeal lies. It is not a ministerial act.⁵ Leave should be distinctly sought and obtained and should not be inferred from the fact that the plaintiff has been allowed to sue as a proper.⁶ Leave cannot be granted under the Charter after the institution of the suit, and as it relates only to the cause of action disclosed in the plaint it cannot confer jurisdiction in respect of a substantially different cause of action, and the plaint cannot be amended as in an ordinary case.⁷ But it has been recently held in Bombay that leave under this section [sec. 17 (c) of Act XIV of 1882] was good though subsequent to institution.⁸

Suit by representative—Although it has been said that to give the Court jurisdiction all things which go to constitute the cause of action must occur within jurisdiction, yet this must be taken subject to the explanation that there

the deceased person arose."

Foreign decree—Suit brought in Bombay on an order of the Court of Chancery directing contributors to pay within four days of service on the order on them Order served in Bombay on defendant who lived without jurisdiction. Held, service of the order was not necessary to complete the cause of action, and no part of it having arisen within the jurisdiction of the High Court, the suit would not lie.¹⁰

Hoondees, Promissory Notes, Bonds—In an action to recover money paid in Calcutta on hoondees drawn by defendant beyond the local limits, but sent by him to Calcutta and there accepted and paid by the plaintiff, it was held that the whole cause of action arose within Calcutta ². So where a resident in the Upper Provinces sent cotton to A in Calcutta for sale, and drew hoondees against it payable in Calcutta and the hoondees were first negotiated and then accepted and paid by A's gomashta in Calcutta, in a suit by A not on the hoondees but for a balance of account, it was held that as the bills were made payable in Calcutta and presented there, the liability arose from the implied contract to repay the money, and the whole cause of action arose in Calcutta ³.

The High Court has jurisdiction in a suit on a promissory note, if the note is stipulation in the document is general, and no particular place of payment has been named ⁷. In this case the Judge decided, following Wilde v Sheridan, ⁸ that if the contract had not been made in Madras, the High Court would not have jurisdiction. But in a later case, it has been held that in the absence of any stipulation in the contract itself, the intention of the parties must guide the Court in determining the place of performance ⁹. Where plaintiff sued on a promissory note executed beyond, but payable in Calcutta, leave to sue not having been obtained before the institution of the suit, it was held that the High Court had no jurisdiction, ¹⁰ but where after settlement, an oral agreement to pay in Bombay was entered into and leave was obtained, held, the Court had jurisdiction ¹¹. Sanction to sue must be obtained in a suit to recover from a person residing and carrying on business outside of Calcutta goods pledged with him, which have been obtained from the plaintiff by means of an offence or fraud, the offence or fraud alone having occurred within the jurisdiction ¹².

Decree Fraud—A suit to set aside a consent decree of the High Court, on the ground of fraud may be brought without previous leave to sue having been obtained though all the defendants dwell without the jurisdiction ¹³. The Original side of the High Court has jurisdiction to entertain a suit to set aside on the ground of fraud a decree passed by any other Court of concurrent jurisdiction, where the cause of action has arisen either wholly or, in case the leave of the Court has been first obtained, in part, within the local limits of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction.¹

Goods sold—In a suit for goods sold and delivered, where the defendant does not dwell within the local limits of the High Court, the cause of action is, the sale or delivery of the goods, must have taken place within those limits. Thus, where A sued B for goods, sold in Madras and sent partly by sea

Partnership—Plaintiff, living at Madras, entered into a contract with defendant, residing at Bimlipatam, the terms of which were that defendant should be entitled to half a share in any of the shipments made by him at Bimlipatam on his electing to take the risk. Defendant elected at Bimlipatam. In a suit brought for losses sustained, it was held that the High Court had no jurisdiction.² So, when an agreement in writing was signed by the plaintiff and defendant once in every eight days, it was held that the cause of action did not arise within local limits.³

Setting aside a deed—Plaintiff, a resident in Calcutta, sued H, a resident in Bombay, but carrying on business by his gomashia in Calcutta, and others resident in Bombay, to set aside a release executed in Calcutta of his interest in certain property situated in Bombay, on the allegation that it had been obtained from him on misrepresentations made by H. Held, that the cause of action included the effect of the release on the property in Bombay and did not wholly arise in Calcutta.⁴

Letters of administration—A District Judge cannot grant letters of administration, if the deceased had not at the time of his death a fixed place of abode or any property within his district.⁵

21 No objection as to the place of suing shall be allowed by any appellate or revisional Court unless such objection was taken in the Court of first instance at the earliest possible opportunity and in all cases where issues are settled at or before such settlement, and unless there has been a consequent failure of justice

Objections to jurisdiction

This section excludes all belated objections as to the place of suing. In any case, appellate and revisional Courts are now prohibited from allowing objections on this score unless there has been a failure of justice consequent on the case having been heard in a Court which lacked jurisdiction to try it.

22 Where a suit may be instituted in any one of two or more Courts and is instituted in one of such Courts, any defendant, after notice to the other parties, may, at the earliest possible opportunity and in all cases where issues are settled at or before such settlement, apply to have the suit transferred to another Court and the Court to which such application is made, after considering the objections of the other parties (if any), shall determine in which of the several Courts having jurisdiction the suit shall proceed

Power to transfer suits which may be instituted in more than one Court

Act XIV of 1887, Sections 20 and 27. This section applies to H. C.

This section embodies in more convenient form the provisions of section 22

Notice—Notice must be given to the other parties¹ so that if one defendant only applies he is bound to serve the other defendant with notice, and where an application is made by one of several defendants without notice having been given to the defendants who do not apply the application should be allowed to stand over till notice is given. The denial of an application made by one defendant prejudices the right of another defendant, subsequently served with summons to make a similar application. An objection in the written statement is enough².

Foreign Court—The Courts in India cannot stay proceedings because the costs in a previous litigation in a foreign Court have not been paid³.

Justice is more likely to be done—*Geffert v. Rukchand*⁴.

Act XIV of 1862 sections 23 and 24. This section applies to H C. The sub sections (2) & (3) do not apply to the Jhansi division

See the case of *Skinner v Orle*¹

Under the old practice applications of this nature to a High Court were submitted through the District Court but this has been radically altered by the compilers of this Code

24 (1) On the application of any of the parties and after notice to the parties and after hearing such of them as desire to be heard, or of its own motion without such notice, the High Court or the District Court may at any stage—

(i) transfer any suit appeal or other proceeding pending before it for trial or disposal to any Court subordinate to it and competent to try or dispose of the same, or

(b) withdraw any suit appeal or other proceeding pending in any Court subordinate to it, and

(i) try or dispose of the same or

(ii) transfer the same for trial or disposal to any Court subordinate to it and competent to try or dispose of the same, or

(iii) retransfer the same for trial or disposal to any Court from which it was withdrawn

(2) Where any suit or proceeding has been transferred or withdrawn under sub section (1), the Court which after tries such suit may, subject to any special directions in the case of an order of transfer, either retry it or proceed from the point at which it was transferred or withdrawn

(3) For the purposes of this section, Courts of Additional and Assistant Judges shall be deemed to be subordinate to the District Court

(4) The Court trying any suit transferred or withdrawn under this section from a Court of Small Causes shall for purposes of such suit, be deemed to be a Court of all

Act XIV of 1882, sec 25 This section applies to suits transferred from one Court to another

In this section are restated the provisions of sec 25 of Act VII of 1854 with one or two additions

At any Stage—These words set at rest the question of the point and make it clear that a suit may be transferred even after a part heard

Where a part heard case is transferred it carries with it the evidence taken in the first Court¹ But see Order XVIII, rule 6 for this very case, and Sub section 2 above

Retransfer—This seems to be a new provision as under the old Act a District Judge, at any rate in the North West could not transfer a case to his own file²

Competent—This word is now fully defined for the purposes of this section as meaning "having jurisdiction both as regards the subject matter and the value of the suit"³

Jurisdiction—If the Court of first instance has no jurisdiction to hear the suit, this defect is not cured by transferring the case to another Court having jurisdiction,⁴ and no order of transfer should be made unless by consent of parties⁵ and the consent must be such that the Court will infer that the defendant did, in point of fact, waive all objections and engage that the case should be tried on its merits by the second Court⁶ So if the High Court transfers a case to a District Court, and the District Court has no jurisdiction to hear the case, the case must be transferred back to the High Court by the latter Court. An application on the ground of want of jurisdiction, decree and the order for sale is

Notice Quare whether a valid transfer can be made on the application of a party without notice to the other parties to the suit In a Malabar case it was held that want of notice under Act XIV of 1882, sec 25 did not render the transfer void⁷

The High Court has refused to transfer a case from a Court which had jurisdiction to try it, where no application had been made to the Judge of the latter Court nor any notice given to the plaintiff¹

High Court—The 13th section of the Letters Patent (1865) of the High Court at Fort William gives the Court power to order a suit to be transferred for trial, only where the transfer is agreed on by the parties, or for the purposes of justice, and in the absence of agreement it must be made out that there will be inconvenience amounting to this—that if the case be tried in the Court in which it was originally tried, the trial will be unsatisfactory

A suit may be transferred on the ground of expedition and cheapness,² or for convenience and to save expense,³ or by consent of parties⁴

The mere fact that it would be less expensive to try the case in the High Court is not sufficient of itself for the Court to act upon and order the case to be transferred,⁵ but where on a motion to transfer, it appeared that the parties and witnesses resided in Calcutta that it would be cheaper to try the suit there and that the parties appearing on the motion consented, a transfer was ordered⁶

Where it appeared that questions of English law were involved in the case, that the witnesses were chiefly British subjects, and the plaintiff was an officer of the High Court and resident in Calcutta the Court ordered the case to be transferred for trial to the High Court, original jurisdiction⁷. It may be necessary for the purposes of justice that a suit should be transferred⁸

It is no objection to the trial of a case transferred under this section that the transfer order was founded on a misconception⁹. Under this section the Calcutta High Court transferred a case from the Presidency Court of Small Causes to the Court of the senior subordinate Judge of Dacca¹⁰

Subordinate Court—The corresponding section of Act XIV of 1882 did not enable a District Judge to transfer a suit pending before himself to a Subordinate Court,¹² but still he was competent to transfer the execution of a decree which had been passed by his own Court to the file of the Subordinate Judge for disposal¹³

The provisions relating to the institution of suits, the issue and service of summons, the appearance of parties, and the hearing of suits have been in the main relegated to the Rules in the first appendix to this Code. The essential provisions only find a place in sections 26 to 35.

Plaint essential to a suit—A "plaint" in law means "a private memorial tendered to a Court in which the person sets forth his cause of action, the exhibition of an action in writing." It does not necessarily mean "a plaint duly stamped."

A suit must commence with a plaint and a proceeding which is capable of terminating in a decree or an order having the force of a decree cannot on that ground alone be deemed to be a suit, if it has not commenced with a plaint. Such a proceeding e.g. a proceeding in execution is in strictness only a proceeding in a suit.

As to time and manner and place of presentation see Order IV, post.

Such other manner as may be prescribed—That is prescribed by Rules made under this Code. Order IV, rule 1 directs that every suit shall be instituted by presenting a plaint, so that unless and until some other mode of institution is introduced a plaint will remain essential to every suit.

SUMMONS AND DISCOVERY

27 Where a suit has been duly instituted, a summons may be issued to the defendant to appear and answer the claim and may be served in manner prescribed.

Act XIV of 1882, sect 64. This section applies to H C and Prov S C C.

Duly instituted—That is by the presentation of a plaint, see section 26.

In manner prescribed—By the rules in schedule I hereto. Order V deals with the issue and service of summons and the rulings on this subject are collected in the commentary to the rules of that order. see Vol II.

28 (1) A summons may be sent for service in another province to such Court and in such manner as may be prescribed by rules in force in that province.

Service of summons where defendant resides in another province

(2) The Court to which such summons is sent shall, upon receipt thereof, proceed as if it had been issued by such Court and shall then return the summons to the Court of issue together with the record (if any) of its proceedings with regard thereto.

Act XIV of 1882, section 85. This section applies to H C and Prov S C C.

This section re-states the provisions of Section 85, Act XIV of 1882, and provides that the receiving Court shall serve the summons according to its own rules and return it together with a record of its proceedings in respect thereof. Order V, r 21 provides for the despatch of such summons by post and the cases decided under the old Code are collected in the commentary to that rule.

29 Summonses issued by any Civil or Revenue Court situate beyond the limits of British India may be sent to the Courts in British India and served as if they had been issued by such Courts:

Provided that the Courts issuing such summonses have been established or continued by the authority of the Governor General in Council,¹ or that the Governor General in Council has, by notification in the Gazette of India, declared the provisions of this section to apply to such Courts²

Act XIV of 1882 Section 650 A

30 Subject to such conditions and limitations as may be prescribed, the Court may, at any time, either of its own motion or on the application of any party,—

- (a) make such orders as may be necessary or reasonable in all matters relating to the delivery and answering of interrogatories, the admission of documents and facts, and the discovery, inspection, production, impounding and return of documents or other material objects producible as evidence
- (b) issue summonses to persons whose attendance is required either to give evidence or to produce documents or such other objects as aforesaid,
- (c) order any fact to be proved by affidavit

31 The provisions in sections 27, 28 and 29 shall apply to summonses to give evidence or to produce documents or other material objects

Summons to witness

32 The Court may compel the attendance of any person to whom a summons has been issued under section 30 and for that purpose may,—

- (a) issue a warrant for his arrest,
- (b) attach and sell his property,
- (c) impose a fine upon him not exceeding five hundred rupees,
- (d) order him to furnish security for his appearance and in default commit him to the civil prison

These three sections apply to H C and Prov S C C, they are inserted to give sanction to the rules relating to these subjects which have been embodied in Orders XI—XIII XVI and XVII post

JUDGMENT AND DECREE

33 The Court, after the case has been heard shall pronounce judgment, and on such judgment a decree shall follow

Judgment and decree

Act XIV of 1882 s 198 This applies to Prov S C C but not to the Commissioner, Jurisdiction—s Frontier Province

The case has been heard—The language of sections 198, Act XIV of 1882 has been modified, but we have clearly enacted in the body of this Code that judgment can only be pronounced after due hearing. A decree for dissolution of marriage cannot be made merely on admission and without recording evidence¹. The recorded impression in the mind of a Judge based on partial evidence while the suit was remanded has been held in India not to be a judgment².

Decree shall follow—This inadvertent omission from Act XIV of 1882 has here been remedied³. This section prepares the way for Order XX, where the provisions governing judgments and decrees are collected.

INTEREST

34 (1) Where and in so far as a decree is for the payment of money, the Court may, in the decree, order interest at such rate as the Court deems reasonable to be paid on the principal sum adjudged, from the date of the suit to the date of the decree, in addition to any interest adjudged on such principal

Act XIV of 1882 Sect 209 This section applies to H C, and Prov S C C

Payment of money—Under the corresponding and other sections of Act XIV of 1882, a conflict of decisions occurred on the construction of these words and a recent Madras judgment went so far as to declare that a mere decree for sale was a decree for the payment of money within the meaning of these sections¹

In the first draft of this section it was made clear that the mortgage decrees² were not intended by the compilers of the Code to be covered by its provisions. In the final draft those additional words were again struck out and the section is now substantially the same as sect 209 of the former Code. But the Select Committee stated that their object in omitting the express words of the first draft was to make it clear that a decree for the payment of money does not include a decree for sale in enforcement of a mortgage or charge³. It applies however to all other decrees even though they give reliefs other than an order for the payment of money by the judgment debtor

cable at the time when the decree became final¹ When the rule of damdupat has been once applied in any account directed to be taken by the Court, and interest equal in amount to the principal sum has been allowed in the account, the application of such rule has the effect of preventing the allowance of any further interest not only for the period of 6 months allowed for redemption, but also subsequently without limitation of time² The operation of the rule of damdupat is excluded in all mortgages, the terms of which necessitate the existence of an account current between mortgigor and mortgagee, whatever the state of the account may be³

After suit—In an ordinary suit for money, the rate of interest after plaint and before decree is in the discretion of the Court, whether there is a stipulated rate⁴ but if the suit is for fore-closure⁵ the stipulated rate should be given⁶ of the Court,⁷ unless in a suit⁸ the rate must be given up to decree⁹

After decree—Interest, if not given in the decree, is taken to have been refused—para 2, supra After the decree the contract ceases, becomes merged in the decree, and the plaintiff recovers only such interest as according to the course and practice of the Court is allowed on debts for which the creditor has the security of his decree¹⁰ Interest on the amount decreed, namely, principal, interest and costs, cannot be objected to on the ground that it is compound interest¹¹ Interest not mentioned in the decree cannot be given by the executing Court¹²

Mercantile usage—Where there is no express agreement to pay interest, it may be awarded if there is any such mercantile usage, such as 9 per cent. on all book debts in Bombay,¹ otherwise in Calcutta.² In the absence of proof of usage, a mortgagee is not entitled to interest for the day on which the money is advanced as also for the day on which the money was repaid.³

Interest after due date, no contract.—When a rate of interest is not stipulated for till realization, but to a certain date, if the money is not paid on the fixed day, the principal and interest become from that time a debt, which, when recovered by process of law, may, in the discretion of the Court, be made the subject of an additional penalty for the breach within six years,⁴ but there is no implied contract for the continuance of the same rate of interest.⁵ The interest after due date proceeds upon the breach of contract,⁶ and should be treated as a question of damages.⁷ There is no distinction on this point between an ordinary bond and a mortgage.⁸ If the debtor has continued to pay the same rate of interest after due date, this will be evidence in support of holding that interest was agreed to be paid.⁹ If offered by the creditor,⁹ but if orbitant, the Court should only award the rate of interest which the money has become subject to after the date for redemption fixed by the decree.¹¹ The best guide to discretion is to be found in s. 26 of Act IV of 1882 which requires Courts to decree mortgage debts with interest at the rate provided in the mortgage (if to that rate no valid legal

cable at the time when the decree became final¹. When the rule of damdupat has been once applied in any account directed to be taken by the Court, and interest equal in amount to the principal sum has been allowed in the account, the application of such rule has the effect of preventing the allowance of any further interest not only for the period of 6 months allowed for redemption, but also subsequently without limitation of time². The operation of the rule of damdupat is excluded in all mortgages, the terms of which necessitate the existence of an account current between mortgagor and mortgagee, whatever the state of the account may be³.

After suit—In an ordinary suit for money, the rate of interest after plaint and before decree is in the discretion of the Court, whether there is a stipulated rate or if the suit is for foreclosure, the stipulated rate should be given,⁴ unless in a suit to foreclose a mortgage, the rate must be given up to the decree⁵.

After decree—Interest, if not given in the decree, is taken to have been refused—para 2, supra. After the decree the contract ceases, becomes merged in the decree, and the plaintiff recovers only such interest as according to the course and practice of the Court is allowed on debts for which the creditor has the security of its decree⁶. Interest on the amount decreed, namely, principal, interest and costs, cannot be objected to on the ground that it is compound interest⁷. Interest not mentioned in the decree cannot be given by the executing Court¹⁰.

When a decree does not specify the rate of interest, the decree holder is only entitled to interest at the usual Court rate¹¹.

Rent—The purchaser of a tenure sold in execution of a decree for arrears of rent is not liable to pay interest at the rate stated in the kribuli if executed by the defaulting tenant but at the rate mentioned in s. 67 of the Bengal Tenancy Act². By Liv. Act VIII of 1885, arrears of rent were liable to interest at 12 per cent from the end of the year and the rate has been changed to 12½ p c by Act I of 1907 Sec. 67. The right to interest is not lost by not claiming it for broken periods³ or for a series of years⁴.

Interest disallowed—Interest has not been allowed on a bond specially registered unless it expressly states that it carries interest after the due date if it is to be enforced as a decree⁵ nor can it be realised from a defaulting purchaser under the former Code on the difference between the first and second purchase moneys⁷ nor is it allowed on money deposited under a decree subsequently reversed where the suit is not improper or vexatious⁸.

Interest specified in the rules of a company registered under Act V of 1866, but not contracted by the borrower⁹ or interest when offered for payment into Court¹⁰ or when the decretal amount had been deposited in Court which accepted and retained it as a payment on account¹¹ was not allowed but the decree holder should have notice of the deposit¹².

Court fee duty—No additional Court fees required on account of the claim for interest until payment. It stands on the same footing as future mesne profits¹³.

such costs are to be paid, and to give all the costs for the purposes aforesaid. The fact that the Court has jurisdiction to try the suit shall be no bar to the exercise of such powers.

(2) Where the Court directs that any costs shall be paid, follow the event, the Court shall state its reasons.

(3) The Court may give interest on costs, not exceeding six per cent per annum, which shall be added to the costs and shall be recoverable.

This section applies to H. C.

In this Section the provisions of sections 218 and 219 of Act of 1873 of sect 5 Judicature Act 1873 have been consolidated.

Such conditions and limitations as may be prescribed by any separate legislative enactment or by the Rules made in pursuance of Part V hereof. The Rule Committee of the High Court has power under that part to make rules for any matters relating to the costs of suits, and examples of rules are given in O. XXXIII, r. 1 (admissions), O. XXXIV, r. 1 (dealing express), and Order LV.

In the discretion of the Court—These words are taken from the Act and replace the phrase "in any manner as the Court thinks fit".

The discretion is very wide. A Court may order the costs to be paid by the parties in definite proportions or order one party to pay in the whole or in part the costs of the losing side.

The question whether costs are awarded under some general rule or on other hand in the exercise of a discretion on particular facts is immaterial. No appeal lies in the latter case except by special leave obtained from the Appellate Court.

Appeal for costs—Under Act XIV of 1882 an appeal for costs lies only when a matter of principle was involved.¹ So if the orders appealable are those of the jurisdiction of the Court or the merits of the case, an appeal lies from them.

³ See Section 96 (3) post and of Judicature Act 1873 sect. 49. In the present order as to costs will not be overruled unless the decision is based on a mistake as to facts. The Court will not interfere with the order of costs unless it is shown that the Court has acted in error. The Court will not interfere with the order of costs unless it is shown that the Court has acted in error. The Court will not interfere with the order of costs unless it is shown that the Court has acted in error.

part of the order which related to costs,¹ even though that portion of the appeal not referring to costs had been abandoned at the hearing.² An appeal lay from an erroneous order as to costs made under a misapprehension as to fact and law.³ These cases are very much in a line with the English decisions referred to in note (3), p 163 ante, and may be taken as guides under this Code. See section 96 post.

To be exercised judicially.—The discretion as to costs, although wide, is a judicial discretion, and must be exercised on fixed principles, and where a party successfully enforces a legal right and in no way misconducts himself, he is entitled to costs as of right,⁴ and the Privy Council has laid down as a rule for the exercise of this discretion that a successful appellant is entitled to his costs.⁵

The following cases in the Courts in India afford useful examples for the exercise of the discretion as to costs—

Costs given—A person wrongly made a party should get his costs,⁶ and so should a party who has not opposed plaintiff's claim,⁷ or disclaims,⁸ or has no interest in the suit, and has unnecessarily been made a party,⁹ and would have suffered some injury if he had not appeared.¹⁰ And if a person is entitled to costs, he should not lose them on account of the mode in which counsel argues the case, or because counsel may claim more than he is entitled to.¹¹ The admission of a defendant before suit that the money sued for is due to the plaintiff, is not a ground for depriving plaintiff of his costs.¹² In a suit for damages for breach of contract and for recovery of earnest money, defendant was directed to pay costs of the suit, as she did not pay the earnest money into Court or formally tender it.¹³ The Government obtained their costs in the first Court, the opposite party appealed, not making the Government a respondent. On appeal, the decree of the first Court was reversed. Held, that the Government not having been made a party to the appeal, were entitled to recover their costs in the first Court.¹⁴ In a suit on a bond which stipulated for interest at two different rates, the defendant tendered what he considered sufficient compensation to the plaintiff before suit and claimed exemption from payment of interest and costs. Held, that as the defendant had not tendered the amount stipulated for in the bond, the plaintiff was entitled to his costs.¹⁵

A petitioner who had failed in his application on all points except the removal of the guardian was held entitled to his costs up to and including the order removing the guardian, as he was taken to have acted so far for the benefit of the minor.¹

Payment into Court—On the original side of the High Court when defendant pays into, and plaintiff draws money out of Court, the latter is entitled to costs incurred before the money was paid in.² Where a defendant deposits rent in Court under s 61 of the Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), and is found not to be liable for the litigation, he is entitled to his costs.³

General rule—The general rule is that, if a plaintiff recovers a less amount than he claimed in his plaint, his costs should be apportioned according to the amount recovered, and not to the sum claimed,⁴ unless it appears that the plaintiff would be deprived of the benefit of the decree by reason of

No costs—But a party will not get costs, if by his conduct he has induced plaintiff to sue him,⁶ or does not raise the defence on which he succeeds till special appeal,⁷ or does not raise the plea of res judicata until after all the evidence had been taken.⁸ Where a party has acted with malice and malevolence, costs will not be allowed.⁹ And in a suit where plaintiff, after prolonged

Costs are not allowed where the parties contend for much more than they are entitled to¹ or the appellant has failed in part of his appeal,² or has used forged documents,³ nor are the costs incurred by the introduction of irrelevant matter given⁴ nor should the respondent, if he has been guilty of fraud, get costs.⁵ And where on appeal the decision appealed from was upheld on different grounds from those relied on by the lower Court, the appeal was dismissed without costs.⁶

Where in a suit for an account, the defendant (agent), falsely denied his fiduciary position, he was ordered to pay the whole costs without regard to the result of the account."

Subject to the conditions and limitations aforesaid, see O XI, r 3 and O. XIV, r 4.

Full power to give—Sections 123 and 379 old code. Where under a mortgage security the mortgagor is not personally liable for the principal and interest he may still be made personally liable for costs. In a suit brought by the plaintiffs against defendants to restrain him from obstructing the plaintiffs' ancient windows and for damages the defendants paid Rs 200 into Court. The Court found the plaintiffs' windows to be ancient and the damages paid insufficient. It, therefore, ordered the defendant to pay all plaintiffs' costs up to the date of the payment of the Rs 200 and three fourths of their subsequent costs, while the plaintiffs were to pay one fourth of the defendants' subsequent costs. The defendants appealed. Held that the Court had full discretion to apportion the costs and the appellate Court would not interfere.

By whom to be paid — A Court is bound to decide by which of the parties costs shall be borne it cannot declare that they shall be borne by the unsuccessful party in a suit to be subsequently instituted¹⁰ In a suit brought against several parties, some admitted the debt and partnership, but others denied them, held, the defendants who disputed the claim, should pay the costs of those who admitted it¹¹

The decree must direct by whom and in what proportion the costs should be paid. Any omission to do so is not a mere clerical error and must be rectified by review.¹²

Administration Suits—The English rule is that trustees and executors are entitled to their costs out of the estate so long as they have not been guilty of misconduct, and until such misconduct has been shown it does not lie within the discretion of the Court to deprive them of their costs¹. But where they act improperly or unreasonably, the Court may refuse to order payment of their costs out of the trust funds². The same principle seems to have been followed in India under Act XIV of 1882 in administration and similar suits relating to the disposal of a general fund or estate—

Construction of will—In suits to determine the construction of a will, when a reasonable doubt exists as to the meaning of the bequest or devise, costs are usually paid out of the residuary personal estate,³ not so, when the construction of the will is not so difficult as to require the assistance of the Court,⁴ or when the plaintiff sued to oust a person from possession of property and took the risk as to whether the Court would take his view of the construction of a will⁵.

Official Liquidator—An unsuccessful application by an official liquidator to place certain shareholders in the list of contributories having been bona fide made in the liquidation of the company the Court ordered that the costs of each side should be paid as a first charge out of the estate⁶.

The Official Assignee is entitled to his costs of appearing in an appeal against an order of adjudication⁷.

Partition—The costs of a suit for partition as well as for effecting partition should be borne by each party⁸.

Probate—The executor of a will had obtained probate thereof when the executor of a subsequent and inconsistent will applied for, and obtained probate of the second will. Held, that the executors of both wills were entitled to their costs to be paid out of the estate so far as the costs would not be covered by the estate, each party must bear his own costs⁹. The appellant cited the respondent, the executor of a will, to prove his testator's will. The division Court ordered the respondent to lodge the will in Court and take out probate, but directed that the applicant should pay half the costs. On appeal held that the fund primarily liable to the costs of probate was the residuary estate and part of the residuary estate being as yet undistributed it should in the first instance be applied to this purpose and after that the appellant and respondent should contribute in equal shares¹⁰. The High Court has full power to make an order for the awarding of costs in lower Courts in a proceeding for revocation of a probate¹ and the costs should be assessed as in a miscellaneous proceeding²

Redemption—Defendant in a redemption suit should get his costs unless he has refused the amount tendered, or misconducted himself in the course of the suit³ as between attorney and client⁴

Representative—An estate and not the manager thereof is liable for the

of a party who could object to her taking out a certificate for that pergunnah, although she had not asked for a certificate for it⁵. A suit for contribution will lie where one has paid more than his share of costs on a joint decree⁷

Trustees &c—Trustees executors and administrators are entitled to their costs out of, or charged upon the estate except in cases of vexatious conduct or where by their neglect or misconduct, they have occasioned the institution of the suit⁸ and when a trustee acts unreasonably in delaying to join in a conveyance, he is liable to pay the costs of a suit brought against him for the purpose of compelling him to do his duty⁹

Divorce—As to the person who should bear the costs in suits for judicial separation and divorce cases, see¹⁰ In a suit for a divorce instituted by a husband against his wife the Court has a discretion to make the husband pay the wife's costs already incurred and to give security for her future costs¹¹ The English law which makes the husband in divorce proceedings liable prima facie for the wife's costs except when she is possessed of sufficient separate property, does not apply to divorce proceeding between Mahomedans¹² In a case in which a husband obtained an order for dissolution of marriage and costs but no damages were asked for against the co respondent, costs were given against him as between attorney and client¹³

suit follow the judgment¹⁵

A suit was dismissed in the first Court as beyond jurisdiction. On appeal, this decision was reversed and the plaint returned heli, defendant was entitled to his costs in appeal to the High Court on that ground.¹ If the appeal is dismissed, it is sufficient to deprive the respondent of his costs that the appeal was dismissed on a preliminary objection of which the appellant had not notice.² If a party substantially succeeds, he is entitled to his costs, though he may not have got the precise form of relief he wanted.³ Costs of an appeal may be allowed, though costs in the original case may follow the event.⁴

Costs in the cause—These words do not mean that costs will follow the event, but that those costs remain to be dealt with by the Court at the hearing.⁵

Costs, how calculated—Where a case was remanded from the High Court with orders allowing plaintiff to amend on payment of all costs of the two first hearings, it was held that this order included the stamp for the plaint.⁶

Pleader's fees—Pleader's fees must be calculated according to the rules, irrespective of any private arrangement between pleader and client.⁷

Other costs—The amount is calculated on what the plaintiff claims from the defendant,⁸ and when a suit contains several distinct claims against separate defendants, the amount of costs to be allowed to each depends on the claim against him,⁹ but the rules do not provide for the case of persons having separate interests made defendants in order to perfect their title and consent to a decree, and the Court should only allow them a sum sufficient to cover the costs of their appearance.¹⁰ Where there is no rule as to costs and no express agreement, a pleader is only entitled to reasonable remuneration for his work and labour.¹¹

The costs which a defeated plaintiff should be required to pay are those necessarily incurred by the successful party; costs cannot be deemed necessary, if by reasonable diligence on the part of the defendant or his pleader the expenditure of them could have been avoided.¹²

One trustee of a charitable trust can have the bills for the costs of a suit relating thereto taxed and the High Court has jurisdiction to order taxation.¹³

Separate costs—Where the interests of the parties are separate and distinct separate costs should be allowed to each,¹⁴ thus, where one defendant pleaded that he had nothing to do with the property sued for and proved it conducting his defence by a separate pleader, he was allowed his costs,¹⁵ and if the defendants are Zamindar and patnidar, and the suit is for possession of land,¹ or the defendants have been charged with jointly misappropriating property,² separate costs should be allowed.

Not given — But where the defence is common to all,³ or their interests are the same, as if they are joint holders,⁴ or if they are representatives of a mortgagee,⁵ or if they are members of the same family, living in the same place, give the same answer, and the suit is for damages in account of their joint act,⁶ or they are co-sharers suing separately on a joint cause of action, and the actions were from the first tried together — only one set of costs should be awarded.

In appeal — When an appellate Court decrees an appeal and gives costs of its own Court, the costs of the first Court should be included in the decree,⁷ and a decree for usual costs and interest means all costs which the successful party has incurred from the commencement of the suit until the date of the final decree with interest at (now) 6 per cent from the date of decree.⁸ When an appellate Court after setting aside the decree of the lower Court, remanded the case and the order as to costs provided costs will abide the result — held, if the result of the remand was entirely in favour of the successful party, he was entitled, as a matter of course, to the costs in question, even if the decree of the lower Court, after remand did not contain any such direction.⁹ When a decree under which costs have been recovered is set aside in appeal, an express order is not needed for a refund of the costs with interest.¹⁰ The assignee of a decree who is made a respondent

Limitation — An order for costs made in the High Court on appeal is barred after three years.¹¹

Order — Under the corresponding section of Act XIV of 1852 it was held that an order obtained by an attorney against his clients for costs is a decree or order which could be executed under the Code.¹²

Lien of solicitors—See De Libu v Jefferson ³

Heirs—A solicitor cannot enforce under a rule of Court his taxed costs against an heir or legal representative, Assur v Ruttonbai ⁴

Set off—A decree drawn up in accordance with s 88, Act IV of 1882, contained the following clause—“It is further ordered that the defendant fore-and do pay to the plaintiff fore-and the sum of Rs 876 b, the amount of costs incurred by them in this Court.” This was held not to be a direction for the recovery of costs personally from the judgment debtor ⁵

Set off—The special provisions as to set off of costs contained in sect 221 of Act IV of 1882 have not been reproduced in this section, but the general words of part 1 seem sufficiently wide to give the Court power in a proper case to direct that the costs payable to one party by another shall be set off against any sum admitted or found in the suit to be due from the former to the latter

The following decisions are worthy of notice

If, in consequence of any defect in the judgment or negligence on the part of the appellant in not getting the decree properly drawn up, costs have not been allowed, no set off can be claimed in execution ⁶. A mortgagor is entitled to set off or deduct the amount of costs payable to him against or from the mortgage debt payable by him

Execution—No objection as to the amount of costs allowed in the suit can be raised in execution of decree ⁷. Interest on costs cannot be allowed in execution, unless it is inserted in the decree ⁸

Mamlatdar—A Mamlatdar has the same power to levy costs decreed by the High Court as he has regarding costs decreed in his own Court ⁹

Interest on Costs—The last sentence of this section shall apply to the

The same rule applies to interest on costs as to interest on mesne profits, and it cannot be given in execution unless expressly granted by the decree,¹ even if the decree be a decree of the Privy Council,² and when the decree gives interest only on the principal sum but not upon the costs, the plaintiff is not entitled to such interest.³ Interest on cost after decree may be the subject of a separate suit,⁴ but if it is allowed by way of compromise in execution, the appellate Court will not interfere.⁵

In England interest runs from the date of judgment in the absence of any order to the contrary.⁶

PART II.

EXECUTION.

GENERAL.

36 The provisions of this Code relating to the execution of decrees shall, so far as they are applicable, be deemed to apply to the execution of orders

Application to orders

The bulk of the provisions relating to execution have been relegated to the Rules (see Order XXI in which they are all grouped under 103 rules), and the main provisions only will be found in this Part. These deal with the Courts by which decrees may be executed, the questions to be determined by Courts executing decrees, the limit of time for execution, procedure in execution, arrest and attachment, the distribution of assets and resistance to execution.

Orders—generally are made capable of execution by force of this section, see definition of decree holder section 2 ante

37 The expression “Court which passed a decree” or words to that effect, shall, in relation to the execution of decrees, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context, be deemed to include,—

Definition of Court which passed a decree

- (a) where the decree to be executed has been passed in the exercise of appellate jurisdiction the Court of first instance, and
- (b) where the Court of first instance has ceased to exist or to have jurisdiction to execute it, the Court which, if the suit wherein the decree was passed was instituted at the time of making the application for the execution of the decree, would have jurisdiction to try such suit

Act XIV of 1882, sect 649 (2) This section applies to H C and Prov S C C Secs 42 (2) Lower Burmah Courts Act, VI of 1900

Civil Court—It was held that the execution Chapter of Act XIV of 1882 applied to an insolvency Court realizing assets¹

This provision does not cover an order for payment of additional costs of a commission, they should be made costs in the suit and entered in the decree ⁷

(d) if the Court which passed the decree considers for any other reason, which it shall record in writing, that the decree should be executed by such other Court

(2) The Court which passed a decree may of its own motion send it for execution to any subordinate Court of competent jurisdiction

Act XIV of 1882, Section 223 This sect applies to H C and Prov S C C

May on the application of the decree-holder—The word "may" shows that the clause (c) is an extension of the powers of Court to execute its own decree which can be exercised when the procedure described in clauses (a) to (d) would be inconvenient¹. The terms of the clause are directory not mandatory². Every Court is bound to execute its own decree, if it can. It is only when the decree cannot be executed within its jurisdiction that it may be sent to another Court for execution. There is no intermediate procedure between these two executions³.

The Court which passed a decree—If the subject matter of the suit is within the Court's jurisdiction, the jurisdiction continues in all matters of execution⁴.

Where the Court which has passed the decree has ceased to have jurisdiction, application for execution may be made either to that Court or to the Court which (if the suit wherein the decree has been passed, were instituted at the time of making the application to execute it) would have jurisdiction to try the case⁵.

When an execution case is struck off for default by the Court to which the decree has been transferred for execution the proper Court to apply to for a fresh issue of execution is the Court which passed the original decree⁶. So also when a decree is transferred by assignment subsequent to its transmission for execution to another Court, the transferee should apply to the Court which passed the decree for execution⁷.

Outside British India—See section 43 and compare *Kasturchand v Parsha*⁸.

On application—It is not necessary that the decree or a copy of it should be produced with the application⁹.

An application to send is not an application to execute within s 230 (O XXXIX, r 10)¹⁰ it is a step in a d of execution¹¹.

cause which puts an end to the jurisdiction ¹ Under Madras Act III of 1873 s. 28 a Munsif was invested with the powers of a Small Cause Court Judge for the trial of suits cognizable by such Court up to Rs. 200 in value. Subsequent to decree but prior to execution, his powers as Small Cause Court Judge were withdrawn by notification in the Gazette. Held, that the application for execution must be made to the Court in which the Small Cause Court jurisdiction vested at the date of the application.

Where a mortgage decree was passed, and before any application for execution was made the property mortgaged was transferred to another Munsif held application could be made to either Court ² And the Court to which a decree is transferred for execution if it has ceased to have territorial jurisdiction may either of its own motion or when applied to transfer it for execution to the Court which has territorial jurisdiction ³ A obtained a decree against B in the Court of the 1st Munsif of Howrah. After the decree, the local area within which the cause of action arose and the judgment debtor resided, was transferred to the 2nd Munsif. A then applied to the 2nd Munsif to execute his decree. Held that the 2nd Munsif had no jurisdiction, and the 1st Munsif alone had jurisdiction to execute the decree ⁴

COURTS BY WHICH DECREES MAY BE EXECUTED

38 A decree may be executed either by the Court which passed it, or by the Court to which it is sent for execution

39 (1) The Court which passed a decree may, on the application of the decree holder, send it for execution to another Court,—

- (a) if the person against whom the decree is passed actually and voluntarily resides or carries on business, or personally works for gain, within the local limits of the jurisdiction of such other Court, or
- (b) if such person has not property within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court which passed the decree sufficient to satisfy such decree and has property within the local limits of the jurisdiction of such other Court, or

(d) if the Court which passed the decree considers for any other reason which it shall record in writing, that the decree should be executed by such other Court

(2) The Court which passed a decree may of its own motion send it for execution to any subordinate Court of competent jurisdiction

Act XX of 188 Sec on 3 This sect applies to all Courts

May on the application of the decree holder — The words "may" show that the clause (c) is an extension of the powers of the Court which passed the decree which can be exercised when the provisions of the clauses (a) to (f) could be inconvenient. The terms of the clause are not mandatory. Every Court should exercise its power if it is only when the decree cannot be executed in its own Court. It may be sent to another Court for execution. There is no restriction between these two executions.

The Court which passed a decree — If the suit is for the recovery of money or other property, the Court which passed the decree has jurisdiction to execute it.

Where the Court which has passed the decree is not competent to execute it, the Court which passed the decree may, on the application of the decree holder, transfer the decree to another Court for execution. The Court which transferred the decree may, on the application of the decree holder, transfer the decree to another Court for execution.

When an execution case is struck off for default by the Court which passed the decree has been transferred for execution to the proper Court, the Court which transferred the decree may, on the application of the decree holder, transfer the decree to another Court for execution.

Outside British India — See section 43 and compare A. O. 1911, Part I.

On application — It is not necessary that the decree should be produced with the application.

An application to send a decree for execution to another Court may be made at any time after the decree has been passed.

(a) Resides—See notes on section 20 ante. Where plaintiff sought to execute his decree by attaching the pay of his debtor, and neither the debtor nor his payee resided within the local jurisdiction, the order of attachment was held void.¹

(b) Has not property within local limits—Before a Court will act in such a case, it will require to be satisfied in some manner, by sworn testimony or by affidavit, that these facts exist. Where a decree has been executed by a Court other than that in which it was passed, the title of the purchaser cannot be avoided by shewing that there was property of the judgment debtor within the jurisdiction of the Court that passed the decree, which might have been attached and sold.²

(c) Outside jurisdiction—If a mortgage decree properly in execution of a mortgage decree properly in jurisdiction, execution may be pursued either in the Court which passed the decree or the Court within whose jurisdiction it lay at the time of application.³

A suit on a mortgage was instituted in the Court of a Munsif competent to try the mortgage decree, and the decree was passed in the Court of a Munsif competent to try the mortgage decree.

Not wholly outside.—Where a decree was obtained in one district on a mortgage in connection with lands lying in different districts and registered in the Collectorate of another district, it was held the Court giving the decree could sell the property, though a doubt was expressed if this could be done under a simple money decree.⁴

In such cases, the Court is not bound to send the case to another Court under clause (c) but may do so.⁵ It was decided that a Munsif had power under a money decree to sell a share of an estate lying within three Munsiftees in the same district. A Court that can pass a decree for the sale of property comprised in a mortgage may sell it, even though a portion be situated outside the local limits of its jurisdiction.⁶

and could be made if a Court should, in exercise of its discretion, think fit to do so. Their lordships remarked,—"It would, no doubt, in many cases, be a right exercise of the discretion of the Court not to act on the power and to refuse to send a decree for concurrent execution into several places, and when it did act on it, it would be in many cases proper to impose terms on the decree holders, that they should not proceed to the sale under all the attachments at once."¹

Of its own Motion—A decree may be sent for execution to another Court, either on the application of the decree holder on one of the grounds stated in this section, or by the Court which passed it of its own motion, but in this latter case, the transfer can be only to a subordinate Court. In Krishna Velji v. Bhanu Mansaram,² a doubt was expressed whether under sub section (d) a Subordinate Judge can transfer a decree from his Court to that of a Small Cause Court, when the property attached is within the limits of his local jurisdiction.

A Court of Small Causes cannot execute its own decree against moveable property situated outside its jurisdiction. It must transfer it under this section.³

Practice—It will be necessary for the holder of a decree which has been transferred for execution to another Court to make due application for execution to that Court (Order XXI, r 10). A District Court, on receiving a decree transferred for execution, can direct any Subordinate Court to execute it.⁴ Where both Courts are in the same district, one Court may send to the other direct.⁵

Appeal—An appeal lies against an order rejecting an application for the transfer of a decree.⁶

Limitation—An application under this section is not an application to execute,⁷ but is an application to keep in force a decree,⁸ being a step in aid of execution.⁹ If the application is made by a vakil after the death of his client, it does not save time running.¹⁰ But if the fact of the client's death is unknown at the pendency at the time of making such application, it is one in accordance with law.¹¹ See "STEP IN AID OF EXECUTION," p 181 supra, see note on section 37.

Value jurisdiction—A Munsiff may execute a transferred decree of any amount and is not limited to his ordinary jurisdiction.¹²

45 So much of the foregoing sections of this Part as empowers a Court to send a decree for execution to another Court shall be construed as empowering a Court in British India to send a decree for execution to any Court established or continued by the authority of the Governor General in Council in the territories of any Foreign Prince or State to which the Governor General in Council has, by notification in the Gazette of India, declared this section to apply¹

Act XX of 1887, Sect 229 A This section applies to H C and Prov S C C

This is a new provision, the idea of which is taken from the practice in England. QUESTIONS TO BE DETERMINED BY COURT EXECUTING DECREE

47 (1) All questions arising between the parties to the suit in which the decree was pronounced, or their representatives, and relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree, shall be determined by the Court executing the decree and not by a separate suit

(2) The Court may, subject to any objection as to limitation or jurisdiction, treat a proceeding under this section as a suit or a suit as a proceeding and may, if necessary, order payment of any additional court fees

(3) Where a question arises as to whether any person is or is not the representative of a party, such question shall, for the purposes of this section, be determined by the Court

Explanation —For the purposes of this section, a plaintiff whose suit has been dismissed, and a defendant against whom a suit has been dismissed, are parties to the suit

Act XIV of 1882 sect 244 This section applies to H C and Prov C and to execution of a decree passed under s 53 Act XX of 1866¹ but not to proceedings under Act V of 1859

A proceeding under the corresponding section of Act XIV of 1882 was res inter alia suit within the meaning of section 10²

Court executing the decree —This includes both the Original Court and the Court if any to which the decree has been sent for execution³

Revenue Court —This section does not apply to a Revenue Court, as the remedy of a person entitled to a refund in consequence of a reversal in appeal of the decree of a Revenue Court is both by means of an application in execution and by a separate suit⁴ determined by the decree and not in execution.¹ The provision of preliminary as opposed to final decrees facilitates the introduction of this practice. The declaration of the plaintiff's rights and the order for delivery of possession can be embodied in the preliminary decree which can also in proper case, declare the amount of mesne profits accrued due to the plaintiff up to the date of the institution of the suit.² Such a decree will be appealable and capable of execution see section 36 and note to section 2 (2) and (3) vide "Decree" and "Decree holder", so that the proceedings will not be delayed by an inquiry as to the amount of mesne profits subsequent to the institution of the suit. The result of this inquiry can then be embodied in the final decree passed in the original suit. This seems to be shortly the practice indicated by the compilers of the Code but looking more closely to the wording of this section and of Order XX r 17 it appears that no absolute bar has been placed by the Legislature to the continuance of the old practice.

Order XX r 12 embodies the provisions of sections 211 and 212 of the former Code without material alteration of the powers of the Court thereunder and this section enacts that all questions relating to execution shall be determined by the Court executing the decree and it remains for the Courts themselves to decide whether any and what questions regarding mesne profits and interest are to be considered to relate to execution within the meaning of this section.—The decisions relating to mesne profits under former Codes will be found under section 2 (12) vide Mesne profits and Order XX r 17.

Parties to the suit—The Explanation puts an end to a conflict of decisions and the dismissal of a suit or part of it does not take the parties affected out of the meaning of this section. The question must arise between parties to a suit, and on the record,³ whether put rightly or wrongly.⁴ But where it does so arise it cannot be got rid of by adding unnecessary parties,⁵ nor does a decree holder cease to be a party by becoming a purchaser.⁶ Intervenor when the suit has been disposed of without decisions of their claims are not parties to the suit.⁷ In a suit for partition the mother of the other parties claimed a share. The latter compromised the suit and a decree was passed behind her back, under which she was dispossessed of certain property. Held she was a party to the suit and her objection that the decree did not bind her, and her claim to be restored to possession should have been decided under this section.⁸ A purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree is not a party,⁹ nor a purchaser pender te lite of property in suit.¹⁰ Nor is the purchaser of the rights of the judgment debtor which were sold in execution of a money decree obtained by the mortgagee, and subject to that mortgage a party to the suit in which the decree was passed,¹¹ nor is one who though originally a defendant has been released from the operation of the decree,¹² when an intervenor has been made a defendant, and exempted from the operation of the decree but directed by the Appellate Court to pay costs he still continues to be a party to the suit.¹³ The purchaser

If a legal representative sets up a title to property as his own in execution of decree, the dispute falls within this section and not under Order XXI, r. 57,¹² unless that portion of the decree which is being executed does not bind the objector,¹³ but it has been held that, if a debtor objects that he holds the property attached as wakf,¹⁴ or in any right not personal to himself,¹⁵ such a holding being not as owner but as trustee, he is not bound by the decision in execution¹⁶

Parties originally made parties to a suit, but expressly exempted from the operation of the decree are not parties to the suit within the meaning of this section. Their objections to the attachment of their property by the decree holder must be considered to be objections under Order XXI, r 57.¹ Proceedings in execution of a decree taken against the plaintiff's father and eldest brother on previous occasions did not bind the plaintiffs, who were not parties to them, within the meaning of the corresponding section of the former Code.²

Representatives—Sub section (3) now makes it incumbent upon the Court to decide questions as to representatives arising under this section outright and no option is given to remit the parties to a separate suit. The power given by this section to decide such questions must not be construed as cutting down in any way the power of the Court which passed the decree to give leave to execute it against a deceased judgment debtor's legal representative under section 50.³ The following decisions under Act XIV of 1882 may be used in the interpretation of this word for the purposes of this section.—

The term "representative" when used with reference to the judgment debtor, does not mean only his legal representative, that is, his heir, executor or administrator, but his representative in interest and includes a purchaser, who so far as such interest is concerned is bound by the decree.⁴ It includes persons by whom the decree may be executed under section 50 and Order XXI, such as the assignee of the decree holder.⁵ It has been further held to include subsequent transferees of a transferee under Order XXI, r 16 (sec 232).⁶ But in a later Calcutta case the assignee of an auction purchaser was held to be outside the meaning of the word.⁷

The mortgagee of a transferable occupancy holding claiming prior to sale in execution of a rent decree is a representative.⁸

The purchaser of property, which is at the time of purchase under attachment in execution of a decree is a representative of the judgment debtor, his vendor.¹ But if an interest comes into existence before the decree, the owner of it is not a representative,² so where executors under an order of Court borrowed a sum from A for the funeral expenses of the testator, and the will was set aside by the heir, the latter was held not to be the representative of the executors.³ A purchaser of plaintiff's interest not on the record is not a representative,⁴ neither is an auction purchaser a representative,⁵ but a person attaching a decree represents the decree holder.⁶ A purchaser by private sale of immovable property from a judgment debtor is not his representative where the decree is a simple money decree, and creates no charge upon specific property.⁷ A purchaser from a voluntary seller who has sold with the consent of the Court under O. XVI, r. 83 is a representative of the judgment debtor.⁸ A second mortgagee who takes his mortgage during the pendency of a suit on the first mortgage is a representative of the mortgagor.⁹ The Official Assignee is the representative of an insolvent judgment debtor.¹⁰ So is a lessee under a lease granted by a judgment debtor while his property was under attachment and in the charge of a Receiver.¹¹

The Members of a tribunal must proceed in execution under this section where a decree has been passed against the decedent in his representative capacity.¹² The question whether a person alleged to be a representative of a deceased party to a suit is such representative and also the questions whether property against which execution is sought in the hands of the representative of a deceased party was in fact the property of such deceased party and not the separate property of the representative are questions to be decided under this section (244 old code) and not by separate suit.¹³ When a decree for the sale of specific mortgaged property is being executed it is not open to persons made parties to the execution proceedings is legal representatives of the deceased, and it is contended in those proceedings that the mortgagor was not the mortgagor and that the decree was not his, or that it was not his.

Section 104. — The execution of the decree. This section is even now in force, but under it the Courts will give effect so far as is practicable to the intention of the Legislature to exclude from consideration all questions relating to the Mortgage Provisions and interest awarded by the Court. The object of this, it was held that the corresponding section was to be applied in the enforcement of an existing decree, capable of execution under that Act upon the application of one or other of the parties to it.

Section 104 means that the mortgage is not to be taken into consideration in the enforcement of this provision is to prevent further and fresh litigation between the parties which is only a part of the dispute in an existing suit.

The object of this provision is, as pointed out in the case of Ossimunnissa v. Amereoonnissa,¹ that the Court having the parties before it in the suit, it is proper that all questions between them relating to the execution of the decree should be determined, and that there should not be the expense of a separate suit to determine such questions. The most liberal interpretation of the Legislature is to be given to the provision in order to carry out what was the design of the Legislature. This section takes away from the parties the right to raise by fresh suit any questions as to their rights and liabilities under the mortgage. Thus the following are within the section; all questions in connection with the mortgage or sale of property, orders refusing to continue a sale on the ground that it was no substantial mortgage, or of a receiver appointed under the

In other words if the fraud alleged is in the execution proceedings the procedure is under this section, if in the decree, by separate suit¹. When there has been a fraud on the powers of the Court it is doubtful whether any waiver of right by a judgment debtor to object to the sale can affect the Court when asked to set the decree aside² and, generally questions whether the decree holder was induced by fraud to withhold execution³ or that the debtor attempted to defraud one creditor by getting another to certify a sum not paid⁴ or that the decree holder fraudulently executed the decree in opposition to an agreement not to do so, or did so in any fraudulent manner,⁵ must be determined under this section.

An allegation of fraud against the auction purchaser and not against the decree holder must be determined under this section so must an allegation of fraud against the decree holder and not against the auction purchaser⁶. It may not be competent to a Court to set aside the decree of another Court as fraudulent, but it can grant relief to the plaintiff in respect of the land which he lost by reason of the sale⁷.

Regular suit will not lie—One of the chief difficulties which arose in chief in any particular proceedings or by any way at all, to find that an application under this section can be made only by parties to the suit or their representatives, the first test to be applied to any case arising on this point is whether the persons seeking relief and the proposed defendants are parties or representatives of parties to the existing suit. In this connection recollect that the mere fact that some third party will be affected by the decision, does not take the case out of this section⁸. If they are not the remedy lies under this section. A list of reported decisions on this preliminary question is given on pp 186 189 ante.

The second question is whether the claim relates to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree in question. If not again the remedy cannot lie under this section. In considering this matter, the general principles as enunciated by the Privy Council and the cases cited on pp 190 191 ante, should be consulted.

It seems clear that one or other of these questions must be answerable in the negative to exclude any given dispute from this section.

In the present state of the decisions under section 244, (old code) it would be hazardous for the Editor of a work of this nature to enunciate general principles upon which they may seem to have been arrived at, other than as above stated. The best assistance that can be given to practitioners is probably in epitome of the head notes to the reported cases which are divided below under two heads—

templated by that section in relation to the execution of a decree after it has been executed as it would to a dispute between such parties relating to the execution of a decree before it had been executed¹. Where a sale in execution was set aside on the application of the judgment debtor, a subsequent suit by him to recover possession was held not to be maintainable². Objections that ancestral property of the judgment debtor was not liable to be sold in execution may be made under this section and a separate suit is not necessary³. When the question is whether the property in dispute belongs to the judgment debtor or to his estate or not, and the question is raised in a proceeding in execution between the parties to the suit or their representatives, it matters not on what grounds the objection is taken to the property being made the subject of execution, the question is one to be determined, in execution, and this section bars a separate suit⁴.

A regular suit will not lie to recover money realized on a decree which has been subsequently set aside or reversed on appeal⁵. A suit by a decree holder to recover purchase money from the purchaser of property sold in execution will not lie⁶. A separate suit will not lie to set aside a compromise and sale,⁷ on the ground of fraud⁸ or otherwise nor for foreclosure by a mortgagee⁹. A regular suit will not lie to restrain a decree holder from executing his decree, when the decree has been satisfied by an agreement out of Court, and such satisfaction has not been certified to the Court¹⁰ or to recover possession of certain property sold in execution of a mortgage decree passed in the presence of the plaintiff who, in the mortgage suit denying the mortgagor's right to mortgage, withdrew his defence¹¹ or to have it determined whether improvements on land attached in execution of a decree are the property of a deceased judgment debtor, which has come into the hands of his representatives as such or belong to the representatives in their own right¹². In execution of a decree against the khirvan of the defendants, certain farwal property was attached. On objection by defendants the property was released. Held, that a suit to cancel the order of release was barred¹³. When a sale has been held by a Collector under s. 310 (old code) a suit will not lie to set aside the sale on the ground that the property is ancestral and that the sale could not be legally held by the Collector¹⁴. Applications for delivery of possession of property purchased at a Court auction must be made under this section even by assignees of the decree holder's representatives. They cannot maintain a separate suit¹⁵ nor can a surety for the decretal amount sue the decree holders for a declaration that they are not entitled to execute a portion of their decree against him¹⁶.

An allegation of fraud against the auction purchaser and not against the decree holder must be determined under this section,⁷ so must an allegation of fraud against the purchaser.⁸ It may be that the Court is fraudulent which he lost by reason of the sale.⁹

Regular suit will not lie—One of the chief difficulties which arose in practice under section 244, relates to the question whether relief in any particular case should be sought under this provision in the execution proceedings or by a separate suit. This section as re-enacted has not gone far, if any way at all, to solve this constantly recurring problem. Bearing in mind that an application under this section can be made only by parties to the suit or their representatives, the first test to be applied to any case arising on this point is whether the persons seeking relief and the proposed defendants are parties or representatives of parties to the existing suit. In this connection recollect that the mere fact that some third party will be affected by the decision, does not take the case out of this section.¹⁰ If they are not the remedy lies under this section. A list of reported decisions on this preliminary question is given on pp 186 189 ante.

templated by that section in relation to the execution of a decree after it has been executed as it would to a dispute between such parties relating to the execution of a decree before it had been executed¹. Where a sale in execution was set aside on the application of the judgment debtor, a subsequent suit by him to recover possession was held not to be maintainable². Objections that ancestral property of the judgment debtor was not liable to be sold in execution may be made under this section and a separate suit is not necessary³. When the question is whether the property in dispute belongs to the judgment debtor or to his estate or not, and the question is raised in a proceeding in execution between the parties to the suit or their representatives, it matters not on what ground the objection is taken to the property being made the subject of execution, the question is one to be determined, in execution, and this section bars a separate suit⁴.

A regular suit will not lie to recover money realized on a decree which has been subsequently set aside or reversed on appeal⁵. A suit by a decree holder to recover purchase money from the purchaser of property sold in execution will not lie⁶. A separate suit will not lie to set aside a compromise and sale⁷ on the ground of fraud⁸ or otherwise nor for encroachment by a mortgagee⁹. A regular suit will not lie to restrain a decree holder from executing his decree, when the decree has been satisfied by an agreement out of Court, and such satisfaction has not been certified to the Court,¹⁰ or to recover possession of certain property sold in execution of a mortgage decree passed in the presence of the plaintiff who, in the mortgage suit denying the mortgagee's right to mortgage, withdrew his defence¹¹ or to have it determined whether improvements on land attached in execution of a decree are the property of a decree judgment debtor, which has come into the hands of his representatives as such or belong to the representatives in their own right¹². In execution of a decree against the liabilities of the defendants certain movable property was attached. On objection by defendants, the property was released. Held that a suit to cancel the order of release was barred¹³. When a sale has been held by a Collector under s. 320, (old code) a suit will not lie to set aside the sale on the ground that the property is ancestral and that the sale could not be legally held by the Collector¹⁴. Applications for delivery of possession of property purchased at a Court auction must be made under this section even by assignees of the decree holder's representatives. They cannot maintain a separate suit¹⁵ nor can a surety for the decretal amount sue the decree holders for a declaration that they are not entitled to execute a portion of their decree against him¹⁶.

Agreements prior to decree—The existence and validity of agreements as to co-its to be awarded by a decree has been determined in execution proceedings,¹ but this practice has been objected to and dissented from on the ground that the object of such an inquiry is to impugn the decree itself.² It was said in this last case that cases can only be inquired into under this section (244 former code) when the existence of a decree capable of execution is conceded.

Decree set aside—Where a decree has been executed and afterwards set aside or reversed on appeal it has been held that a fresh suit is maintainable for a refund of the purchase money³ or for the value of property appropriated in execution.⁴ In this case it was said that the decree had ceased to exist and for that reason the section (244 former code) did not apply. Compare these decisions with that of the Allahabad High Court, note (10) p. 195 ante which appears to be directly in conflict—

Sale set aside—Where a sale has been set aside for irregularity, the auction-purchaser can maintain a suit for recovery of the purchase money.⁵

Fraud—A suit will lie to set aside a decree on the ground of fraud,⁶ and this cause of action is to be distinguished from objections to the execution sale see p. 195, ante vide Fraud.

Compromise—Where a suit for possession was compromised on an agreement a subsequent suit to execute a kabuliyat in terms of that agreement has been held to be maintainable,⁷ and a suit lies for breach of an agreement not to execute a decree⁸ or to prove an adjustment out of Court which could not be taken cognizance of under sec. 238 (O. XXI, r. 2)⁹ or upon a deed executed under a decree.¹⁰

An order passed against a person who at the instigation of the judgment-debtor has been and had a judgment-debtor does not bar a suit in the name of name had been endant was only his benamidar, is not barred by this section.¹¹ A suit for partition will lie at the instance of a plaintiff who has purchased a share of a property at a sale in execution of a decree, and who has been obstructed in obtaining possession by some of the judgment debtors.¹² This section does not bar a suit to establish the liability of ancestral property in the hands of sons to satisfy their father's debts.¹³ This section does not bar a suit for contribution brought by one of two

Symbolical possession—Where a person takes symbolical possession by mistake, a suit for kh is possession will lie.³

Mortgage—A having obtained a decree against a widow on a mortgage-bond, applied to execute it against B, the reversioner, as her legal representative. B denied that he was her representative and the Judge, instead of deciding the point, put B on the record, directing that the dispute should be decided in a regular suit, held, that B could bring a suit to have it declared that the decree only bound the widow's estate.⁴ Two heirs of a Mahomedan woman took possession on her death of certain immoveable property left by her to the exclusion of the third heir, her sister. They mortgaged their property. The mortgagee brought a suit and obtained a decree for a sale. After decree one of the mortgagors died and his sister was brought upon the record as his representative. The property was sold and subsequently their sister brought a suit against the auction purchaser for recovery of her share of the mortgaged property. Held, that sec. 244 (former Code) did not apply and that the suit was maintainable.⁵ A second mortgagee, party to a foreclosure suit, must bring a separate suit to work out his rights against other incumbrancers.⁶ Where a mortgagee in suing on his mortgage included in his plaint certain property not included in the mortgage deed, held, that this section did not conclude the defendant from subsequently suing to recover the property so wrongly included.⁷

Where a decree for redemption directed that if payment was not made within the time fixed, the judgment shall be deemed to be non-existent and the plaintiff did not pay within the time fixed, it was held that a second suit for redemption was not barred.⁸ A suit will lie to set aside a sale of trust property in execution of a money decree against the plaintiff in his private capacity.⁹

Regular suit will lie

Agreements prior to decree—The existence and validity of agreements as to costs to be awarded by a decree has been determined in execution proceedings,¹ but this practice has been objected to and dissented from on the ground that the object of such an inquiry is to impugn the decree itself.² It was said in this last case that cases can only be inquired into under this section (244 former code) when the existence of a decree capable of execution is conceded.

Decree set aside—Where a decree has been executed and afterwards set aside or reversed on appeal it has been held that a fresh suit is maintainable for refund of the purchase money³ or for the value of property appropriated in execution.⁴ In this case it was said that the decree had ceased to exist and for that reason the section (244 former code) did not apply. Compare these decisions with that of the Allahabad High Court, note (10) p. 195 ante which appears to be directly in conflict—

Sale set aside—Where a sale has been set aside for irregularity, the auction purchaser can maintain a suit for recovery of the purchase money.⁵

Fraud—A suit will lie to set aside a decree on the ground of fraud,⁶ and this cause of action is to be distinguished from objections to the execution sale see p. 195, ante vide Fraud.

Compromise—Where a suit for possession was compromised on an agreement a subsequent suit to execute a kabulyat in terms of that agreement has been held to be maintainable,⁷ and a suit lies for breach of an agreement not to execute a decree,⁸ or to prove an adjustment out of Court which could not be taken cognizance of under sec. 258 (O. XXI, r. 2)⁹ or upon a deed executed under a decree.¹⁰

An order passed against a person who at the instigation of the judgment-debtor has obstructed the decree holder in obtaining possession does not bar a suit based in the name of the plaintiff who has purchased a share of a property at a sale in execution of a decree, and who has been obstructed in obtaining possession by some of the judgment debtors.¹¹ This section does not bar a suit to establish the liability of ancestral property in the hands of sons to satisfy their fathers' debts.¹² This section does not bar a suit for contribution brought by one of two

LIMIT OF TIME FOR EXECUTION

48 (1) Where an application to execute a decree not being a decree granting an injunction has been made, no order for the execution of the same decree shall be made upon any fresh application presented after the expiration of twelve years from—

- (a) the date of the decree sought to be executed, or,
 (b) where the decree or any subsequent order directs any payment of money or the delivery of any property to be made at a certain date or at recurring periods, the date of the default in making the payment or delivery in respect of which the applicant seeks to execute the decree

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed—

- (a) to preclude the Court from ordering the execution of a decree upon an application presented after the expiration of the said term of twelve years, where the judgment debtor has by fraud or force, prevented the execution of the decree at some time within twelve years immediately before the date of the application or
 (b) to limit or otherwise affect the operation of article 180 of the second schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1877

Act XIV of 1882, Sect. 230, third and fourth parts

Not an Injunction —Decrees of every kind except those granting an injunction are covered by this section. This eliminates the discussion that occasionally arose under Act XIV of 1882 regarding the precise meaning of the term decree for payment of money or delivery of other property.¹

application that a sum of money in the custody of a Government department may be sent for and paid to the applicant,¹ and an application for partial execution of a decree,² are all applications to take a step in aid of execution. An application under (s 248 old code) Order XXI, r 21 even if defective as an application for execution, is an application for a step in aid of execution and keeps the decree alive.³ An application for the issue of a notice under the same rule is a step in aid of execution.⁴

Form of application—See Order XXI, rr 10 and 25 and notes thereto—

Limitation—Execution, being a proceeding to enforce a decree comes under the head of purely adjective law and the law, of limitation prevailing at the time of the application must govern it.⁵

Limitation begins to run from the date of the final decree in the suit.⁶ The period of limitation for execution of a decree for sale under s 88, Act IV of 1882, runs from the date of the granting of an order absolute for sale without which order the proceedings against the person and other property of the judgment debtor will be barred.⁷ An ex parte decree has been rejected if the ex parte decree runs from the date of the order of execution and has to be amended, s amendment.⁸ So, too, in the case of an

holder.⁹ Where a decree was for possession of immovable property, but its execution was contingent on default being made by the judgment debtor in the payment year by year of a certain annuity to the decree holder held, that the decree holder was not obliged to execute such decree once and for all upon the occurrence of the first default, but might execute it on occasion of any subsequent default.¹⁰

Minor—When the person entitled to make an application for execution of a decree is a minor at the time from which limitation is to be reckoned, s 7 of the Limitation Act saves the execution of the decree from being barred, and any application made by his guardian on his behalf is also exempt from the operation execution proceedings were stayed beyond the period of limitation by an objection to the application to set aside the decree.

Where a decree holder was relegated to a fresh suit, a petition to execute the original decree which was dismissed before the suit was instituted could not be revived after more than three years.³

Appellate decree—Limitation runs from the date of the appellate decree and not from the original decree even if the decree is only partially appealed against.⁴ But where an appeal is rejected on account of its being insufficiently stamped, limitation runs from the date of the decree appealed against.⁵

The term 'appeal' includes an appeal to the Privy Council and limitation runs from the date of the order of the Judicial Committee.⁶

Limitation Act—Section 13—S. 13 by which the time during which a defendant has been absent from British India is excluded, does not apply to execution proceedings.⁷

Section 19—S. 19 of that Act applies to applications in execution in Calcutta.⁸

Certain date—A decree directing payments to be made annually or monthly is not a decree directing payment at a certain date within the meaning of this section,⁹ but if the date can be made certain on construction, it is sufficient.

the rule¹ When an application for execution had not been proceeded with, pending a second appeal from the decree a second application after the second appeal was dismissed was held not to be barred There is no res judicata, when the relief claimed in the two applications is different²

Construction—A construction put upon a decree in execution proceedings will bar a subsequent suit³ And although the mere order of a Court without contest is not necessarily res judicata, still the construction of a document long held should not be lightly set aside⁵ Although a decree does not in terms give a certain relief, yet if it is construed in orders passed upon it as having given that relief, it is not competent to the Court upon a subsequent application to treat those orders as erroneous and put another construction on the decree⁶

Compromise—The effect of a compromise is to extinguish the decree, which can only be enforced by a fresh suit and not by an application for execution of the former decree⁷

Appeal—An order refusing execution is a decree, and an appeal will lie to determine if the Court has exercised a proper discretion⁸

High Court—Sub section (b) now expressly saves the provision of art 180 Sch II, Act XV of 1877 and apparently does not apply to decrees made by the High Court,⁹ or to orders in Council¹⁰ or to an order made under s 86, of 11 and 12 Vict cap 21 But when the High Court passes a decree on appeal, the Court which has to execute the decree of the High Court is governed by the rules which govern the execution of its own decrees¹¹

An order for execution under the Code of Civil Procedure made after notice has, on the Original Side of the High Court, the same effect of reviving a judgment as scire facis is had¹²

Act XIV of 1882 sec 233

This section applies to H C and Prov S C C

The transferee in execution holds subjects to the equities which may be enforced against the original decree holder, and will hold subject to the rights of the judgment debtor to set off a cross decree in existence at the date of his purchase and in the same Court¹ And where the assignment is fraudulent, the right of set off remains unaffected²

Attached debt - A assigned to B his right in a decree obtained by him against a certain person who afterwards had the decree set aside and the suit re heard when a decree was again given in favour of A Thereupon D attached it for a debt due to him by A held that D's claim was prior to B's³

Assignee with notice - An equity against a decree holder operates against his assignee with notice⁴

The assignee of a simple money decree may bring to sale in execution there of property previously mortgaged by the judgment debtor to the assignor and section 99 of the Transfer of Property Act is no bar⁵

50 (1) Where a judgment debtor dies before the decree has been fully satisfied the holder of the decree may apply to the Court which passed it to execute the same against the legal representative of the deceased

(2) Where the decree is executed against such legal representative, he shall be liable only to the extent of the property of the deceased which has come to his hands and has not been duly disposed of, and, for the purpose of ascertaining such liability, the Court executing the decree may, of its own motion or on the application of the decree holder, compel such legal representative to produce such accounts as it thinks fit made representatives,¹ or the decree has been obtained against the heirs.⁴

The same rule applies where a decree has been given against a harnaman, and his representatives are put on the execution record.⁵

Property in possession of a third party—A person cannot be put on the record on the mere ground that he is in possession of property, so long as there is a legal representative on the record. But the judgment creditor can purchaser from an heir or devisee knows that there are debts unsatisfied, and the heir or devisee to whom he has paid the purchase money does not intend to apply it to the payment of debts,⁶ or there are not assets to pay the debts,⁷ the property is sold against in collusion. If the purchaser, having obtained the price, he was held liable.

Property disposed of by heirs—As regards Muhammadans and Hindus, if the heir has disposed of the property which he has inherited to a bona fide purchaser, the creditor cannot follow the property into the hands of the purchaser, but the heir is liable to account for the assets he has received¹¹ and similarly the executor of a Muhammadan will, subject to the limitation imposed by the Succession Act in case of real property, sell the estate of the deceased to pay his debt.¹²

In Allahabad it has been held that this section does not render void a sale of property attached, which takes place after the death of the original debtor and before his representative is placed on the record,¹³ but contra in Madras¹⁴ that when on the death of a judgment debtor his property is sold without bringing his legal representative on the record, the sale is void. It does not apply to the case of a creditor seeking to sell property attached during the lifetime of the judgment

And where a decree for maintenance was passed against the father, and it did not appear he was sued as manager, it was held that the decree could be executed against the assets of the deceased in the possession of the sons, but these would not include the interest the father had in the joint estate⁴.

The widow in a joint family obtained a decree for maintenance against her husband's brother, which was not expressed to be a decree against the head or representative of the family held, in execution against the representative of the judgment debtor that the family estate was not liable⁵. But it has now been held by the Bombay High Court that a money decree obtained against the father of an undivided Hindu family can be executed after his death against his sons to the extent of the ancestral property that has come into their hands, even if the

And if subsequent to attachment of immoveable property the judgment debtor dies, the property may be sold, without making the legal representative a party⁹. The Civil Procedure Code does not contemplate the representatives of a judgment debtor being placed on the record after the appellate decree has been passed¹⁰.

Practice—When an application is made under this section, the Court must, in the first place, issue notice on the person named, calling on him to show cause why the decree should not be executed against him as legal representative, but if the Court has, on a previous application, issued execution against him, no notice is necessary—Order XXI, r. 21,¹¹ If the Court considers that he is the legal representative, it may apparently enter his name on the record without trying the question whether or not he has assets¹². Official Assignee—An order vesting the estate of a judgment debtor in the Official Assignee does not give him a greater interest in it than the insolvent had. An order for the sale of certain property belonging to the insolvent, which was under attachment in execution of a decree when the vesting order was passed, is legal notwithstanding that order, and the sale is valid.²

Answer—As to the form of answer which a legal representative can advance, see order XXI, r 7.³

PROCEDURE IN EXECUTION

51 Subject to such conditions and limitations as may be prescribed, the Court may, on the application of the decree-holder, order execution of the decree—

- (a) by the delivery of any property specifically decreed,
- (b) by attachment and sale or by sale without attachment of any property,
- (c) by arrest and detention in prison,
- (d) by appointing a receiver, or,
- (e) in such other manner as the nature of the relief granted may require.

As may be prescribed—That is by the Rules in Part II of this Code.

This section merely sets out generally the powers of the Court in regard to execution and the details are left to be determined by rules made under this section. See Order XXI post.

Immediate Execution—The power to direct immediate execution is now general in terms and applicable to all classes of suits. Any restrictions upon it must be sought for in the Rules.

52 (1) Where a decree is passed against a party as the legal representative of a deceased person, and the decree is for the payment of money out of the property of the deceased, it may be executed by the attachment and sale of any such property.

(2) Where no such property remains in the possession of the judgment debtor and he fails to satisfy the Court that he has duly applied such property of the deceased as is proved to have come into his possession, the decree may be executed against the judgment debtor to the extent of the property in respect of which he has failed so to satisfy the Court, in the same manner as if the decree had been against him personally

Act XIV of 1883, sect 2, 2 This section applies to H C and Prov S C C.
See Reg 11 of 1877, s 39

This section primarily refers to a party who has been substituted before decree for the original debtor, but it is equally applicable to a person who has been made a party in the execution and a decree obtained against a man no execution was allowed to issue will not give a decree against parties as representatives of a deceased debtor where the suit is brought not on the ground that the defendants are legal representatives but on the ground that they have property of the deceased in their possession¹

Legal representatives—This includes the heir of an intestate²

It is necessary that the party against whom the decree is passed should be the legal representative who has succeeded to the property of the deceased debtor,³ unless the legal representative has put forward another as representative and is precluded from disputing the decree⁴. Thus, where a decree was given against one of two separate Hindu brothers as representative of the other who had died leaving a widow, it was held that execution could not be had against the property of the deceased in the hands of the widow, on the ground that the widow, and not the brother was the legal representative⁵. And where a decree was given against the widow of a deceased member of a joint Marikshara family as his representative it was held that execution could not be had under it against the property of the deceased which had passed to the other members of the family by survivorship⁶. On the death of a Hindu insolvent, his widow may be his legal representative within the meaning of this section, the existence of an order vesting his estate in the Official Assignee in no way affecting her possession as such representative⁷.

Liability—The decree must in the first instance be executed or attempted to be executed against the property of the deceased "in the hands of the re presentative.¹¹ The private property of the representative cannot be attached and sold until it is shewn in the execution proceedings that he has received assets of the deceased, of which he fails to prove a proper disposition,² and which should be proved by filing an inventory of the whole estate descended to him, and shewing how it has been applied.³ If he is proved to have received, or if he has admitted the receipt of, assets, which he may do by implication & by asking time to pay the amount of the decree,⁴ and fails to account for their value, execution may be had by attachment and sale, or by imprisonment, as in the case of any ordinary debtor,⁵ whether the debt for which the decree was passed became due before or after the death of the debtor,⁶ and his liability is limited to the amount of assets of the deceased which may have come to his hands and has not been duly disposed of.⁷

He is bound only to pay the full value of the assets which he received in that capacity, and if he has properly done so, even though he may still hold property which originally belonged to the deceased judgment debtor, the decree can no

Personal—Certain decrees against a deceased judgment debtor are, however, only personal decrees. For instance a decree to give accounts within a certain time, with an alternative in the shape of the payment of a sum of money in the event of refusal or neglect to do so, is a personal decree and when the judgment debtor has survived the period during which the account was to be given, and no proceedings are taken against him either then or subsequently the decree cannot be executed against his representative.¹⁰

Purchases from—The legal representative of a deceased judgment debtor is responsible, not for the property which came into his hands in such capacity, but for its value. He can sell any such property to a third party, and a creditor cannot follow it into the hands of one who has purchased it in good faith and for valuable consideration. The decree holder can only make the legal representative personally liable for the debt to the extent of the assets he received,¹¹ but if the purchaser is affected by a lis pendens or a creditor's notice, the purchase is subject to the demand.¹²

Right to raise questions as to the validity of the decree—Where the sons of a deceased judgment debtor whose estate is declared by the decree to be liable to sale are admitted on the record as his representatives, they are not entitled, in the execution stage, to reopen the whole case and to enquire into the nature of the debt.¹

Judgment-creditors—S 283 of the Indian Succession Act does not, in cases to which that Act applies prevent a person who has obtained a decree under this section from having the whole of his decree satisfied out of the assets of the deceased as far as they go to the exclusion of other parties who have claims admitted to be correct, but who have not obtained decrees.²

Where no such property remains in the possession of the judgment debtors—These words confine the section to property remaining in the possession of the legal representative and the creditor must follow property so properly alienated in a regular suit.³

Assets as to tenure—(Chattri) lands are not liable to be seized in execution of a decree against the father as property by descent in the hands of his son.⁴

Husband's and father's debt—There are, however, some cases in which a decree passed against a representative for a debt due by the deceased may be executed against property which has passed to some one other than the representative who is sued but is in the latter's possession. Thus where a Hindu died, leaving a widow and a minor son, a decree was obtained on the bond against the widow plaintiff having alleged that she was guardian of the minor son. In this case it was held that a sale in execution of this decree, of the right title and interest of the debtor carried the interest of the deceased, and not that of the widow which was nothing. But where the decree is a personal decree the purchaser cannot go behind it and the sale proceedings, to show that the sale was not confined to her limited interest⁵ and where the decree did not describe the respect of which a decree has been passed, shall be deemed to be property of the deceased which has come to the hands of the son or other descendant as his legal representative

The effect of this new section is to enable decree holders to have such questions of Hindu Law tried out in execution and to spare them the expense and delay entailed by the institution and maintenance of a fresh suit. It is of course open to the son or other descendant to set up all or any defence which he could raise in a separate suit and no liability is imposed by this section other than that established by the substantive Hindu Law. accordance with it, and the decree has become, by lapse of time or otherwise unenforceable, it is competent to the parties or any of them, if they still continue to be interested in the joint property, to bring a fresh suit for partition¹. In a decree for partition, the right of each individual is determined, and an application by one party to execute may be continued by another².

In the North West, a suit for partition and possession of the share in an isolated plot in a joint zemindari by a co-sharer cannot be brought in the Civil Court³. A suit for partition between parties one of whom owns interests subordinate to the other is maintainable⁴. A decree for partition does not operate as a severance so long as it remains under appeal⁵.

Provided fourthly that where the decree in execution of which a judgment debtor is arrested is a decree for the payment of money and the judgment debtor pays the amount of the decree and the costs of the arrest to the officer arresting him such officer shall at once release him

(2) The Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette declare that any person or class of persons whose arrest might be attended with danger or inconvenience to the public shall not be liable to arrest in execution of a decree otherwise than in accordance with such procedure as may be prescribed by the Local Government in this behalf.

(3) Where a judgment debtor is arrested in execution of a decree for the payment of money and brought before the Court the Court shall inform him that he may apply to be declared insolvent and that he will be discharged if he has not committed any act of bad faith regarding the subject of the application and if he complies with the provisions of the law of insolvency for the time being in force.

Where a judgment debtor expresses his intention to be declared an insolvent and furnishes security, and the action of the Court that he will within one month and that he will appear when called upon upon the application or upon the decree which he was arrested, the Court shall arrest and if he fails so to apply and to appear the Court may either direct the security to be forfeited or commit him to the civil prison in execution of the decree.

Second proviso. The effect is to change the law and is an endeavour to resist execution of the judgment debtor if he endeavours to resist execution of the judgment. (2) The sub-section is intended to cover the case of persons whose sudden arrest might endanger or inconvenience the general public.

This section applies to H C and Prov S C C For power to refuse an application for imprisonment of a judgment debtor in Ajmere and Merwar, see the Ajmere Courts Regulation, 1877, (1 of 1877), s 31 This section applies to Small Cause Court debtors ¹

Personal decree—Where a decree upon a hypothecated bond allows satisfaction of the debt from the hypothecated property and also from the judgment debtor personally and contains no condition that execution shall first be enforced against the property, there is no principle of equity which prevents the decree holder from enforcing his decree against the judgment debtor's person or property, whichever he may think best² but when the decree merely provided for the satisfaction of the judgment debt out of the property mortgaged, the decree could not be executed against the person of the judgment debtor³

In execution of a decree—This section and sections 57 and 59 extend to all arrested persons under this Code whether in execution or otherwise see section 134 post

Purview of the section—When in a bond under the corresponding section 336 of Act XIV of 1882 besides the usual covenants to produce the judgment debtor before the Court and that the judgment debtor would apply to be declared an insolvent, further stipulations were contained as to what should happen if the judgment debtor's application to be declared insolvent were refused, it was held that the latter stipulations were not such as were contemplated by the section and could not be enforced thereunder⁴

Step in aid of execution—An application by the heirs of a deceased judgment creditor for the arrest of the judgment debtor, is a step in aid of execution, though at the time of application they had not taken out a certificate under Act VII of 1869, nor had they applied for substitution of their names on the record⁵

Shall be discharged—A person arrested and brought up before the Court should be discharged on giving security and stating his intention to file a schedule⁶ but if he has been sent to prison, he can only be released under sec 58⁷

Liability to arrest—Persons exempt from personal appearance in Court under ss 132-133 whether male or female, are subject to ss 56 liable to arrest in execution (s 132)⁸ An arrest under civil process of a mofussil Court on Sunday is legal⁹

Liability for illegal arrest—As to the liability for negligence of the officer arresting the judgment debtor,¹⁰ or for not taking a proper surety¹¹ As to when damages may be recovered for arrest in accordance with a decree, see ¹²

ATTACHMENT

60 (1) The following property is liable to attachment and sale in execution of a decree, namely, Property liable to attachment and sale in execution of decree lands, houses or other buildings, goods, money, banknotes, cheques, bills of exchange, hundis, promissory notes, Government securities, bonds or other securities for money, debts, shares in a corporation and, save as hereinafter mentioned, all other saleable property, moveable or immoveable, belonging to the judgment debtor, or over which, or the profits of which, he has a disposing power which he may exercise for his own benefit, whether the same be held in the name of the judgment-debtor or by another person in trust for him or on his behalf

Provided that the following particulars shall not be liable to such attachment or sale, namely:—

- (a) the necessary wearing apparel, cooking vessels, beds and bedding of the judgment debtor, his wife and children, and such personal ornaments as, in accordance with religious usage, cannot be parted with by any woman,
- (b) tools of artisans, and, where the judgment-debtor is an agriculturist, his implements of husbandry and such cattle and seed-grain as may, in the opinion of the Court, be necessary to enable him to earn his livelihood as such, and such portion of agricultural produce or of any class of agricultural produce as may have been declared to be free from liability under the provisions of the next following section,
- (c) houses and other buildings (with the materials and the sites thereof and the land immediately appurtenant thereto and necessary for their enjoyment) belonging to an agriculturist and occupied by him,
- (d) books of account;
- (e) the right to sue for damages,
- (f) personal service,
- (g) gratuities allowed to pensioners of Government, or payable out of any service pension fund notified in the Gazette of

India by the Governor General in Council in this behalf, and political pensions,

- (h) allowances (being less than salary) of any public officer or of any servant of a railway company or local authority while absent from duty,
- (i) the salary or allowances equal to salary of any such public officer or servant as is referred to in clause (h), while on duty, to the extent of—
 - (i) the whole of the salary, where the salary does not exceed twenty rupees monthly,
 - (ii) twenty rupees monthly, where the salary exceeds twenty rupees and does not exceed forty rupees monthly, and
 - (iii) one moiety of the salary in any other case,
- (j) the pay and allowances of persons to whom the Indian Articles of War apply,
- (k) all compulsory deposits and other sums in or derived from any fund to which the Provident Funds Act 1897, for the time being applies in so far as they are declared by the said Act not to be liable to attachment,
- (l) the wages of labourers and domestic servants, whether payable in money or in kind,
- (m) an expectancy of succession by survivorship or other merely contingent or possible right or interest
- (n) a right to future maintenance,
- (o) any allowance declared by any law passed under the Indian Councils Acts, 1861 and 1892, to be exempt from liability to attachment or sale in execution of a decree, and,
- (p) where the judgment debtor is a person liable for the payment of land revenue, any moveable property which, under any law for the time being applicable to him, is exempt from sale for the recovery of an arrear of such revenue.

Explanation —The particulars mentioned in clauses (g), (h), (i), (j), (l) and (o) are exempt from attachment or sale whether before or after they are actually payable

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed—

(a) to exempt houses and other buildings (with the materials and the sites thereof and the lands immediately appurtenant thereto and necessary for their enjoyment) from attachment or sale in execution of decrees for rent of any such house, building, site or land, or

(b) to affect the provisions of the Army Act or of any similar law for the time being in force

Act XL of 1882, s. 266. This section applies to H. C., and also to Prov. S. C. C., except so far as it relates to immovable property. As to Oudh, see Act XLIII of 1876, s. 20. As to Amere, see Reg. I of 1877, s. 26. See also the Indian Marine Act, XL of 1887, s. 81 and the Army Act 1881, 44 & 45 Vict., c. 58, s. 151.

Profits of Property—When a party attaches property he also attaches the profits thereof, but if he allows the original owner to remain in possession and enjoy the profits, they cease from the moment they had their way into the pockets of the owner to be specifically liable for the judgment debt under the attachment.¹

Disposing power—A cover containing notes in the Post Office is in the disposing power of the addressee² but the trustee of a religious endowment has not a disposing power over the corpus of the estate³. The money payable to an auctioneer by purchasers of goods entrusted to him cannot be attached by the creditors of the auctioneer, except as to such amount as the judgment debtor has a disposing power over, exercisable for his own benefit⁴.

Non-alienable—And where land was assigned to a widow for her maintenance with a proviso against alienation or charging it was held that she had no saleable interest in the usufruct. But see *Bunodhar v. Gulab Kuar*⁵ in which the question as to whether villages assigned to a Hindu widow in lieu of her maintenance can be attached or not was left undecided. An interest in the income of immovable property assigned by way of maintenance to a Hindu widow by the members of her family is not capable of being attached and sold in execution of a decree against the widow,⁶ but where property was devised with a clause that it should be held impartible, the debtor's share was allowed to be attached.⁷ The income of property belonging to a married man subject to restraint or anticipation is not attachable.⁸

For his own benefit—These words do not prevent an attachment in a suit against the father of a Hindu family affecting the interests of his sons.⁹

Other saleable property—A decree of Court is property within this section,¹ but account books are not,² though if a judgment debtor attempts to make away with his account books in order to defeat the creditor, the Court may require him to produce them and leave them in the custody of the Court.³ A lease which prohibits alienation by sale or gift may be sold in execution of a decree.⁴ A judgment debtor having been in possession of property for more than 12 years, has a title by adverse possession which is capable of being attached.⁵ So also his property, even though it be the subject of an existing suit.⁶ A vested remainder in a house is attachable and saleable under this section.⁷ Spears and diggers are goods. A Nazir may sell arms in execution of his duty.⁸ A life interest in trust funds under a settlement of which the Official Trustee is the trustee can be attached.⁹

Portions of property—The doors and windows of a building cannot be separately attached.¹⁰ A portion of a saleable tenure cannot be sold for arrears of rent.¹¹ An attachment of a portion of a dhing in execution of a decree obtained in a mortgage of such portion is illegal. Such portion of a dhing cannot be sold.¹²

Equity of redemption—The equity of redemption in mortgaged property can be attached and sold in execution of a decree against the mortgagor,¹³ unless the person applying for attachment and sale is also mortgagee.¹⁴ The debtor's interest in money or other securities deposited by him as a security for the performance of his duty is saleable.¹⁵

Partnership—In a partnership suit the accounts were submitted to arbitration helfi, the claim under the award before award made was not property that could be attached.¹⁶ The share held by the judgment debtor in the assets of a partnership business with the decree holder, the business being in the hands of the Receiver of the Court under a decree for dissolution and winding up, cannot be attached.¹⁷ nor can the share in the undivided assets be attached,¹⁸ but where a decree holder attached and seized certain goods which belonged to the judgment debtor in partnership with another person, who alone at the time of attachment was in actual possession it was held that such attachment must be limited to the share of the judgment debtor, and should not be by nominal seizure but by actual seizure under ¹. The share of a partner in partnership business is saleable property -

Sec. 17 - Property in the hands of the Receiver of the High Court cannot be proceeded against by attachment in the inofussil ²

Tenants in common - Plaintiff permitted B to erect a thatched house with mud walls on his land and dwell in it for fifty years. It was held that B had a saleable interest in the house and land ³. Where a tenant has an hereditary interest in property it can be attached ⁴. An occupancy holding which is not saleable by custom is a right cannot be sold in execution of a decree executed under the Civil Procedure Code ⁵.

Goods - Where A contracted to lay down a certain quantity of pavement for B and having carted paving stones to the works to the value of Rs. 100, received an advance of that sum from B held that the materials had vested in the purchaser and could not be attached under a decree against A ⁶.

Hindu family - The interest of an undivided member of a Hindu family subject to Mutak rahan is liable to attachment, the purchaser should sue for partition ⁷.

Life interest - Where A was only entitled to a life interest in the residue of the real and personal property of B after all charges had been satisfied and full administration had taken place held, his interest could not be sold in execution ⁸.

Tenants trees - Trees growing on the lands of an exproprietary tenant in the North West cannot be sold ⁹.

Transfer of Property Act - As to what property may be transferred see s. 6 Act IV of 1882. The right to claim specific performance of an agreement to transfer land is attachable ¹⁰.

Religious trust—The right to manage a religious trust,¹ or a religious office,² or to officiate at the worship conducted in a temple,³ is not saleable nor can any portion of the corpus of the trust property be taken out of the hands of the trustee.⁴ A priestly office with emoluments attached cannot be transferred either by private sale, or by sale in execution of a decree.⁵ Offerings which may in future be made to a Hindu idol and the right to receive such offerings are not saleable.⁶

Cattle as may in the opinion of the Court—Only beasts declared to be necessary by the Court are exempted.⁷

Necessary wearing apparel—There is nothing in the law to exempt property in a saman from attachment⁸ but ornaments on the person of a Hindu wife, forming part of her stidh in, cannot be taken in execution of a decree against her husband. On certain occasions, under Hindu law, a husband may take them, but his right is a personal one.⁹ Under Act XIV of 1882, ordinary trinkets such as neck ornaments, cannot be seized for a woman's debt¹⁰ and in sub section (a) all such personal ornaments as are in any way connected with religious usage are expressly excepted.

Materials of house—This means a house occupied by an agriculturist in that capacity.¹¹ This provision does not prohibit the sale of property specifically mortgaged, although the property be materials of a house belonging to or occupied by an agriculturist.¹² A rent decree has priority over an ordinary money decree, if executed against the house for which the rent was claimed.¹³ The provisions of the law in which his to agricul and proved onging to a provisions of

been passed, it is capable of being attached and sold in satisfaction of the debts of the decree holder.¹ "Damages" includes mesne profits.²

Land & acquisition compensation — Money in the hands of the Collector as compensation for lands taken up for public purposes cannot be attached in execution of a mortgage decree. Claims to such compensation must be made before the Collector.³

Debt — A debt is a liquidated money obligation for which speaking generally, a suit will lie,⁴ and probably as is the rule in England since the Judicature Act, there is no distinction in this country between legal and equitable debts.⁵ But as the sum must be liquidated, unliquidated damages after verdict do not constitute a debt unless judgment has been given so as to make it a judgment debt.⁶

Debts are of two kinds payable at present, and payable in future. In England they are called 'owing and accruing'.⁷ This division was known before Act VIII of 1833 and is probably sound under the Code. In the case of Tuffazul Hossein v. Raghunath,⁸ their lordships of the Privy Council said in regard to the law before Act VIII of 1833:—"It appears plainly that a mere expectancy or a mere right of suit cannot be attached, that the attachment must operate at the time of attachment and not be anticipatory so as to fix on some future state of property in which the suit may result. Thus if the land of A be held by A subject to an option in B to take it at a definite price or sum, the attachment must be of the land and not of the price. An existing debt, though payable at a future day, may be attached whilst a salary, wages, or money claim accruing due may not. A debt acknowledged, though not recoverable because the charge given to secure it was not registered is within the section. A prohibitory order — — — — — payable.⁹ Public description of or wages, rent, or an annuity is not a debt.¹⁰ Otherwise if the sum is owing,¹¹ for money owing by a person who cannot refuse to pay it is a debt.¹²

A thing incapable of being estimated or valued, such as "all the claims of Ramanath against all his debtors" cannot be attached.¹³ So, where A for valuable consideration contracted with B to satisfy a decree outstanding against him, and instead of carrying out his agreement, purchased the decree, executed it and brought B's property to sale, it was held that the purchaser of B's right under the contract had no title to relief for the breach.¹⁴

Claims over which no Court in British India has jurisdiction, are not debts liable to be attached under this section, though the mere circumstance that the garnishee is at the time of the application for attachment beyond the limits of British India would not of itself render the debts not liable to be attached.¹

A Railway Company sanctioned a liability to the money was in the hands of the paymaster. But it could not be attached as the gift was not complete, and there is no debt due.

The judgment cited for which attaches is not an assignee and is subject to any equities against the debtor.²

Whether arrears of interest due on a Government promissory note, blank endorsed and payable to bearer under the terms of the instrument, is a debt seizable is not quite clear.³ Where money is due by an agent or vendee to his principal or vendor the principal or vendor's claim against his agent or vendee may be attached and sold in execution of a decree against the principal or vendor as a debt and it is not necessary that the exact amount due to the principal should be ascertained prior to attachment and sale.⁴ But the right or interest which the vendor of immovable property has in the purchase money, where it has been agreed that the same shall be paid on the execution of the conveyance, is not, so long as it has not been executed, a debt, but a mere possible right or interest and so not liable to attachment.⁵

Pre-emptive price—The holder of a decree for pre-emption paid the pre-emptive price into Court. A creditor of the decree holder applied for attachment of the money so paid in and it was allowed by the Court to withdraw a portion of it. After the decree for pre-emption had been confirmed in appeal, the pre-emptor applied for possession of the pre-empted property. held, the decree holder was entitled to obtain possession and that it was not competent to the Court to pay out to any one but the person entitled to it under the decree for pre-emption any portion of the pre-emptive price, so long as the decree for pre-emption was not modified or reversed in appeal.⁶

Any right of personal service—Birth Moha Bramance, or the right to officiate at funeral ceremonies cannot be attached, inasmuch as it is a thing intangible, impartible and incapable of transfer,⁷ nor is the apadhikpana vritti of the Godavari in Nasick.⁸ A vritti is a right of personal service and cannot be sold in execution of a decree though private alienations are not absolutely prohibited.⁹ But a vritti can be sold, if a decree of a Civil Court expressly declares that a person's right in it shall be sold.¹⁰ Similarly, the right of the shebait of a Hindu idol to perform the services and receive the remuneration is not subject to attachment,¹¹ and if sold, the purchaser would have no interest as against the next shebait,¹² but if he is paid by the proceeds of landed property and there is a surplus after providing for the worship of the idol, that interest can be attached,¹ provided the extent of interest is decided in a suit to which all the persons interested are parties² but apparently the purchaser would not be entitled to enter on the land.³

Gifted tenures—Gifted tenures are not liable in the hands of a gift-wal for the debts of his father. See 'SERVICE FUTURE' post. Future rents and profits that may become due to a gift-wal cannot be attached in execution of a decree against him.⁴

Stipends, &c. This clause includes all pensions of a political nature paid directly by the Government.⁵ Stipends allowed to military and civil pensioners of Government and political stipends allowed by Government to the members of the Mysore family cannot be attached⁶ nor can the stipends granted to the descendants of Azem-oo Dowlat, the Nawab of the Carnatic,⁷ so the arrears of 12 makh pension due to a deceased zemindar are not liable to attachment.⁸ So also it has been held that an allowance fixed under Act VI of 1843 (II m) cannot be attached in the hands of the Collector or other deputy sub-officer but that as soon as it is in the hands of the hereditary officer himself it is deprived of any special protection.⁹

Government pensions—A person who is only entitled to a gratuity falls within the exemption.¹⁰ A bonus in addition to pension is not attachable.¹¹

Where a pensioner died the balance of his pension unpaid at the time of his decease was held not to be liable to attachment.¹² A grant of an annual sum made by Government as compensation for loss sustained by the grantee on account of improper resumption of rent free land is not a pension and may be attached.¹³ A zemindari granted not revenue free by Government is not a pension and its alienation is not prohibited by this sec.¹⁴ A Toragaras hak is not exempted from attachment by s. 11 of the Pensions Act of 1871.¹⁵

Private pensions—Can be attached as debts but the sums attached must not be inchoate but arrears existing and definite.¹⁶ When a person made over property to the Court of Wards partly in consideration of a present payment and partly in consideration of an annuity payable to the vendor, such annuity was capable of being attached in execution of a decree against the vendor.¹⁷

Salary of a public officer or of the servant of a railway company—It can be done in advance¹ and to the extent of half the actual salary². The salary of a telegraph officer which is due for past services is a debt which may be attached³. The wages of a private servant cannot be attached in whole or in part before they become due and a debt exists⁴. Apart from the special provision of this Act, any money given by Government to its servants not only for past, but also as a return for future service cannot be attached. Thus, the pay of a Government official is not attachable⁵ nor is half pay, as the money is, to some extent received for future services, but money actually due solely in respect of past services, such as a pension, is liable to sequestration⁶.

A khot is not a public officer, nor is the percentage he receives for collecting the assessment on lands 'salary'. The attachment upon the salary of a railway servant ceases to be operative after he has filed his petition in insolvency and should be withdrawn on notice being given of the making of the vesting order⁷. The exemption to the attachment of stipends, pensions, salaries, &c., prescribed by part (g) of this section does not extend to decrees for alimony, which may now be executed to the extent of one moiety of the exempted pensions and allowances.

Indian Articles of War—The Indian Articles of War, (Act V of 1869), amended by Act VII of 1894 apply only to soldiers and followers of the Native Army. By arts 182 and 183 of these Articles of War, as well as by prov so (1) of this section the pay and allowances of persons subject to them, as well as of Indian reservists, when actively employed, are absolutely protected from attachment.

Military Officers—The Army Act (44 and 45 Vict, c 58) ss 136 and 144 formerly protected the pay of a soldier from attachment. But s 136 has been amended by the Army Annual Act of 1895 which now provides that the pay of an officer or soldier of his Majesty's regular forces shall be paid without any deductions other than the deductions authorised by this or any Act or by any Royal Warrant for the time being or by any law passed by the Governor General in Council. This amendment has had the effect of rendering a moiety of the

him, but the operation of the attachment must be restricted to pay received from the Indian Government. This is correct. But it was further held that the pay of an officer of the Regular Forces is not so subject to attachment. For the reasons assigned above, this is not correct. See also Order xxvii, r 8.

Labourers—Labourers are persons who earn their daily bread by personal manual labour, or in occupations which require little or no art, skill, or previous education¹¹.

Domestic servant—See 1

An expectancy of succession—This clause would include the right and title of the next heir on the death of a Hindu lady having only a life interest or on the death of his father¹ and the life interest of a judgment debtor in the residue of the property of a testator after full administration thereof² but not those of Mahomedans taking under a deed of settlement by which a husband granted the lands in dispute to his wife on condition that, if she had a child by him the grant should be taken in usufruct³ and if not, a life interest to her with remainder to the sons⁴ or of a son under Muskharrar law, whose rights co-exist jointly with his father from birth⁵ or of a grandson under that law. In Hindu law, where the interest of an undivided member in the joint property of a Hindu family is attached for his personal debt, and he dies pending the attachment a full charge is created in favour of the judgment creditor which will prevent the accrual to the other co-partners of the right of survivorship⁶. The reversionary right of the person who makes a gift of a plot of land to a Hindu widow for her maintenance is a vested right in the land and is such, is capable of being mortgaged and sold⁷.

Pre-emptor—The interest of a successful pre-emptor who has not paid the pre-emptive price is saved from attachment by clause (iii)¹⁰.

Right to future maintenance—Although a mere right to a future maintenance cannot be attached¹¹ interest thereon is¹². But it has been held that if an instalment of maintenance payable under a decree is about to become due, the Court may make an order for the non-payment of such instalment by the party chargeable and its non-receipt by the judgment debtor or may make an arrangement for the collection or administration if necessary of the amount of the maintenance¹³ and that an annuity which is a charge on an estate can be attached in payment of debts due to the person who has alienated the estate from his grantor, and by whom such annuity is now payable¹⁴ so also where a deed grants a regular maintenance payable from the grantor's estate and recoverable in Court on non-payment, such allowance is property which can be attached.¹ So can an annuity given by will.²

Malikana rights—An attachment of malikana rights payable for ever, is only good so far as it relates to any specific amount then due or likely to become due.³

Non-saleable property—Property may be attached, though it may not be liable to sale without a separate suit.⁴

Prior attachment onus of proof—If at the date of an assignment of a decree, the judgment debtor's property is already under attachment in execution of such decree, it is not necessary for the assignee of the decree to apply for a fresh attachment. When either the decree holder or his assignee applies to have attachment under the decree of property which has previously been attached under the decree, it lies upon the decree holder or his assignee, if the question is raised to show that the second application was unnecessary by reason of the first attachment still subsisting. Failing such evidence a Court may presume that the prior attachment had ceased before the application for a second attachment was made.⁵

61 The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, by general or special order published in the local official Gazette, declare that such portion of agricultural produce, or of any class of agricultural produce, as may appear to the Local Government to be necessary for the purpose of providing until the next harvest for the due cultivation of the land and for the support of the judgment debtor and his family shall, in the case of all agriculturists or of any class of agriculturists be exempted from liability to attachment or sale in execution of a decree.

This is a new provision and the exemption is intended to extend to produce which has been hypothecated. [Vide Report of Second Committee]

62 (1) No person executing any process under this Code directing or authorizing seizure of moveable property shall enter any dwelling house after sunset and before sunrise.

(2) No outer door of a dwelling-house shall be broken open unless such dwelling-house is in the occupancy of the judgment debtor and he refuses or in any way prevents access thereto, but when the person executing any such process has duly gained access to any dwelling-house, he may break open the door of any room in which he has reason to believe any such property to be.

Act XLV of 1882 sect 271 This section applies to H C and Prov S C C

It seems by implication to introduce an authority to break open the outer door of a judgment debtor's own house but has not gone so far as to extend this new right to the house of a stranger in which the debtor may be discovered.

Trespass A judgment creditor who attaches property which does not belong to his judgment debtor commits a trespass for which he is responsible in damages measured by the value of the property on the date of attachment,¹ even though he may have acted without motive and mistakenly.² Every person who directs orders or procures the commission of a trespass is liable as a wrong doer and trespasser and under a system where any remedy against the officer executing the powers of the Court would be utterly nugatory it is peculiarly necessary not to relax the rule as to the liability of the decree holder for his own acts or those of his agents in causing the decree to be executed.³ A warrant authorizes the attachment of the goods of A, if the decree holder points out to the officer of the Court, and causes him to attach and remove the goods of B as the goods of A, he is a wrong doer and cannot in any way justify his proceedings under the warrant. In causing B's goods to be attached and taken out of his possession, he procures a trespass to be done to B. If a man for his own profit and advantage wrongfully and without any warrant of law trespasses upon the land of another, takes away his goods, or procures his goods to be seized and taken out of his possession he is responsible, even though he acts honestly or mistakenly. A party to a suit is liable, if by his order the officer takes the goods of the wrong person, a stranger, in execution and in like manner he is responsible if his attorney or agent in taking a step necessary to enable his client to get the fruits of a decree, inadvertently or ignorantly causes the person or property of a stranger to be seized by the officer of Court.⁴

several Courts

Court is under attachment in execution of decrees of more Courts than one, the Court which shall receive or realize such property and shall determine any claim thereto and any objection to the attachment thereof shall be the Court of highest grade, or where there is no difference in grade between such Courts, the Court under whose decree the property was first attached

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to invalidate any proceeding taken by a Court executing one of such decrees

Act XIV of 1887 sect 75. This section applies to H. C. and Prov. S. C. C.

The effect of the new provision in sub section (2) seems to be to clear up some of the difficulties raised under the corresponding section of the former Code. The proceedings of an inferior Court will no longer be vitiated by a contravention of sub section (1)¹ but it is not clear how the rights of two innocent purchasers at sales by two separate Courts are to be determined. Under the former Code the buyer at the sale by the Superior Court had the better title but now the proceedings in the inferior Court are expressly saved from the result of contravening the provision of sub section (1).

Application of this section—The section has no reference to the sections of the Code relating to the sale and delivery of property,² and it is doubtful whether it refers to immovable property.³ It does not apply when the conflict is between a Revenue and a Civil Court, so the first sale, by whichever Court it may have been held conveys a good title.⁴

Practice—The following decisions, under Act XIV of 1887, may serve as guide under this section.

The Court referred to in this section has the sole power of deciding objections to the attachment of determining claims made to the property, of ordering the sale thereof and receiving the sale proceeds, and of providing for their distribution under s 73.⁵ Where by mistake the property has been sold in the lower Court the property should not be re sold, but the superior Court should adopt the sale and distribute the assets realised.⁶

Munsif's Court, N. W. P.—In the North Western Provinces, the Court of a Munsif must for the purposes of this section be regarded as of higher grade than a Court of small Causes.⁷

61 Where an attachment has been made, any private transfer or delivery of the property attached or of any interest therein and any payment to the judgment debtor of any debt dividend or other monies contrary to such attachment shall be void as against all claims enforceable under the attachment.

Interpretation—For the purposes of this section, claims enforceable under an attachment include claims for the rateable distribution of assets.

Act XIV of 1882, Sect. 276 This section applies to H. C. and Prov. S. C.

Effect of attachment—Until there is sale in execution of the judgment debtor's estate the right of property remains to him¹ and attachment does not create any interest or charge upon the properties in favour of the attaching creditor as against other creditors². Attachment prevents alienation, but does not confer title³ but an order of sale in addition to attachment under a mortgage decree creates a valid charge on the property⁴ and attachment by a creditor of the interest of a member of a joint family will support a partition⁵. An attaching creditor has a right to redeem a mortgage upon the property attached by him,⁶ and he may oppose probate of the debtor's will, if the probate has been obtained in fraud of creditors.

Increment Quare—If, between the time of attachment and the time of sale the interest of the judgment becomes enlarged or accelerated, will it not pass by the sale?⁷

Death of debtor—If the judgment debtor dies after attachment, his property may be sold without putting his legal representative on the record.⁸

Rent co sharer—The attachment of a tenure in execution of a decree obtained by a fractional co sharer for arrears of rent is not such an attachment as is contemplated by s. 170 of the Bengal Tenancy Act¹⁰.

Lien—The lien acquired by the judgment creditor under this section is not affected by a mortgage of the property by the judgment debtor after the grant of a certificate under Order xvi, r. 82.¹¹

Where an attachment has been made—An alienation before attachment is good, even though the parties may know that a judgment creditor was seeking to get process of execution against that property provided that such alienation was bona fide and for valuable consideration,¹ and a debtor may, although unsatisfied decrees be outstanding against him prior to attachment, give a preference to a particular creditor or class of creditors over others, and this notwithstanding that the effect of the alienation or preference may be to defeat the operation of an anticipated execution. The leading case on the subject is that of *Puddomonee v Roy Muthooranath*² in which their lordships of the Privy Council stated as settled law, that if an attachment has been permanently struck off and a new attachment has become necessary, a conveyance executed between the two attachments is valid, but it was thought doubtful whether, as a consequence of this, a conveyance executed whilst the first attachment was subsist-

before or after decree is the same, provided in the former case a decree was made for the plaintiff at whose instance the attachment takes place.³ An assignment by a Hindu widow of her life interest in the profits arising from immoveable property left by her deceased husband after it had been attached under order XXI, r 53 is invalid.⁴ The object of the section is to make void only transactions prejudicing the execution creditor.⁵ When a private alienation of attached property is made under such circumstances that it in no way interferes with the rights secured by his decree to the attaching decree holder, this is no bar to such alienation.⁶ Where a party prosecuting a decree is compelled to take out another execution, his title should be presumed to date from the second attachment.⁷

Sale set aside—When an execution sale is set aside on account of irregularity in the proceedings, the attachment remains, so that the decree holder can again bring it to sale.¹⁰

Death of judgment debtor—The attachment does not cease on the death of the judgment debtor,¹¹ even though the estate passes to the surviving members of a joint Mitakshara family.¹²

subsequent alienation it had to be shewn that it had been duly made by a written order issued and published.¹

Existing Decree—There must be a decree in existence to support the attachment,² if the decree is set aside at the date of attachment, the attachment is null and void and a renewed decree in the same terms will not validate it.³

Time and mode of objecting—Objections on the ground that the proper formalities have not been carried out must be proved by the party raising them, and cannot be raised for the first time before the Privy Council.⁴

Enforceable under the attachment The alienation is null and void only as against the attaching creditor or persons who may acquire under or through the attachment and not as against the whole world,⁵ and only so far as may be necessary to effect the execution of the decree,⁶ so that if the decree is subsequently satisfied, the alienation is binding on the debtor.⁷ Thus, where property was attached on non payment of an instalment which was paid by the debtor out of the proceeds of a private sale of the property, it was held that the Court could not continue the attachment so as to ensure payment of instalments not yet payable and the alienation was good.⁸ So as to the creditor⁹ or the sale or mortgage of the attached property to pay off the judgment debtor is not void.¹⁰ But all these decisions must now be subjected to the Explanation to this section which expressly includes the claims of subsequent execution creditors under section 73 infra.¹¹

Purchase by mortgagee—If a mortgagee purchases privately, and his purchase is void as against the subsequent auction purchaser, he can fall back on his mortgage.¹²

Effect of removal of attachment on alienation made during its continuance—Where there is an existing decree¹³ the removal of an attachment does not render an alienation made whilst the attachment was subsisting a valid one, as it could not have a retrospective effect.¹⁴ But a known executed during the subsistence of an attachment which was afterwards removed, on the decree in execution of which the property was attached being satisfied, was held to be valid.¹⁵ When a Mahomedan by his will bequeaths more than one third of his whole property to a stranger the consent of his heirs to such bequest although given after the property bequeathed has been attached in execution of a decree against the testator's heirs, does not amount to an alienation prohibited by this section¹

Private transfer—This does not refer to an alienation effected by a vesting order of the Insolvent Court such an alienation is rather an alienation by operation of law than one by the judgment debtor². The renewal of an existing obligation is not an alienation³.

The effect of striking off an execution case—There is no general rule as to the effect upon an attachment of striking an execution case off the file,⁴ it must depend on the circumstances of the particular case⁵. It has been held recently that attachment does not cease because the execution case is dismissed for want of prosecution⁶.

In the case of *Jhoboo Sahoo v Ram Churn*⁷ Macpherson, J. observed, "I confess that it appears to me that the question whether an execution case has or has not been struck off the file is of little importance as affecting the validity and continuance of an attachment, except in so far as the striking off may be a legal of its own motion and without notice to the parties on any legal ground whatever in no way withdraws or affects the validity of an attachment, and is not binding on the judgment creditor. In the case of *Mohesh Narain v Aishanund*⁸ at page 341, their lordships say 'It would be contrary to general principles and a senseless addition to all the vexations of delay in the course of procedure to hold that when for any reason satisfactory or not, the execution of a final decree in a suit fails, or is set aside, and the proceedings are regards that execution are taken off the file the whole suit is discontinued thereby and the further proceedings for the same purpose are to be considered as taken in a new suit. If the decree holder at the instance and for the benefit of the debtor consents to a postponement for a certain time to enable the debtor to meet his liabilities on condition that the attachment remains in force and the Court, merely with a view to keep its files clear, strikes off the case such an order striking off the case, which is not a proper order cannot affect the attachment,¹ and if a Judge has struck a case off improperly, he can restore it again.² Where the decree holder, when called upon to furnish security before selling the attached property (there was an appeal to the Privy Council), failed to furnish that security, and the execution case was struck off it was held that the effect of that order was to leave intact all the proceedings which had been taken up to that stage.³ Applications to determine mesne profits are to be heard as applications for execution. Their striking off does not finally decide them.⁴ But where attachment having issued on an application for execution of a decree proceedings were on the 31st December, 1873 stayed for a month by consent, and the execution case was "struck off for the present" and on the 30th November 1874 a fresh application for attachment and sale was made held that there was no attachment subsisting between the 31st of December 1873 and the 30th of November, 1874.⁵ Where a property having been attached the execution case was subsequently struck off the file, and the judgment creditor again applied for attachment of the same property, held that a private alienation, after the date of such application, but, before attachment was not void.⁶

Attachment suspended or removed, revived—Where property has been released from attachment in execution of a decree and in a subsequent suit brought for the purpose a decree is obtained declaring it liable to be attached and sold in execution of the former decree the effect of the decree in the latter suit is to set aside the order which released the property from attachment thus leaving matters as they were before that order was passed,⁷ and any alienation in the meantime could be made pendente lite.⁸ So in the case of *Alimohet Warries v Pitambar*⁹ in which it was held that the effect of that decree must be to set aside the order of release which had been made, and therefore to make the property still subject to the attachment and to restore the state of things that had been disturbed by the order of release.

Attachment pending appeal—An order striking off an attachment pending appeal does not release the property from attachment.¹⁰

property is sold and not from the time when the sale becomes absolute

Act XIV of 1882 S 316 This section applies to H C

Sale becomes absolute—There is no provision as to this matter in the body of this Code but Order XXI r 91 prescribes the cases in which the Court shall make an order confirming the sale whereupon such sale shall become absolute

Sale Certificate—See certified purchaser sect 66 post Order XXI r 93 provides for the grant of a certificate to the purchaser of immoveable property on the sale becoming absolute. This section is exactly opposite in effect to the corresponding section of the former Code. The title to the property sold is now to vest in the purchaser from the date of the sale. For a history of the legislation on this point since 1859 see O'Kierly's C P Code 6th Ed pp 570 571. The uncertified purchaser has always had an equitable interest in the property which when perfected by the certificate was superior to that of any subsequent purchaser,¹ but under the last Code the property vested in the purchaser from the date of confirmation and did not relate back.² So that the right to mesne profits did not arise until that date³ although it was indeed held that the purchaser was liable for arrears of rent accruing due between sale and confirmation⁴ and he could maintain an action for injury done to the property prior to confirmation.⁵ This section settles any doubts there may have been on these points by laying down the clear rule that the property is to vest in the purchaser from the date of the sale.

The certificate of sale is not the title, it is merely a title deed to the property,⁶ and is not conclusive,⁷ the grant being a ministerial and not a judicial act.⁸

Effect of—All irregularities previous to sale are cured by the issue of a certificate and no regular suit will lie to set aside the sale on account of them,⁹ nor can a third party contest its validity.¹⁰ But confirmation of sale is no bar to an objection raised to an application for delivery of possession on the ground that the sale was illegal, because the decree could not have the effect of passing an occupancy holding not transferable by custom.¹¹

Amen intent—A sale certificate should not be amended ex parte.¹² A sale certificate may be amended in review. No appeal lay against such an order under the former code.¹³

A court having once granted a certificate need not give him another to enable him to escape any penalty he may have incurred by reason of insufficient stamping.¹

Limitation — The provisions of the Limitation Act do not apply to an application for a sale certificate, and if granted after three years from confirmation of sale by one Judge, his successor cannot interfere with the order.²

Decree still subsist — The former Code expressly provided that the decree must be unreversed and in full force on the date of the confirmation,³ and probably the decisions under this Act will be similar although this provision is absent.⁴ The purchaser should satisfy himself on this point before he applies for confirmation.⁵

Immoveable property — The words 'immoveable property' have not been defined in the Act, in questions concerning the rights of Hindus they will probably be taken to include whatever the Hindu law classes as immoveables, such a huk in Bombay.⁷ A decree for the sale of mortgaged property was attached and sold huk the purchaser should get a certificate, as he bought not merely the paper but the interest in the immoveable property recoverable under the decree and that such interest must be regarded as immoveable property within the meaning of this section.⁸

Sale of mortgaged property under money-decree — By s 99 of Act IV of 1882, which came into force on the 1st of July, 1882, the mortgagor is prohibited from selling the mortgaged property under a money decree unless by suit under s 67 of the same Act.⁹

Mortgage—Mortgages noted in the proclamation of sale should be entered in the certificate and computed as part of the purchase money, if they have been admitted by the parties or established by decree or declared to be charges on the property and the sale has been held subject to them.¹

infra The present rule is that certificate, the whole execution

To whom granted—The certificate can be granted to the representative of a deceased purchaser,² or to a creditor of the decree holder who attaches the decree after sale.⁴

Evidence—A statement in a sale certificate granted by a Court that the purchase is subject to a charge is not conclusive evidence against the purchaser, when it is sought to enforce the charge by suit.⁶

A sale certificate raises a presumption that the purchase money has been paid.⁸

Estoppel—The acceptance of a sale certificate by the purchaser of a mortgagor's interest in land, is not an admission of the mortgagor's title within s 19 of Act XV of 1877.⁷

Registration—Registration is not compulsory, and a document merely because it is registered cannot take effect against an unregistered sale certificate.⁹

Stamp—An application by an auction purchaser for a certificate of sale need bear no Court fee stamp.⁹ The purchaser must procure the stamp. Claims admitted by the parties should be taken into account in ascertaining the stamp duty, and they should be entered in the certificate.¹⁰ Where property subject to an incumbrance is sold by auction in execution of a decree, the sale certificate should be stamped according to the amount of the purchase money together with the incumbrance.¹¹ By s 10 of the Indian Stamp Act the stamp duty is payable not by the deposit of the sum required to purchase stamps, but by the stamps themselves.

A court having once granted a certificate need not give him another to enable him to escape any penalty he may have incurred by reason of insufficient stamping.¹

Decree still subsists—The former Code expressly provided that the decree must be unreversed and in full force on the date of the confirmation,³ and probably the decisions under this Act will be similar although this provision is absent.⁴ The purchaser should satisfy himself on this point before he applies for confirmation.⁵

Immoveable property—The words 'immoveable property' have not been defined in the Act in questions concerning the rights of Hindus they will probably be taken to include whatever the Hindu law classes as immoveables, such a huk in Bombay.⁶ A decree for the sale of mortgaged property was attached and sold huk the purchaser should get a certificate, as he bought not merely the paper but the interest in the immoveable property recoverable under the decree and that such interest must be regarded as immoveable property within the meaning of this section.⁷

Sale of mortgaged property under money-decree—By s 99 of Act IV of 1882, which came into force on the 1st of July, 1882, the mortgagor is prohibited from selling the mortgaged property under a money decree unless by suit under s 67 of the same Act.⁸

Silence of debtor—There is no duty on the judgment debtors to come forward⁴ and if sued as representatives then, unless they induce bidders to suppose that they claim no personal interest in the property or mislead them by their silence they can claim their share⁵

bona fide purchaser for value—Under the former Code, the Bombay High Court appears to have held that an auction purchaser is not a bona fide purchaser for value whereas the lords of the Privy Council have said that a purchaser under a sale in execution is not bound to inquire into the correctness of the order for execution any more than to look behind the decree to see whether it has been rightly made⁶

No title guaranteed—No title is guaranteed to the purchaser at an execution sale beyond that he shall have the rights and interests in the property which belong to the judgment debtor or in other words that the judgment debtor shall not recover back the funds⁷ and that if the judgment debtor, or his heirs, recover the property they cannot hold against him⁸ unless they can claim adverse possession for more than twelve years nor can any other person be bound by the decree⁹ The intending purchaser is bound to satisfy himself of the value and quality of the property as if he was purchasing from a private person¹⁰ The sale of a first mortgage was compromised and decree passed At a sale on a second mortgage the mortgagor purchased If he could not keep possession against a purchaser on the first mortgage decree¹¹ If a mortgagor judgment debtor purchases at a sale in execution of a decree obtained by a mortgagee, and the decree remains unsatisfied, the mortgaged property still remains liable and can be sold again¹²

Sheriff's sales—In the case of Sheriff's sales there is no condition for the allowance of compensation for error or misstatements as to the particulars or description of the property Such a condition applies to sales by the Registrar of the Calcutta High Court¹³

What passes—Nothing passes except the right and interest of the judgment debtor at the time of the sale.¹ If the judgment debtor has any interest in the property the purchaser gets it not as it stood at the moment of sale, but as attached and notified for sale. And where there was no specific attachment owing to the property being submerged by the river but the property was sold as that of the judgment debtors, it was held that their rights in the property were sold,² and the purchaser ordinarily takes subject to the prior right contingent on confirmation of a former purchase though such former purchase be confirmed subsequently to his own.³ A purchaser under a mortgage sale is entitled to possession as against a purchaser under a decree for money with notice of the mortgage lien.⁴ Where there is a difference between the notification of sale and the sale certificate the conditions of the notification are taken as of superior authority,⁵ but another contention is that where there is any difference between the order of sale and the certificate the latter will prevail unless the purchaser has notice of the difference. The right of the purchaser is confined to the right, title and interest of the debtor which were seized and sold with all its defects.⁶

At a sale of an impartible zamindar when what is sold according to the sale certificate is the right title and interest of the judgment debtor the purchaser takes an interest for the life only of the judgment debtor.⁷

Where an execution sale was held in execution of three decrees two of them against one brother alone and the third against three brothers jointly and separate attachments and separate sale proclamations were made in all these cases, held that the sale operated a transfer of all three brothers' interest in the

Mortgage and Money Decrees—By a sale of mortgaged property in execution of a decree obtained by a mortgagee against the mortgagor upon the mortgage, the interest of both the mortgagor and the mortgagee passes to the purchaser. But, by a sale of mortgaged property in execution of a money decree obtained by the mortgagee against the mortgagor the interest of the mortgagor alone passes to the purchaser.¹

Increment—Under the former Code it was held that if between the time of attachment and time of sale, the interest of the judgment-debtor is accelerated or enlarged, the increment passes and the reasoning in that case seems to hold good under this section.²

Effect of vesting order in insolvency proceedings.—A judgment-debtor was declared an insolvent by the Court for the relief of insolvent debtors, Madras, and a vesting order was made. Part of his property was subsequently attached in execution of a decree. Afterwards his petition in insolvency was dismissed and the vesting order discharged. On the same date a creditor's trust-deed was executed, of which the plaintiffs were trustees. They now sued to set aside the execution proceedings and to cancel the sale of the property sold in execution after the date of the trust deed. Held, that the suit was not maintainable.³

the contrary,¹ to the trees severed,² to buildings, unless excluded³ and to a right of easement against the debtor, as if he had voluntarily sold⁴ The purchaser at a sale in execution of a money decree takes subject to a previous mortgage The doctrine of lis pendens applies to a purchaser at a sale in execution of a money decree after the mortgagee had obtained a decree declaring his lien on the property⁵ The rule of lis pendens applies to purchasers at execution sales⁶

Estoppel—If a person sells property covered by a mortgage and, suppressing the fact, obtains the full value of the property as unencumbered, he cannot afterwards say that the purchaser took it subject to the lien⁷ so where in execution of a money decree the decree holder sold certain property which had been mortgaged to him by a registered bond, without notice of the existing lien, and afterwards obtained a decree on the mortgage bond which he transferred to a third party held, that neither the mortgagee, nor his transferee could follow the property previously sold⁸ An auction purchaser is not estopped from setting up a title independent of that based on his purchase⁹ and he differs in many important points from that of a private purchaser¹⁰ It has been held that without notice he is not bound by an agreement to mortgage made by the judgment debtor¹¹ nor generally for any mere personal objections against the debtor, such as an estoppel, unless he is a mortgagee purchasing under his own decree¹²

Alienation by debtor—He is entitled to question the fraudulent acts and alienations of the judgment debtor in fraud of the decree¹³ and in some cases in the North West, has been elevated to a position very analogous to that of a creditor,¹⁴ but the distinction is well marked in Bengal¹⁵ He can claim a partition if the debtor was a member of an undivided family governed by Mitak

tion proceedings are the best evidence,¹ and if the question is doubtful on the face of the proceedings the Court must look to the substance of the matter and not to the form or language of the proceedings. The purchaser only gets what he has reason to think he is buying, and the purchase of a whole family estate is not supported by a certificate purporting to convey only the right and interest of the father,² but where in proceedings against a Hindu his son objected that his interest should be excluded and failed heli the whole estate was sold.³ The purchaser of an undivided interest not under a mortgage decree against the father⁴ and against him only,⁵ during the life time of the debtor obtains the debtors interest⁶ and can not sue for a partition throughout India⁷ and in Bengal he can also claim to hold jointly with the members.⁸ Where a debt is incurred by a Hindu as manager of the family for family purposes the other members of the family, though not parties to the suit will be bound by the decree passed against him in respect of the debt and if in execution of the decree any joint property is sold, the interest in the whole of such property will pass by the sale.¹⁰

Father's debts—At a sale under a decree against the sons for the debts of their father, according to the Mitakshara law, the purchaser sometimes gets the father's estate,¹¹ for the right and interest of the sons in the zemindary is assets in their hands liable for the father's debts,¹² but not because they are members of the joint family¹³ and even if the decree has been passed in the father's life time, yet if the purchaser gets the entire estate in possession, or it is not shown he has not,¹⁴ they cannot recover the property, unless they show that the debts in question,¹ were contracted for immoral purposes and that the purchaser had notice that they were so contracted, and if the purchasers are strangers to the suit and have not notice that the debts were so contracted, they are not bound to make enquiry beyond what appears on the facts of the proceedings.² But whether the sons' interest does or does not pass will have to be determined by the circumstances of each case,³ and in *Bhagwat Dass v Gouri Kunwar*⁴ the sons were allowed to take possession of their share against the purchaser of the right title and interest of the father. In a later case where the debt was tainted with illegality or immorality it was held that the son's interests did not pass at the sale further than the purchasers were not entitled to the equities of a bona fide purchaser as the decree if examined, would have put them on enquiry.⁵ Ordinarily unless the property has been attached and ordered to be sold, a right to a share in joint ancestral property dies with the sharer, and his previous share is no longer subject to execution in a mere money decree, even though he may have died after the decree.⁶

Representative capacity.—In other cases it is only where it is manifest that the father of a joint family has mortgaged the family property for a debt, and a decree has been obtained for realization of the debt by means of a sale of the mortgaged property,⁷ or that the plaintiff debtor has been sued in a representative capacity,⁸ that the Court will allow a sale in terms of the interests of the judgment debtor to convey the interests of others.⁹ Thus the purchaser gets the estate under a decree against the widow for the debt of her husband¹⁰ if this fact appears in the plaint¹¹ or in the judgment,¹² or the decree is for rent due in his life time, and she is sued as guardian of her minor son,¹³ or the decree is for costs in a suit in which she seeks to recover family property,¹ and where the property is sold in satisfaction of several claims against her, some of which bind the estate, though she has a power to adopt and afterwards exercises it, the purchaser gets the full estate,² but, in other cases as one member of a joint family is not bound to pay the debts of another, unless he is his father, a sale under a decree against one for his debt, whatever be its nature, merely passes his property.³ A karnavan does not represent persons who have ceased to be members of the tarwad and a Court sale does not bind them, if they have not been made parties to the execution proceedings,⁴ and if in execution of a money decree obtained against a person who happens to be the karnavan, the tarwad property is sold, the purchaser gets nothing.⁵ A Hindu judgment debtor died leaving a widow and two sons who were minors. His widow was placed on the record as his heir and not his sons. Certain property of the deceased was sold in execution. The sale certificate issued to the purchaser stated that he had purchased the right, title, and interest of the judgment debtor in the property. In a suit subsequently brought by the sons, it was held that they were bound by the sale. The widow of the deceased judgment debtor, who, as natural guardian of the minor sons, was in possession of the property, was upon the record, and it was the interest of the judgment debtor and not that of the widow that was intended to be sold.⁶

Widow representative—If the decree is for debts incurred in her life, a purchaser under a money decree only gets her life interest.⁷ If the decree declares a charge on the estate, and it is justified by legal necessity,⁸ the purchaser gets the estate, unless the widow does not properly defend the suit,⁹ or being only possessed of a limited interest in the estate, such as maintenance, she could not possibly represent it.¹⁰ If a Hindu widow acting as manager of the family sells property to pay off family debts, the sale is binding on her minor sons.¹¹

Mahomedan Law—Where a widow died leaving a son and a daughter and was sued "as represented by her minor son represented by his guardian" for debt, and at the sale the widow's interest was sold held, it passed the interest of the daughter and she could not recover her share, unless she could show that the debt was not due.¹²

A Mahomedan office to which are attached substantially the conduct of religious worship and the performance of religious duties, is not legally saleable, any custom to the contrary notwithstanding.¹³

Registrar's sale—In Kishory Mohan Rai v. Kalichurn Ghose,¹ compensation for a deficiency in the quantity of land sold was allowed out of the purchase money of property sold at a High Court Registrar's sale, although the purchaser had obtained an order for the confirmation of the sale.

Land Revenue sale—The general rule that a Government sale for arrears of revenue gives a title to, and that all the world is subject to the exception that if it is caused by the default of a mortgagee, it does not take away the mortgagor's right to redeem the mortgage to recover the land.²

Second appeal—A second appeal lies to the High Court against an order passed by a Judge refusing to confirm a sale on the ground that there was no substantial decree at the date when the confirmation of sale was applied for, and the question raised being one coming under s. 47.³

66 (1) No suit shall be maintained against any person

Suit against purchaser not maintainable on ground of purchase being on behalf of plaintiff claiming title under a purchase certified by the Court in such manner as may be prescribed on the ground that the purchase was made on behalf of the plaintiff or on behalf of some one through whom the plaintiff claims.

(2) Nothing in this section shall bar a suit to obtain a declaration that the name of any purchaser certified as aforesaid was inserted in the certificate fraudulently or without the consent of the real purchaser, or interfere with the right of a third person to proceed against that property, though ostensibly sold to the certified purchaser, on the ground that it is liable to satisfy a claim of such third person against the real owner.

Act XIV of 1882, s. 317 This section applies to H. C.

Suit against purchaser—The provisions of s. 317 of Act XIV of 1882, are subject to no limitation other than such as is contained in the section itself, viz., that the suit, the maintenance of which is prohibited by that section should be (1) brought against a certified purchaser and (2) based upon the ground that—purchaser taking an account of the land purchased on the ground that the purchase was made bona fide under s. 317. A person not entitled to recover the land. A suit is not taken out of the section by reason of the beneficial purchaser being in possession and claiming only a declaration of title.⁴

Certified purchaser—The representative of a purchaser is included.⁵ The purchase must be certified by the Court, and presumably it must be, at a sale held under the Code.⁶

⁵ an Das,

The words of the section indicate that the purchase must have been actually certified, but in an old case,¹ it was decided that the party to whom the Court has directed a certificate to be granted is entitled to be regarded as the certified purchaser. And where a purchaser who had not obtained a certificate was sued, and afterwards applied for and obtained a certificate he was held to be a certified purchaser under the corresponding section of Act XIV of 1882.² A certificate may issue after more than three years from the confirmation of purchase,³ and it should not be rejected if tendered during the hearing of a suit on this account.⁴ This section is no bar to a suit against any person claiming through or under the certified purchaser, such as his heir or mortgagee.⁵

Object of the section—The section ought to be construed strictly and literally,⁶ it refers only to suits between the benamidar and the beneficial owner⁷ and where the beneficial owner sues the certified benamidar for possession.⁸ It does not apply to suits brought by the certified purchaser against a party in possession and if the certified purchaser is a benamidar, or an agent, and the real purchaser obtains possession of the property honestly, the former cannot dispossess the latter.⁹ Also where the plaintiff is a purchaser at a sale for arrears of revenue, the defendant is not debarred from raising the plea that the purchase was made benami for him.¹⁰ At a sale in execution of a decree, the plaintiff purchased certain property in the name of the defendant and continued in undisturbed possession for eight years. He then sued the defendant for a declaration of his right and for an injunction restraining him from interfering with it. Held, that the suit was maintainable.¹¹ Where one joint decree holder has purchased, this section will not bar a suit by the other for a declaration that the purchase was joint.¹²

This section was designed to prevent disputes between the purchaser at an execution sale and a person claiming that the certified purchaser had purchased benami for him. Even though the claimant has had previous possession.¹³ But where the certified purchaser admits that he purchased for another, there is no reason why that person should not set up his title upon the purchase against a person not the certified purchaser, or claiming through him.¹⁴ In a suit to recover possession of property purchased by plaintiff's benamidar brought

The judgment debtor then privately sold the property, the purchasers paid the price to the decree holder and the payment was certified to the Civil Court. The Collector being in ignorance of these proceedings sold the property. It is that the remedy of the first purchasers was by application in execution in that suit and that application lay to the Civil Court.⁴

32 was confined to bringing meaning of Act XVIII of 1882 that Collectors acted as ministerial officers of the Court and subject to its revision.⁵ But the alteration in this section seems to override that decision.

72 (1) Where in any local area in which no declaration under section 68 is in force the property attached consists of land or of a share in land, and the Collector represents to the Court that the public sale of the land or share is objectionable and that satisfaction of the decree may be made within a reasonable period by a temporary alienation of the land or share, the Court may authorize the Collector to provide for such satisfaction in the manner recommended by him instead of proceedings to a sale of the land or share.

Court may authorize—The Court has a discretion and before passing final orders it should hear any objections raised by the parties.²

The only indulgence a Court can grant under this section is to allow the judgment debtor a reasonable time to satisfy the decree by temporary alienation or management of his share; it does not authorize a Court to allow payment by instalments not mentioned in the decree,³ and the debtor to retain possession of his land either for self or as guardian of her minor son,⁴ and where a Collector considered that the lands of a judgment debtor should be exempted from auction sale and the judgment debtor should be allowed to pay by instalments extending over twelve years it was held that the arrangement could not be supported.⁵

See note under Section 63

Application of the section—The purport of this section is not to alter or limit the rights of parties arising out of a contract but simply to determine questions between rival decree holders standing on the same footing and in

This section does not apply to a decree which directs the sale of land or a share in land in pursuance of a contract specifically directing it.¹

Court may authorize—The Court has a discretion, and before passing final orders it should hear any objections raised by the parties.²

The only indulgence a Court can grant under this section is to allow the judgment debtor a reasonable time to satisfy the decree by temporary alienation of the property.³ Court to allow payment by instalments.⁴ and where a Collector is exempted from auction by instalments extending over twelve years,⁵ it was held that the arrangement could not be supported.⁶

Specific performance—No decree can be given against the owner to sell land under the management of the Collector.⁷

Limitation—As to effect of management by Collector upon limitation, see Girdhar Das v. Har Sankar.⁸

DISTRIBUTION OF ASSETS

73 (1) Where assets are held by a Court, and more persons than one have, before the receipt of such assets, made application to the Court for the execution of decrees for the payment of money passed against the same judgment debtor and have not obtained satisfaction thereof, the assets, after deducting the costs of realization, shall be rateably distributed among all such persons.

Provided as follows—

- (a) Where any property is sold subject to a mortgage or charge, the mortgagee or incumbrancer shall not be entitled to share in any surplus arising from such sale,
- (b) Where any property liable to be sold in execution of a decree is subject to a mortgage or charge, the Court may, with the consent of the mortgagee or incumbrancer, order that the property be sold free from the mortgage or charge, giving to the mortgagee or incumbrancer the same interest in the proceeds of the sale as he had in the property sold,

Regular suit—Case of 1888. The cause of action does not arise until the money is paid.¹ An order under this section for the payment of surplus sale proceeds to the assignee of a bid in a sale in execution of a first mortgage decree has no effect if the surplus sale proceeds at the instance of a purchaser of the equity of redemption of the mortgage.²

Joint estate—A Small Cause Court can not try a case for refund of assets paid under this section.³

Apportionment. These provisions are a distribution of the sale proceeds to be made according to what may seem at the time to be the rights of the parties, without such distribution importing a conclusive adjudication on their rights.⁴

Limitation. If the Court makes the distribution possesses jurisdiction, the regular suit must be brought within one year from the date of the order.⁵

Parties. All the parties to the distribution should be made parties to the suit.⁶

The same judgment-debtor. Where there is one decree against A and in that suit A sold B and the decree holders apply for execution against A this section applies,⁷ and the same rule applies if there is a money decree against B and C and D holds a money decree against B and for enforcement of a hypothecation by sale of property against P, R and S, and execution is taken out against B,⁸ but otherwise if a creditor had a decree against A and B and executed it by sale of the joint property A alone,⁹ a decree against A and B per personally and B is representative fall within a decree against A and B and B obtained a decree that the case fell under this provision.¹¹ ancestral properties of the family, of which the father and son were undivided members, held, that the decrees were against the same judgment debtor¹

Decrees for payment of money.—(See section 34 ante.) A decree for mesne profits is a money decree². Every decree by virtue of which money is payable is to that extent a decree for money, even though other relief may be granted by the decree³. A decree against A and B, which so far as B is concerned, is a decree to enforce a hypothecation by sale of their property but does not direct the sale of specific property of A, is as regards him a money decree⁴. A judgment under s 86 of the Insolvent Act is a money decree⁵. Where a mortgagee obtains a decree declaring that the debt may be realised by sale of the mortgaged property, he may waive his lien and proceed under this section⁶, and he is not compelled to proceed first against the mortgaged property⁷. In Madras it has been held that a decree directing the sale of mortgaged properties in default of payment of money is a decree for money⁸.

Good faith—The Court should exclude persons not bona fide decree holders⁹. After an order has been made under this section any decree holder may sue, before distribution, for a declaration that another decree is collusive¹⁰.

Assets held by a Court—These words have been substituted for "realized in execution," a phrase which evoked a number of judicial decisions¹¹. They mean presumably assets available for distribution and would not cover a deposit by a

After attachment of a debt before judgment the debtor gave an equitable assignment of it subject to the attachment. The Official Assignee may apply to the Court which has passed an order under this section to have that order restricted to the period previous to the date of the vesting order.

A mortgagee receives any money out of the surplus sale proceeds of a share of the property mortgaged to him, sold in execution of a decree on a prior mortgage from some of the mortgagors to whom the share belonged and against whom the decree was obtained he is bound to apply the money to the satisfaction of his mortgage debt only in case he receives it by virtue of his security and not otherwise, although the payment might be made to him by the said mortgagors in satisfaction of other debts due to him from them.¹ A Mahomedan widow who has obtained a decree for dower against the other heir of her deceased husband is entitled to priority over the holder of a money decree against the heir for his personal debt, and the latter is not entitled to the benefit of this section.

The properties of the judgment debtor were brought to sale at the instance of one judgment creditor in two parcels. After proceeds of the first parcel had been brought into Court and before the proceeds of sale of the second parcel has been so paid, the petitioner (also an execution creditor) applied under this section // that he was entitled to participate in a rateable distribution in the proceeds of sale of both parcels.²

Legal representative — The legal representative of a deceased judgment debtor is eligible if he has bought the decree against his predecessor.³

Sold subject to mortgage — The provisions of the first paragraph, clauses (a) and (b), have reference only to sales under simple money decrees and declare the incompetence of a mortgagee as such to any share of the surplus proceeds when the property is sold subject to his mortgage,⁴ otherwise, if he consents to sell the property free of lien.⁵ And if the property be sold under a mortgage decree, a prior incumbrance is not taken into account.⁶ This section refers to cases in which the property is sold subject to a mortgage and not to cases where property, subject to an undisclosed mortgage is sold in execution.⁷ The Court has jurisdiction to inquire into the merits of the alleged mortgage.⁸

he nor the assignee of the decree on the mortgage bond could realise the latter debt by sale of the same property, because the vendor had suppressed the fact of the charge and thereby induced the first purchaser to buy.¹ Where a mortgagee had got separate decrees for instalments under one bond, their lordships of the Privy Council seemed to think that the property should not be sold under one decree subject to the mortgage lien of the other.²

Incumbrance—See Mitthu Lal v. Kishen Lal.³ In a suit on an instalment bond, plaintiff having obtained a money decree asked for and obtained the residue of the sale proceeds after all the judgment creditors had been fully satisfied. It was held that by doing so, he did not abandon his right as mortgagee.⁴

Sale-proceeds—The Court may allow a decree holder to take out the purchase money before confirmation of sale.⁵

Surplus sale-proceeds—When surplus sale proceeds are deposited in Court the Judge should pay out the money only to the party in whose name it stands or his agent.⁶ Where a holder of a Small Cause Court decree did not have his decree transferred to the High Court, where certain property of the judgment debtor had been sold in execution of other decrees against him, it was held that he was not entitled to a share in the rateable distribution.⁷

Step in aid of Execution—An application by a decree holder to withdraw monies to which he is entitled under this section is a step in aid of execution.⁸

Appeal—No appeal lies from an order under the corresponding section of Act XX of 1882.⁹

Refund of money paid—See Goguram v. Kutik Chandra.¹⁰

COMMISSIONS

In conditions and limitations as may be prescribed, the Court may issue a commission—

any person

local investigation or adjust accounts or partition

It may see the general powers of the Court as detailed in Act XIV of 1887. The provisions of those sections are under Order XVI in the commentary to which the Act will be found collected.

10 (1) A commission for the examination of any person may be issued to any Court (not being a High Court) situate in a province other than the province in which the Court of issue is situate and having jurisdiction in the place in which the person to be examined resides.

(2) Every Court receiving a commission for the examination of any person under sub-section (1) shall cause him or cause him to be examined pursuant thereto, and the commission, when it has been duly executed, shall be returned together with the evidence taken under it to the Court from which it was issued, unless the order for issuing the commission has otherwise directed, in which case the commission shall be returned in terms of such order.

Act XIV of 1887 sect 386

77 In lieu of issuing a commission the Court may issue a letter of request to examine a witness residing at any place not within British India

Letter of request

This Section introduces a new power following the English practice under R S O 37 r 6a. In England it has been held that the letters of request ought only to be issued where the evidence would be material to the case and not merely collateral evidence in connection. Letters of request will not be issued in England merely to obtain inspection of documents and this section refers only to the examination of a witness outside British India. For the English forms and the practice generally see O 37 r 6a Ann Prac (1908) 506.

78 The provisions as to the execution and return of commissions issued by foreign Courts shall apply to commissions issued by—

- (a) Courts situate beyond the limits of British India and established or continued by the authority of His Majesty or of the Governor General in Council or
- (b) Courts situate in any part of the British Empire other than British India or
- (c) Courts of any foreign country for the time being in alliance with His Majesty

Act XIV of 1882 sect 391 This section applies to H C and Prov S C C.

The provisions presumably refer to the foregoing section but possibly it is intended to include rules made thereunder.

This section is confined to commissions for the examination of witnesses.

commissioner.¹ But where an officer in the Public Works department entered into a contract in excess of his authority, it was held that Government was not bound by it.²

Not an act of State—Lords were held as feudal under the Sovereign of an independent State, and on the conquest of the territory by the East India Company the zamindars remained in the same position towards the Company, held, the seizure of the tenure, and the arms and stores pertaining to it after the death of the zamindars, was not an act of State. Their lordships of the Privy Council said—'The act of Government in this case was not the seizure by arbitrary power of territories, which up to that time had belonged to another Sovereign State, it was the resumption of lands previously held from the Government under a particular tenure upon the alleged determination of that tenure. The possession was taken under colour of a legal title, that title being the undoubted right of the sovereign power to resume and re-assess to the public revenue all lands within its territories upon the determination of the tenure under which they may have been exceptionally held rent free. If, by means of the continuance of the tenure, or from other cause a right be claimed in derogation of this title of the Government that claim like any other arising between the Government and its subjects, would per se be cognizable by the Municipal Courts of India.'³

Government confiscated the property belonging to certain rebels and put it up for auction sale to the highest bidder without reserving any right to object to the purchaser. The Government refused to perfect the sale and in a suit for specific performance raised the defence that it was an act of State. Their lordships of the Privy Council said—'It has been said that this suit could not be instituted by the respondent, in as much as what was done was an act of State which could not be called in question. The meaning, as their lordships understand it, of an act of State is something which pertains to the functions of Government. Suppose, for instance any question has arisen with regard to the propriety of confiscating the rebels' property that would have been an act of State. Probably the determination of the Government to sell that confiscated property might also be treated as an act of State but in the sale the Government was exactly in the situation of an individual selling his property by auction, and when the property was knocked down, the relation of vendor and vendee existed between the Government and the highest bidder.⁴ And where the East India Company when called upon to account for the property of a deceased State prisoner, answered that they had dealt with it as sovereign the answer was set aside.⁵ And the distinction is that Government is liable for acts professed to be done under a municipal law but not for acts done in the exercise of its sovereign power, which are not professedly justified by municipal law.⁶ A suit will lie against Government to set aside a settlement and obtain possession and in such Government should be a party⁷ to declare that certain lands are not liable

 entertaining a suit instituted without compliance with its provisions. A Court cannot under such circumstances stay proceedings and allow time to the plaintiff to serve the requisite notice, but its only course is to reject the plaint under

Order VII r 11¹. But it has been said that notice may be waived or the Defendant may be estopped from raising the defence at all².

Act done in official capacity Where a Collector thinking three Mamuladars had no right to take the plaintiff's cattle destroyed them, it was held to have been done in his official capacity³. But where a minor under the Court of Wards was sued for a debt due by his father and the Collector was appointed guardian ad litem h/l notice was not necessary⁴. The plaintiff sued the defendant a public officer to recover damages for wrongful arrest and trespass h/l that the former Act was done by the defendant in his official capacity, that it was doubtful whether the latter act was so or not but as both acts were mixed up in the plaint and damages claimed for both the suit was rightly dismissed for want of two months notice and permission to amend the plaint so as to restrict the suit to one for damages for the trespass only, should not be allowed on appeal to the High Court⁵. In no case is a suit maintainable against the Secretary of State unless the notice prescribed by s. 80 has been given⁶. Notice is held to be necessary in a suit for refund of money alleged to have been illegally exacted by a toll collector under Bengal Act, IX of 1871⁷.

Adding parties It has been held that this section does not prevent a Court adding the Secretary of State as a party to a suit,⁸ but he is not a necessary party to a suit to set aside a revenue sale⁹.

Notice when required—A public officer is entitled to notice only in those cases in which he is sued for damages on account of some wrong inadvertently committed by him in the discharge of his duty¹⁰. Such as a suit against a police officer for seizure of goods during a search¹¹. Notice is not required where the suit is *ex contractu*¹². In the case of any amendment necessitated by alleged discovery of facts unknown to the plaintiff the Secretary of State does not require a further notice of two months, and no separate notice is required against a public officer sued along with the Secretary of State, when he is not sued for any act done by him independently of Government and no separate relief is asked for against him¹³.

—The notice to be served under this section is a legal representative of the person who died and enable the representative to sue without fresh notice.¹ No notice is necessary when the remedy sought is an injunction. In the case, no injunction can be granted on the fact of the plaintiff seeking notice under this section.² When it was found that a Police Officer did not act in good faith, but took advantage of his position to commit illegal and tortious acts, maliciously and without cause, it was held no notice was required.³

Form of notice—A notice objecting and asking for a re consideration of the order complained of is not sufficient.⁴

It must state the cause, but not the form of the action,⁵ and the relief which he claims, and no other cause of action can be raised at the trial.⁷ The section, in short, requires that the intending plaintiff should substantially inform the officer of the ground of complaint so as to enable him to see if there is any ground for the action,⁶ he should, therefore set forth sufficiently clearly the grounds of the complaint.⁸ Lastly the notice should give the name and place of abode of the party intending to sue.¹⁰ A notice is not invalid because given by only two out of three plaintiffs.¹¹

A notice under this section is sufficient if it substantially fulfils its object in informing the parties concerned generally of the nature of the suit intended to be filed.¹²

Service—The notice must (in the case of a public officer) be served personally or left at his office. The day of serving the notice and that of bringing the action must be both excluded in computing the two months.¹³

Public Officer—A Collector appointed to manage a minor's estate is a public officer within this section.¹⁴ or acting as agent of the Court of Wards,¹⁵ so is the Administrator General.¹⁶ A Nazir appointed as guardian ad litem of a minor is not.¹⁷ See cases under 'Public Officer' sec 2, p 29 ante.

Statement in plaint—The portion of this section containing a statement that a notice has been left or delivered in the prescribed manner may be regarded as separable from the earlier portion of the section. It is only when notice is not given that the suit is liable to be dismissed. The suit may be proceeded with if notice has been given in the manner prescribed, and subsequently the plaint is amended in order to state that fact.¹

Act XIV of 1882, sect 470. This section applies to H C and Prov S C C

The word stakeholder has been eliminated in the re drafting of this section but the effect is similar to the corresponding section of Act XIV of 1882. The substitution of the words debt sum of money etc for payment or property also tends to facilitate the interpretation of the section. The provisions of the former Code will be found detailed in Order XXXV of the first Schedule hereto. The following decisions of the Courts in England and India may still be of service —

A right of lien is not an interest in the property¹

An interpleader suit may be instituted when two or more persons advance claims bona fide if their claims refer to the same property and to the same extent². Against a person in possession³ who claims no interest himself but is merely a stakeholder⁴ so that no question can arise between him and the claimants⁵ and who is ready to deliver it to the right owner whether their titles have had a common origin or are independent of each other⁷ or their claims have or have not a substantial foundation⁸. It is not necessary that the stakeholder should have been sued⁹. Separate claims by agents or brokers for commission or brokerage on the same goods would not be claims to the same debt so as to fall within the words of this section the claims being distinct¹⁰.

In execution of a decree against B the bailiff A seized certain goods which were released on C paying under protest the sum mentioned in the warrant. A paid the money into the office held C's remedy was not by interpleading but suing for money had and received¹¹. signed 600 bags of rapeseed to one Khimji Kanji of Bombay and delivered them to the plaintiffs for carriage to Bombay. While the goods were in transit, Sadanand, the consignor, ordered the plaintiffs to deliver them to his agent, Ramgopal Fulchand, instead of to the consignee, and Ramgopal requested delivery from the plaintiffs. Before the goods could be delivered, the firm of Sissooon & Co. claimed them, alleging that they had been assigned to them by Khimji Kanji for valuable consideration. The plaintiffs thereupon filed an interpleader suit held, that the interpleader suit had been properly instituted by the plaintiffs so as to entitle them to their costs.¹ Where a party in the position of a mere stakeholder is made a defendant in a suit, his proper course is to pay the money into Court and ask that the parties really interested may be substituted for himself as defendants.²

other than for charges or costs and who is ready to pay or deliver it to the rightful claimant, such other person may institute a suit of interpleader against all the claimants for the purpose of obtaining a decision as to the person to whom the payment or delivery shall be made, and of obtaining indemnity for himself.

Provided that where any suit is pending in which the rights of all parties can properly be decided, no such suit of interpleader shall be instituted.

Act XIV of 1882, sect. 470. This section applies to H. C. and Prov. S. C.

The word stakeholder has been eliminated in the re-drafting of this section but the effect is similar to the corresponding section of Act XIV of 1882. The substitution of the words "debt sum of money etc. for payment or property" also tends to facilitate the interpretation of the section. The provisions of the former Code will be found detailed in Order XXXV of the first Schedule hereto. The following decisions of the Courts in England and India may still be of service—

An interpleader suit may be instituted when two or more persons advance claims bona fide if their claims refer to the same property and to the same extent.² Against a person in possession³ who claims no interest himself but is merely a stakeholder⁴ so that no question can arise between him and the claimants⁵ and who is ready to deliver it to the right owner whether their titles have had a common origin or are independent of each other⁷ or their claims have or have not a substantial foundation⁸. It is not necessary that the stakeholder should have been sued⁹. Separate claims by agents or brokers for commission or brokerage on the same goods would not be claims to the same debt so as to fall within the words of this section the claims being distinct.¹⁰

In execution of a decree against B the bailiff A seized certain goods which were released on C paying under protest the sum mentioned in the warrant. A paid the money into the office. Held C's remedy was not by interpleading, but suing for money had and received.¹¹ But when the bailiff seized certain goods belonging to the judgment debtor but in the possession of a pledgee, it was held that the pledgee was entitled to have the goods released to him by an interpleader suit.¹² One Sidasandra Ramsarmall, a resident of Hissar, con-

damage has been caused, for a declaration and injunction or for such other relief as may be appropriate to the circumstances of the case

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to limit or otherwise affect any right of suit which may exist independently of its provisions

This Section refers to H. C. but not to Prov. S. C. C.

The insertion of this new provision enables a suit to be brought for relief against a public nuisance irrespective of special damage. As to the Law in England on this subject and the right of private individuals to abate a public nuisance see 2 L. J. C. 11th Ed. 187¹. The commonest forms of public nuisances are probably obstructions to highways and noxious trades; they are to be distinguished from private nuisances such as injuries to private property obstruction of lights or rights of way etc.

92 (1) In the case of any alleged breach of any express or constructive trust created for public purposes of a charitable or religious nature, or where the direction of the Court is deemed necessary for the administration of any such trust, the Advocate General, or two or more persons having an interest in the trust and having obtained the consent in writing of the Advocate General, may institute a suit, whether contentious or not, in the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction or in any other Court empowered in that behalf by the Local Government within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the whole or any part of the subject matter of the trust is situate to obtain a decree—

- (a) removing any trustee,
- (b) appointing a new trustee,
- (c) vesting any property in a trustee,
- (d) directing accounts and enquiries,
- (e) declaring what proportion of the trust property or of the interest therein shall be allocated to any particular object of the trust,
- (f) authorizing the whole or any part of the trust-property to be let, sold, mortgaged or exchanged,
- (g) settling a scheme, or

(h) granting such further or other relief as the nature of the case may require

(2) Save as provided by the Religious Endowments Act, (XX of 1863), no suit claiming any of the reliefs specified in sub-section (1) shall be instituted in respect of any such trust as is therein referred to except in conformity with the provisions of that sub section

Act XIV of 1882 sect 539—This applies to H C

Public purposes—The wording of this section has been altered in redrafting sect 539 but the following decisions under that section still appear to be relevant to the interpretation of these words. Suits brought to remedy a particular Where no interest will have any performance of the prescribed duties, so that the original grantor and grantee and their descendants are alone to be benefited the endowment does not become public if persons are fed at guruphys and a water pandal is maintained during the hot season¹. When a certain number of the public had always used a temple and there was attached to it a dharmshala and the surplus funds not required for the service of the temple were to be applied to feeding travellers and maintaining a saddi vi held that the intent on of the founder was to devote the property to public religious and charitable purposes². And where an idol is an ancient one permanently established for public worship and the offerings made to it are more or less of a permanent character they are to be taken to be intended to contribute to the maintenance of the shrine and not to become the personal property of the priest³ but the mere fact of the owner of land having erected a temple and planted a grove thereon does not of itself, without any further evidence, indicate a dedication to the God, and a cessation of the rights of private ownership in respect of such land⁴. It is not essential that the defendants should admit the existence of the alleged public trust⁵.

It has been made expressly applicable to both contentious and non contentious cases.¹ The section is intended to apply to persons who before its enactment had, or were believed to have no right to take proceedings for the purposes mentioned in the section.² It contemplates the existence of a dispute of such a public nature that the intervention of the Advocate General is necessary to decide if and by whom a suit should be brought to establish public rights.³

Certain trustees of a religious endowment called Chuncharad sansthan sued to set aside a compromise entered into between two rival claimants to the managership of the sansthan and to recover back the sansthan property assigned to one of them by the compromise. Held that the suit did not fall under the corresponding section of Act XIV of 1882.⁴ A suit to remove the trustees of a public charity and to compel them to account and to make good the losses sustained by the charity in consequence of their default is a suit falling within the scope of this section and must therefore be instituted in the principal Civil Court i.e. the High Court on one side or the District Court.⁵ A suit for the vindication of the right of management which is vested in and actually being exercised by plaintiffs and the one they represent does not fall within this section merely because this right has been nominated trustees.⁶ A suit for the removal of new trustees to be brought on the ground that the defendants are not the lawful trustees and that the trusteeship is therefore vacant is a suit under this section.⁷ But it does not apply to a suit between two private persons claiming rights as mutual heirs over chud property.⁸

Consent in writing — A suit begun by one plaintiff cannot be made good by adding a second in amendment.⁹ A suit by one trustee of a public charity against another for breach of trust requires sanction.¹⁰ The suit sanctioned must be the suit brought.¹¹ A suit was instituted by A, who had obtained consent included in the sanction. It is not competent to the Court to enlarge the scope of the suit and grant reliefs other than those included in the terms of the sanction.¹² The consent in writing must be a specific permission given to two or more persons and is a condition precedent to the institution of the suit.¹³

Sanction by the Court—See note to order 1, r 8 post, and a suit under this section will not be bad because the provisions of that rule have not been complied with. In Mohiuddin v Sayiduddin,¹ it was said that the right of each worshipper in a Mahomedan mosque or religious endowment is an independent right wholly irrespective of the right of other worshippers. When plaintiffs are not merely beneficiaries, the death of the executor entitles them to sue.

Removing and appointing Trustees—The express power to remove a trustee settles a question which was frequently in issue under this section.²

The Courts have jurisdiction to deal with the managers of public Hindu temples and if necessary for the good of the religious endowments to remove them from their position as managers. There is however no hard and fast rule that every manager of a shrine who has arrogated to himself the position of owner shall be removed from his trust. Each case must be decided with reference to its facts.

If the manager is fraudulent and dishonest the Court declined to remove the manager but granted a scheme for the management of the trust.³ Failure on the part of a trustee to submit accounts to the committee is a breach of one of the most important duties of a trustee. A dismissal of a trustee is illegal if the committee is to amend the affairs of the trust.

Trustees if necessary and not to file a separate suit.⁴ The Muzir of a mosque in Bombay is under Mahomedan law a public officer and liable to account to the community.⁵ Mere error in judgment on the part of a member of a trustees' committee is not sufficient to disqualify him.⁶

Persons having an interest—The words "direct before interest" were repealed by Act VI of 1888 s. 44. The interest required to enable a person to sue is not a mere contingency, but a direct interest.

Under the Code of 1877 it was decided that persons residing in the village, whose duty was to conduct pilgrims to the shrine and perform the worship of the idol in their behalf had a sufficient interest to sue⁷ and so has any one of the persons carrying out a charity under the present Code.⁸ The piran and five worshippers of a temple may bring a suit to remove a constructive trustee of a temple for misconduct.⁹

Religious Endowments Act, 1863—The provisions of section 14 of this Act are expressly saved by sub section (2). By ss 14, 15, 18, Act XX, 1863, any person interested in a religious establishment may, after sanction, sue the officers connected with it for breach of trust². But that Act only applies to special officers while filling their offices³. On the one hand, the scope of the Act is not limited to cases in which the office is not hereditary,⁴ on the other, it does not apply to a suit instituted by the managing committee against their manager,⁵ nor to a suit by the members of a 'punch' to have certain dedicated property ascertained,⁶ nor to a suit by an officer of a religious establishment for wrongful dismissal,⁷ nor where all the persons interested sue,⁸ nor to compel the heir of a late manager to make good out of the property inherited by him a sum misappropriated by his father⁹ nor to recover the property of a temple from an ex trustee,¹⁰ and is limited in its scope to suits charging misfeasance malversation, or neglect of duty,¹¹ irrespective of any difference with regard to trustees whether hereditary or selected¹². A transferee of trust property under a transaction which amounts to a breach of trust on the part of the trustee of the institution cannot be proceeded against under the provisions of the Religious Endowments Act, 1863. A trustee of a public religious institution can be sued under the provisions of the Religious Endowments Act, 1863, notwithstanding the fact that the institution came into existence after Reg VII of 1817 was passed¹³. A temple committee appointed under Act XX of 1863 may appoint new trustees when there is no hereditary trustee to add to the existing trustee but this power although discretionary must be exercised reasonably and in good faith and according to the principle which is applicable to public trusts embodied in s 49 of the Indian Trusts Act. If it is not so exercised the power may be controlled by a Civil Court of original jurisdiction¹⁴. No suit to remove the trustees of a Hindu temple can be brought under Act XX of 1863, unless it be proved or admitted that the endowment was one which would have fallen under the provisions of Reg VII of 1817¹. The right to bring suits for the recovery of the property of a religious or charitable institution is vested in the trustee or manager of such institution². A suit relating to property alleged to belong to a temple cannot be brought in the name of the idol of the temple. Where such a suit was so brought, the Court in second appeal allowed the plaint to be amended on certain conditions by substituting the name of the person alleged to be the manager of the temple, but without prejudice to any question which might subsequently be raised as to such person's locus standi in the suit³. When the hereditary trustee of a temple died and application was made by the Collector as Agent of the Court of Wards in whom the management of the deceased's estates during the minority of the sons of the deceased had vested, to be appointed trustee on behalf of the sons, held that the case came within s 5 of Act XX of 1861 and

Other endowments—As to the procedure to be followed in suits in regard to endowments other than the kind referred to in this section and Act XX of 1863, see⁴.

Costs—The Advocate General's costs come, as a rule, out of the trust fund⁵. When a decree directed that the defendants should have their costs taxed as between attorney and client out of the charity funds, held, that when the taxing master decided that certain items allowed against the defendants should not come out of the charity funds, his decision could not be disturbed⁶.

Court-fee—A suit to remove a manager in possession must be valued under section 7 of the Court Fees Act⁷. A suit under s 14 of Act XX of 1863 against the Superintendent of a religious endowment for misfeasance is a suit which, for the purpose of payment of court fees, falls within art 17, cl (vi) of Schedule II of

to be taken from the trustees and that the trustees may be compelled to refund moneys alleged to have been misappropriated by them, does not take the case out of the purview of art 17, cl vii, Sched II of the Court Fees Act, 1870, and render the plaintiffs liable to pay an ad valorem court fee on that part of their plaint¹².

Limitation—In a suit to follow money in the hands of a dharmakart, § 10 of the Limitation Act applies,¹ in a suit to oust a shebut, art 120 applies.² The de jure managers and trustees of a public charity losing their right by limitation to oust the de facto trustee does not confer on the latter immunity from suit on the part of the Advocate General or the temple.³ With every breach of a constructive trust, a fresh cause of action arises.⁴

Revision—If the Judge sue under s 18 of Act XX of 622 (former Code).⁵ But the presented in Court is a material irregularity and is liable to revision.⁶

SUPPLEMENTAL PROCEEDINGS

94 In order to prevent the ends of justice from being defeated the Court may, if it is so prescribed,

- (a) issue a warrant to arrest the defendant and bring him before the Court to show cause why he should not give security for his appearance, and if he fails to comply with any order for security commit him to the civil prison
- (b) direct the defendant to furnish security to produce any property belonging to him and to place the same at the disposal of the Court or order the attachment of any property,
- (c) grant a temporary injunction and in case of disobedience commit the person guilty thereof to the civil prison and order that his property be attached and sold,
- (d) appoint a receiver of any property and enforce the performance of his duties by attaching and selling his property,
- (e) make such other interlocutory orders as may appear to the Court to be just and convenient.

This is a general provision empowering the Courts to make rules to regulate their procedure, and of itself effects nothing

Compensation for obtaining arrest attachment or injunction on insufficient grounds

95 (1) Where, in any suit in which an arrest or attachment has been effected or a temporary injunction granted under the last preceding section,—

- (a) it appears to the Court that such arrest, attachment or injunction was applied for on insufficient grounds, or

(b) the suit of the plaintiff fails and it appears to the Court that there was no reasonable or probable ground for instituting the same,

the defendant may apply to the Court, and the Court may, upon such application, award against the plaintiff by its order such amount, not exceeding one thousand rupees, as it deems a reasonable compensation to the defendant for the expense or injury caused to him

Provided that a Court shall not award, under this section, an amount exceeding the limits of its pecuniary jurisdiction

(2) An order determining any such application shall bar any suit for compensation in respect of such arrest, attachment or injunction

Act XIV of 1882 sects 491 and 497 This section applies to H C and except as to injunctions to Prov S C C

Arrest—If a defendant is arrested he may apply under this section, although he has not been summoned ¹

Compensation can only be granted by the Court which disposes of the case ² The defendant is not bound to apply for redress ³ and by omitting to do so he does not lose his right to bring a regular suit ⁴ but if he applies for compensation, any award that may be passed will bar a regular suit ⁵ Where a regular suit is instituted, the plaintiff must prove that the process was sued out maliciously and without reasonable and probable cause ⁶ and the presumption is that the process issued regularly, although the original suit was dismissed ⁷

Compensation may be awarded for excessive attachment notwithstanding that the plaintiff may be successful ⁸

A civil suit will lie for property which was attached but made away with by the plaintiff in collusion with the Court upon without first instituting a criminal case ⁹

In a summary suit, if a defendant has been arrested before judgment and claims compensation for such arrest he is entitled to apply for leave to defend the suit and if a prima facie case is made out, leave to defend should be given Under the Civil Procedure Code, a cross claim against a defendant cannot in ordinary cases be set up as a defence except when it arises out of the very transaction sued upon and is in the nature of a set off, but the special cross claim provided by this section, viz, a claim for compensation for arrest on insufficient grounds may be taken into account in any suit, and the amount awarded as Varajlal sued to have it declared that the house could not be sold in execution of this decree. This suit was dismissed and he appealed. PART VII.

APPEALS

APPEALS FROM ORIGINAL DECREES

96 (1) Save where otherwise expressly provided in the body of this Code or by any other law for the time being in force, an appeal shall lie from every decree, passed by any Court, exercising original jurisdiction to the Court authorized to hear appeals from the decisions of such Court

(2) An appeal may lie from an original decree passed ex parte

(3) No appeal shall lie from a decree passed by the Court with the consent of parties

Act XIV of 1882, s 540 This section applies to H C in ordinary civil suits and also in its Vice Admiralty jurisdiction¹

The most important alteration effected by this Code in the existing law relating to appeals is the granting of a right of appeal from preliminary decrees, the exercise of which is rendered imperative by section 97 post

Consent decree—An appeal is expressly prohibited by this section, thus giving legislative sanction to the judicial views already expressed

Costs—See notes to section 33, ante, vide, Appeal for costs, p 163

Discretion of the Court—Section 33 of this Code gives a very wide discretion in the determination of questions as to costs. Following the decisions of the English Courts, and of the Courts in India under Act XIV of 1882, it seems that an appeal will lie without leave from an Order as to costs where the discretion of the lower Court has been exercised on a wrong principle or on a mistake as to facts, or where the judge has decided on grounds not open to him². In practice it will probably be found safer to apply for leave even in these cases

Costs only—Where the order or decree is otherwise appealable, an appeal also lies as to the part relating to costs³

Who may appeal—Any party to a suit in which a decree is passed, may if dissatisfied with it, appeal from it⁴. The question whether a party is aggrieved plaintiff or defendant of the parties to the and when the right are implicitly recog claim either way, the

by a decree in one of fact to be determined in each case on its peculiar circumstances, and a defendant may have a right of appeal notwithstanding that the suit has been dismissed as unjust in it¹ but he must shew that he is aggrieved.² So, apart from cases on estoppel, only parties to suits at the time the decree is made or their representatives or assigns when brought on the record or in auction purchaser in an appeal from an order passed in execution, have the right of appeal under this section.³

First assignees of a debt can appeal in a suit brought by persons alleging themselves to be second assignees though no decree has been passed against them by name if the decree passed in favour of the plaintiff has implied a finding that the first assignment has become void.⁴

The assignee of a party cannot appeal without an order of Court allowing his name to be entered on the record. See REPRESENTATIVES note under section 47 infra. So where a defendant sold the property in suit after a decree was passed against him in the appellate Court, it was held that his assignee Expressly provided—S. 4) of the Summary Courts Act precludes an appeal if the suit is not one which has an amount or value capable of being estimated in money.⁵

To what Court an appeal lies—See s. 21, Act VII of 1887

Value—The subject matter of an appeal should be valued for the purpose of jurisdiction according to the law in force at the date of the appeal and not of the suit which has led to it¹⁰ and for the purpose of determining the forum of appeal the rule is that where a plaintiff definitely fixes a certain sum as the amount of his claim, that sum should be considered as the value of the original suit but when he fixes a sum only approximately or tentatively and prays that defendants are entitled to appeal from it—Behari Bhagat v Begum Bihri, (1880 I) 3 All 70. So when a suit for redemption was dismissed on the ground that the mortgage deed had not been satisfied by a decree which declared the plaintiffs entitled to redeem, it was held that the defendants who denied their title were entitled to appeal—Ram Gholam v Sheo Lalal (1876 78) 1 All 206. It is not necessary to appeal from findings on issues which do not arise in the case—Ghela v Dankulchand, (1894) 18 Bom, 507.

the amount of his claim may be ascertained in the course of the suit then the amount found by the lower Court to be due to him must be regarded as the value of the suit¹ and in the latter case if the suit be dismissed the value of the suit for the purpose of appeal is what is stated in the plaint.² The Court to which the appeal lies depends on the actual value of the subject matter in dispute in the original case out of which the contest may have arisen,³ as assigned by the plaintiff.⁴ So also in Madras the appeal is governed, not by the value of the proximate subject matter in dispute but by the value of the subject matter in the original suit.⁵ When a plaintiff in a suit under s 93 of the N W P Rent Act has valued his suit at Rs 463 he cannot by subsequently alleging a greatly enhanced value obtain an appeal which would not have lain on the valuation stated in the plaint.⁶ When a landlord brings a suit for rent under ss 37 and 39 Act I of 1879 II C against a number of tenants collectively if the aggregate amount sued for exceeds Rs 100 the appeal lies to the Judicial Commissioner. The decision of the first Court, on the question of valuation is not final for the purpose of determining jurisdiction.⁷ Where an appeal is preferred on the ground that if the suit had been properly valued the District Court and not to the High Court.⁸ S 12 clause (1) of the Court Fees Act is no bar to an appeal when the question to be decided by the lower Court is merely the class of the suit in order to ascertain under what schedule of the Act it must be taken to fall for the purpose of fixing the Court fee payable on the plaint or memorandum of appeal.¹⁰

Limitation of right—The power to appeal is limited by the relations between the different parties. Thus a defendant whether interested or pro forma only, cannot appeal against a co-defendant¹¹ unless the other Court has dealt with the case as raising a question between the defendants¹² but if he does and the decree is against him he is estopped.¹³

Agreement not to appeal—If appellant agrees not to appeal, no appeal will

Application of section —The provisions of this section extend to miscellaneous proceedings and supersede the Letters Patent² they also extend to proceedings in execution³ but not to reviews⁴ and where the Judges differed on a preliminary question, namely as to whether the appeal was barred it was held that the result was governed by the Charter, and not by the corresponding section of Act XIV of 1882⁵

Reference —If the Judges differ on a question of fact only, there is no power to refer⁶ If the Judges deliver judgments without any reservation, they cannot afterwards refer⁷ and the judgment of the lower Court is affirmed⁸

Appeal —There is an appeal under the Letters Patent⁹ So also if they differ as to the award of costs¹⁰

99 No decree shall be reversed or substantially varied, nor shall any case be remanded, in appeal on account of any misjoinder of parties or causes of action or of any error, defect or irregularity in any proceeding in the suit not affecting the merits of the case or the jurisdiction of the Court

Not decreed to be reversed or remanded on account of irregularity not affecting merits or jurisdiction

Act XIV of 1882, sect 578 This section applies to H C

It has been extended in its application by the insertion of the words "misjoinder of parties or causes of action" Misjoinder no longer¹¹ makes the suit bad and the decree therein reversible unless the merits or the jurisdiction are affected if any party to the suit has been prejudiced by such misjoinder that fact will suffice to take the case out of this section For instance, the misjoinder of six defendants in one suit whose contracts are individual and separate, affects the merits of each man's case¹²

Valuation—As to the modification of this section when objection is taken on appeal that the suit or appeal is not properly valued, see Act VII of 1887 s 11 which is as follows—

"11 (1) Notwithstanding anything in section 578 (see sec 158, post) of the Code of Civil Procedure an objection that by reason of the over valuation or under valuation of a suit or appeal a Court of first instance or lower appellate Court which had not jurisdiction with respect to the suit or appeal exercised jurisdiction with respect thereto shall not be entertained by an appellate Court unless—

"(a) the objection was taken in the Court of first instance at or before the hearing at which issues were first framed and recorded, or in the lower appellate Court in the memorandum of appeal to that Court, or

"(b) the appellate Court is satisfied, for reasons to be recorded by it in writing that the suit or appeal was over valued, or under-valued, and that the over valuation or under valuation thereof has prejudicially affected the disposal of the suit or appeal on its merits

"(2) If the objection was taken in the manner mentioned in clause (a) of sub section (1), but the appellate Court is not satisfied as to both the matters mentioned in clause (b) of that sub section and has before it the materials necessary for the determination of the other grounds of appeal to itself, it shall dispose of the appeal as if there had been no defect of jurisdiction in the Court of first instance or lower appellate Court

"(3) If the objection was taken in that manner and the appellate Court is satisfied as to both those matters and has not those materials before it, it shall proceed to deal with the appeal under the rules applicable to the Court with respect to the hearing of appeals, but if it remands the suit or appeal, or frames and refers issues for trial, or requires additional evidence to be taken, it shall direct its order to a Court competent to entertain the suit or appeal

Not affecting the jurisdiction of the Court—This means not affecting the competency of the Court to try³

Application of the section—This section only applies to mistakes and irregularities subsequently committed in a suit which has been instituted in such a way as to give the Court jurisdiction to try it,⁴ it does not apply where the proceedings and the decree passed by a lower Court are without jurisdiction⁵

APPEALS FROM APPELLATE DECREES

100 (1) Save where otherwise expressly provided in the body of this Code or by any other law for the time being in force, in appeal shall lie to the High Court from every decree passed in appeal by any Court subordinate to a High Court, on any of the following grounds, namely

(a) the decision being contrary to law³ or to some usage having the force of law,

(b) the decision having failed to determine some material issue of law or usage having the force of law,

(c) a substantial error or defect in the procedure provided by this Code or by any other law for the time being in force, which may possibly have produced error or defect in the decision of the case upon the merits

(2) An appeal may lie under this section from an appellate decree passed ex parte

Act XIV of 1882, sect 584. This section applies to H. C.⁴

Save otherwise provided – The word “expressly” has been inserted in the re-draft of sect 584 of Act XIV of 1882, and it is made clear that no Rules can be made restricting second appeals. A special appeal lies from a decree under s. 39 of the Land Acquisition Act,⁵ and from the decision of a Political Agent in

May possibly have produced — The word possibly was introduced into Act IV of 1832 in consequence of a decision¹ holding that 'may have produced' means 'may not improbably have produced and not 'may by some possibility have produced'

Decision — By the word decision is meant the decree and judgment taken together, and not simply the decree unexplained by the judgment.²

Practices — The jurisdiction of the Court in special appeal is confined to the determination of such matters of law as may arise on the special appeal.³ It cannot decide facts, even with the consent of parties,⁴ nor draw any inference of fact from the evidence in the case,⁵ nor interfere with the lower Court's judgment, because it cannot agree with or support all the reasons given,⁶ nor lay down any rule as to what weight should be attached to evidence,⁷ or to the credibility of a witness.⁸ But if the finding of the lower Court is unnecessary for the disposal of the case the Court may expunge it from the record,⁹ and if it is based on an error in law the Court is empowered to reverse it,¹⁰ and fully decide the case if there is no legal evidence on the record to support the case of one party,¹¹ or the remaining facts found by the lower Court are sufficient for its disposal,¹² but in all other cases of material error, either in law or procedure the Court from inability to determine facts must remand the case to have the error amended or for retrial as the case may be.¹³ If wrong issues have been framed it can fix a proper issue and send it down for trial,¹⁴ or direct the lower Court to complete the inquiry if it has been inadequate.¹⁵ Or even direct a retrial,¹⁶ and this last is the usual procedure where a very material error has been committed by the lower Court.¹⁷ Where the Judge came to a contrary conclusion the lower Court's finding ought not to be accepted.¹⁸

If the plaint does not disclose a cause of action, the proper order is to reject the plaint and not to dismiss the suit ¹

The fact that the High Court may have called for a case and decided it in regular appeal does not affect the ordinary course of appeal in execution of that when he has only the right indium of appeal from an to consider whether any of to the case, and if they do not, to reject the appeal summarily ² No objection on the ground of misdescription or defect of parties can be permitted to be raised for the first time in second appeal ⁴ The plea that the suit is beyond the pecuniary limits of the Munsif's jurisdiction should not be allowed to be raised in second appeal, if the appellant does not appear to have been prejudiced ⁵ When a judgment debtor applies to have an execution sale set aside and alleges fraud on the part of the decree holder or auction purchaser, the application is one under s. 244 former code (sec. 47) though the question is between the judgment debtor and the auction purchaser, who is not the decree holder In such a case, a second appeal lies and the period of limitation is 3 years under art. 178 ⁶ The Court in second appeal is competent to bring on to the record persons who had originally been joined in the suit, but were not joined in the appellate Court ⁷

Unstamped document—An instrument not duly stamped will not be admitted in second appeal on payment of stamp and penalty, when there is no evidence that the stamp and penalty were tendered and refused on the hearing of the first appeal ⁸

Limitation—See 'LIMITATION, Order XLI, r. 1

Ninety days on the Appellate Side and twenty days on the Original Side from the date of the decree appealed against—arts. 156, 157, Sched. II, Act XV, 1877, the Court can extend the time for sufficient cause ⁹

Letters Patent If two Judges differ as to the admission of an appeal after time, there is an appeal under the Letters Patent ¹⁰

Special appeal—The High Court can in special appeal, look into the grounds upon which an appeal has been admitted after time by the lower appellate Court, ¹¹ but it will not interfere if the Court has exercised its discretion in a sound and reasonable manner ¹² and not capriciously or arbitrarily without sufficient legal material to support its decision ¹³ or from an order of the lower appellate Court, erroneously dismissing an appeal on the ground that no appeal lay.⁵ When an appellate Court deems it necessary on the application of a party or otherwise that a commission for local investigation should be issued, the return to that commission should be before that Court, before it should proceed to hear the appeal. When the Court proceeds to determine the appeal without waiting for the return of the commission, there is a substantial error or defect in its procedure.⁷

meaning of a document or a deposition,¹ but the construction of it, its legal effect, is a matter of law.² It cannot detract from the weight of concurrent findings of fact that they have been arrived at for different reasons.³ The question whether the properties in suit passed under a sale certificate is a question of fact.⁴ The High Court has no jurisdiction in an original case, but as an appeal, is precluded from going into facts, only to cases when evidence is taken in the first Court.⁵ When the lower appellate Court arrived at an erroneous conclusion by relying on a comparison between two signatures in which there were considerable discrepancies, the High Court reversed its decision and remanded the case for retrial.⁶ When the decision of a Judge is based neither on evidence nor admissions, it is not binding in second appeal.⁷ The High Court can interfere if the lower appellate Court draws erroneous conclusions by assuming a state of things in favour of the defendant which is contradictory to his case.⁸ When the lower appellate Court draws conclusions from evidence not warranted by law or reason and fails to try a material issue in the case, a second appeal will lie.⁹ When a finding of fact is based on an erroneous view of the plaintiff's conduct having amounted to acquiescence, the finding of fact may be set aside, and the case remanded for a fresh finding.¹⁰ When the finding of the existence of a usage is based mainly on a misconception of what legal finding on it is.¹¹ The finding on the groundness of an inference drawn from a finding of fact.¹²

Mixed questions of fact and law—In an ejectment suit the evidence of the plaintiffs title to the property consisted of evidence of acts of user from which the Court was asked to infer ownership in the absence of proof of a better title by the defendant. On the evidence the District Judge held that the plaintiffs title was not proved. Held, that this finding, which was a mixed one of law and fact, was a finding with which the High Court could not interfere on second appeal.

When from the facts found by the lower Court the legal inference to be drawn is certain, the High Court in second appeal may correct the erroneous conclusions drawn by the lower appellate Court. When, however, the legal inference to be deduced from such facts is doubtful, it is not open to the High Court in second appeal to interfere with the findings of the lower Court.¹ A second appeal will lie on a finding of adverse possession, when such finding is a mixed question of law and fact depending upon the proper legal conclusion to be drawn from the finding as to simple facts.² The question what is actually bargained and paid for at an execution sale is a mixed question of law and fact, and the High Court on second appeal is not bound by the finding of the Court. Ishwar Chandra Sinha v Satish Chandra Sinha, 1902 7 Cal. W. N. 126. It is in second appeal as the lower court is in first appeal, the important portion of the evidence, the evidence involved in error of law.

Question of law—The proper inference to be drawn from the terms of a document is a question of law and can be considered in second appeal.³ But when the construction of documents is not in issue and the sole question is as to their effect as evidence, there is no question of law involved.⁴ If the decree appealed against is based on a wrong view of the law of evidence, or on a misconception of the canons which the Privy Council and the High Court have defined as to how a special custom should be proved, the High Court will interfere in second appeal.⁵ When the lower appellate Court arrives at a conclusion which is based upon an erroneous view of law the judgment is open to question in second appeal.⁶ So also when there was no evidence before the lower Appellate Court upon which it could properly arrive at the conclusion of fact to which it did arrive.⁷

Disregard of an Amiri's second report is not a substantial error or defect of procedure and constitutes no error of law.⁸ The Court will not interfere on special appeal with a decree proceeding on a mistake as to the applicability of a law, when such error does not affect the decision of the case.⁹

Procedure—When the first Court had in the absence of evidence found that a compromise upheld by the lower Court was not for the benefit of a certain infant, held, that this was a substantial error or defect in the procedure of the first appellate Court, and that the High Court was right in second appeal in restoring the decree of the lower Court.¹⁰ When the lower appellate Court passes separate decrees in appeals relating to the same matter between the same parties against the same person, separate second appeals must be filed.¹¹ When the High Court on special appeal was of opinion that the judgment of the District Judge reversing that of the Munsiff on the credibility of the witnesses did not fulfil the conditions that a judgment reversing such decision ought to

A vakel cannot certify his own appeal.²

Plaintiffs having been granted an adjournment in order to obtain a certificate under Act XXVII of 1860 failed to avail themselves of the opportunity. The suit was accordingly dismissed and the High Court refused to disturb the decision.³

The grounds of special appeal should be full⁴ and specific, and should clearly indicate the error of law assigned, or the substantial error or defect in law or procedure or investigation which is imputed, and in the latter case it should be made to appear on the face of the ground of appeal that such error or defect probably produced error or defect in law in the decision by stating what bearing the supposed error or defect had on the merits of the case.⁵

The general rule as to grounds of appeal is that a party is not entitled to relief upon facts or documents not referred to or stated in the pleadings,⁶ or inconsistent with them,⁷ nor on any ground which has never been considered, taken, or tried in the Courts below⁸ except it is a pure point of law going to the question of the jurisdiction of the lower Courts and capable of being determined without the consideration of any evidence other than that on the record,⁹ but it is in the discretion of the Court to allow or disallow a plea of limitation not set out in grounds of appeal.¹⁰ And where parties allow a suit to be conducted in the lower Courts as if a certain fact was admitted, they cannot afterwards, in a special appeal, question it and recede from the tacit admission.¹¹ And where

Neither the lower Courts nor the High Court can go behind the decision on remand. If not changed in review, it is final.¹ Findings upon issues remanded by the High Court in second appeal cannot be challenged upon the evidence as in first appeals, but objections to these findings must be restricted to the limits within which the original pleas in second appeal are confined.²

The omission of a party to prefer an appeal against an order of remand does not preclude him from questioning its legality when it comes up in special appeal from the subsequent decision passed after remand.³

When a case is remanded to try a single issue, the order prevents the case being re-opened.⁴

The first Court held the suit was barred, this decision was set aside on regular appeal, and the case remanded for trial on the merits. The first Court then decreed the claim and the appellate Court dismissed it. In special appeal it was held that, though the defendant might have appealed from the first decision of the appellate Court on the question of limitation, he could raise the same objection in cross appeal on the plaintiff's special appeal.⁵

The general affirmation of a judgment in special appeal can only refer to the points raised by the appellant, and the rejection of the appeal does not necessarily affirm the other findings of fact or law incidentally arrived at by the lower Court.⁶ Where the lower Court decided the issue of limitation against, but the other issues in favour of, the defendant, and the High Court remanded the case without passing any judgment on the issue of limitation, it was held that when the case came up again in special appeal, the Court could enter on the question of limitation. When the lower appellate Court framed a wrong issue for decision, but it appeared from its judgment that there was a finding on the point which would have been raised if the correct issue had been framed, the High Court in second appeal refused to remand the case for a new finding on that issue.⁶

Error of Judge. When it is stated in special appeal that the lower Court refused to examine witnesses, it is not sufficient to put in an affidavit to the effect that a verbal request of the advocate to examine witnesses was refused. The general practice is for the pleaders to apply for examination of witnesses by petition.⁷

When a Judge states that an admission was made before him by one of the parties to the suit, the High Court cannot in special appeal enquire whether the Judge is right or wrong in making the statement.⁸

Limits of jurisdiction of second appellate Court.—If the High Court call up a case as a regular appeal before themselves and go through the evidence, they exceed the statutory limits of their jurisdiction.¹¹

Court-fees—In a suit upon a hypothecation bond it was found by the Court of first appeal that the bond and the debt secured thereby were binding on the first, but not upon the second defendant. The plaintiff preferred a second appeal against the second defendant. Held, that the Court fee payable on the second appeal should be calculated on the amount of the debt sought to be recovered.¹ Where it was discovered in second appeal in the High Court that the respondent, when appellant in the lower appellate Court had not paid a sufficient Court fee on his memorandum of appeal in that Court, and up to date of the hearing of the appeal in the High Court, though called on to do so, had not made good the deficiency it was held that the proper procedure was not to dismiss the respondent's appeal to the lower appellate Court, but to stay the issuing of the decree, if any, of the High Court in favour of the respondent until such time as the additional Court fee due by him might be paid.²

No appeal lies to the High Court from an order of a District Judge, rejecting an appeal petition as insufficiently stamped.³

Act XIV of 1882, sect 586 This section applies to H C⁴

Practice in appeal—If in appeal it appears that there is a Small Cause Court in the place where the suit was instituted, and it was filed in the ordinary Court, the proceedings will be set aside as without jurisdiction and the plaint returned.⁵

Right to begin—The appellant begins, even where his right of appeal is contested.⁶

Cognizable by Court of Small Causes—The law now in force in regard to Provincial Courts of Small Causes is Act IX of 1887

No special appeal lies in a suit cognizable by a Small Cause Court, though a question of title to immoveable property has been raised and tried in it.⁷

The mere fact of a question of title arising does not prevent a suit being cognizable by a Court of Small Causes or give a right of second appeal. By merely asking in the alternative for an account of profits, a suit cognizable by a

Small Cause Court cannot be converted into one of a different nature,¹ and the addition of an unnecessary prayer for a declaration does not prevent a suit being of a Small Cause Court nature.²

It is the nature of the suit and not the Court in which it is tried that determines the appeal.³ So that if a case is of a Small Cause Court nature, though for special reasons it cannot or has not been tried in a Small Cause Court no appeal lies.⁴ A suit of the nature cognizable by a Small Cause Court does not cease to be so within the meaning of this section, because the Court in which it was instituted under s 23, Act IX of 1887, returned the plaint to be filed on the regular side on the ground that the suit involved questions of title.⁵ A suit to recover from the decree holder money paid as the price of property sold in execution of a decree as the property of the judgment debtors, on the ground that the judgment debtors had no saleable interest in the property, is a suit of the nature cognizable in Courts of Small Causes.⁶

Appeal does not lie—No special appeal lies in a suit for contribution under s 69 of the Indian Contract Act, where the parties are not sharers in joint property,⁷ nor on a bond specially registered under s 53, Act XX of 1866 for an amount less than 500 rupees,⁸ nor for rent not exceeding Rs 500,⁹ nor in a suit for damages below Rs 500 whether the damages are on account of moveable or immoveable property,¹⁰ nor for sale of a decree for an inadequate amount,¹¹ nor for damages for detention of materials of a house,¹² nor in a suit for money paid by an unsuccessful claimant to attached property in order to save his share from sale in execution,¹³ nor in a suit not for money but to redeem a mortgage,¹⁴ nor in a suit to recover a share of malikana realised from the Collector,¹⁵ nor in a suit to have property made over to plaintiff on an account,¹⁶ nor in a suit for recovery of money paid in excess of rent due,¹⁷ nor of share of profits of land,¹⁸ nor in a suit for refund of excess revenue paid by a lessee,¹⁹ nor in a suit against Government the Munsif. The Munsif passed an order in execution which was confirmed in appeal. Held no second appeal lay.¹ A suit brought to recover moneys wrongly made over by a Magistrate under s. 517, Cr. P. C. is a suit of a Small Cause nature, and if the amount claimed is less than Rs. 500, no second appeal lies.² A suit to recover possession of books and for money collected by the defendant on behalf of the plaintiff is of a Small Cause Court nature.³

Appeal lies—A special appeal lies from a decree on a mortgage bond for an amount under Rs. 500, if the property is made liable⁴ or in a suit to recover a debt from immovable property⁵ or in a suit by the assignee of a registered mortgage bond hypothecating certain crops to enforce the hypothecation⁶. A second appeal lies in a suit for recovery of arrears of mutakarr allowance,⁷ but where A sued for Rs. 500 on a bond and the suit was decreed by consent, and the decree holder got 1½ leeghis of land instead of money, it was held that this did not change the nature of the suit so as to give an appeal.⁸ A special appeal will lie from a decree for possession of six decrees valued at less than Rs. 500, with a declaration of power to execute them⁹ and where plaintiff sued father and sons on a bond executed by the father alone, the sons were allowed to appeal.¹⁰

A suit for damages on account of withholding a receipt for agricultural rent is not within the section.¹¹ A second appeal lies in a suit for arrears of choudidari tax.¹² A second appeal will lie in a suit for money paid to redeem crops distrained by the defendants for rents due from others than the plaintiffs and for damages sustained on account of the distraint.¹³ A suit for specific performance of a contract not being cognizable by a Court of Small Causes, a special appeal will lie.¹⁴ Similarly a special appeal lies in a suit to establish a surety's liability for rent due from a pitardar.¹⁵ A suit for compensation for illegal distress or attachment and not for the recovery of specific property is not a suit of the value cognizable by a Court of Small Causes, and a second appeal will lie.¹⁶

APPEALS FROM ORDERS.

104 (1) An appeal shall lie from the following orders, and save as otherwise expressly provided in the body of this Code or by any law for the time being in force from no other orders —

- (a) an order superseding an arbitration where the award has not been completed within the period allowed by the Court,
- (b) an order on an award stated in the form of a special case,
- (c) an order modifying or correcting an award,
- (d) an order filing or refusing to file an agreement to refer to arbitration,

- (e) an order staying or refusing to stay a suit where there is an agreement to refer to arbitration,
- (f) an order filing or refusing to file an award in an arbitration without the intervention of the Court;
- (g) an order under section 95,
- (h) an order under any of the provisions of this Code imposing a fine or directing the arrest or detention in the civil prison of any person except where such arrest or detention is in execution of a decree,
- (i) any order made under rules from which an appeal is expressly allowed by rules

(2) No appeal shall lie from any order passed in appeal under this section

Act XIV of 1882 sec 588, 2nd para, 36 and 37 Vict 466 s 19 (1st Act 1873) This section applies to H C

The orders expressly referred to in this section relate only to arbitration and arrests or attachment but clause (h) gives an appeal from all orders made under the Rules of Part II from which an appeal is provided in the rules themselves

(i) An order superseding an arbitration—See schedule II sect 8 which reproduces sect 514 of Act XIV of 1882 from which an appeal was allowed

(b) An order on an award in special case—See schedule II, sect 11 which reproduces sect 517 of Act XIV of 1882

(c) An order modifying or correcting an award—See schedule II sect 12 which reproduces sect 518 of Act XIV of 1882 from which an appeal was allowed

(d) An order filing or refusing to file in agreement to refer—See schedule II sect 17 which reproduces sect 523 of Act XIV of 1882 from which it was doubtful whether an appeal lay. Sect 17 of schedule II makes it clear that the Court does not pass a decree but makes an order under this section so that an appeal lies only by virtue of this sub section¹

(e) An order staying or refusing to stay etc—See schedule II, sect 18 and sect 19 of Act IV of 1899

(f) An order filing or refusing to file in award—See schedule II, sect 20, reproducing sect 525 of Act XIV of 1882 from which an appeal lay as from a decree²

(g) An order under section 95—Section 95 reproduces section 491 from which no appeal lay and section 497 from which an appeal was given by sect 588 of Act XIV of 1882

(h) *Order imposing fines or directing arrest*³—Sect 588 (29) of Act XIV of 1882

Where on remand from the High Court for trial, the Judge considered himself bound to carry out the orders although the parties petitioned that they had entered into a compromise before the appeal, it was held that an appeal did not lie²

No second appeal—No second appeal lies from an order by a District Judge on appeal setting aside a sale under O XXI, r 72, notwithstanding that s 244 former Code (sec 47) bars a separate suit in such a case³ nor from an order of an appellate Court under s 317 (O XXI s 92) confirming a sale⁴

105 (1) Save as otherwise expressly provided, no appeal shall lie from any order made by a Court in the exercise of its original or appellate jurisdiction, but, where a decree is appealed from, any error, defect or irregularity in any order, affecting the decision of the case, may be set forth as a ground of objection in the memorandum of appeal

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub section (1), where any party aggrieved by an order of remand made after the commencement of this Code from which an appeal lies does not appeal therefrom, he shall thereafter be precluded from disputing its correctness

Act XIV of 1882 section 591 This section applies to H C

Error, defect or irregularity—These mean an error, defect or irregularity in procedure or law and not in matters of fact⁵

Affecting the decision of the case—These words mean "affecting the decision of the case with reference to the merits of it" When an ex parte decree was set aside by an order under s 108, former Code (Order XV, r 13) and the suit heard upon the merits and dismissed heli that such order was not an order affecting the decision of the case and was not appealable⁶ An order admitting an appeal which has been dismissed for default is not an order affecting the decision of the case⁷

Attachment—An order of attachment for contempt on the Original Side of the High Court does not fall within this section, and is appealable⁸

Court-Fees—A decision under s 3 of the Court Fees Act is not an order under this section⁹

Interlocutory orders—There is no law in India which renders it imperative upon a party to appeal from every interlocutory order under the penalty, if he does not do so, of forfeiting the benefit of the consideration of the appellate Court and whether the order is subject to appeal or not, the party aggrieved can impugn it in an appeal from the decree.¹

The present effect of this judgment has been considerably curtailed by the introduction of preliminary decrees as to which see section 2 ante and the words must now be read as referring only to 'orders' in their strictest sense as opposed to preliminary decrees.

Remand—Sub section (2) takes away from this section all orders of remand from which an appeal lies, if these are to be questioned, the appeal must be made at once. The provisions as to appeals from these orders are contained in Order XLIII, r 1 (a) post.

Second appeal—Under Act XIV of 1882 it was held that no second appeal lay from an order admitting a review, after the case had been struck off for default of prosecution and the hearing had been refused² or from an order the order judgment and appeal

GENERAL PROVISIONS RELATING TO APPEALS

107 (1) Subject to such conditions and limitations as may be prescribed, an Appellate Court shall have power—

- (a) to determine a case finally,
- (b) to remand a case
- (c) to frame issues and refer them for trial,
- (d) to take additional evidence or to require such evidence to be taken

(2) Subject as aforesaid, the Appellate Court shall have the same powers and shall perform as nearly as may be the same duties as are conferred and imposed by this Code on Courts of original jurisdiction in respect of suits instituted therein

Act XIV of 1882, sect 582 This section applies to H C This is a general provision setting out in the body of the Code the powers of an Appellate Court

Co-appellant—There is no power in the Code to make a party to a suit a co-plaintiff. The section read with s 37 former Code (Order I) empowers the Court to strike out parties or direct new parties to be added.¹⁰

Appellate Jurisdiction—See Karte Mohallur v Ramjan.² A District Judge has no jurisdiction to hear an appeal from an order in insolvency-matters in a case where it has no jurisdiction to hear an appeal in the suit itself, as when the subject-matter of the suit is more than Rs 5000 in value.³ When the subject-matter of the suit is above Rs 5000, an appeal from an order rejecting an application for a receiver under Order XL of the Code lies to the High Court,⁴ but this has been dissented from in Bombay and Allahabad.⁵

Powers—The word powers is not used in the sense of jurisdiction. It means powers to grant time to adjourn a hearing to examine parties and pleaders to award costs &c ² and to allow a case to be withdrawn ³. On appeal from the decision of a District Munsif in favour of a plaintiff in a suit for recovery of rent the District Judge set aside the decree of the lower Court, ordered a new trial and ordered the amendment of the plaint by inserting the exact boundaries of the land on which the plaintiff claimed the rent. Held, that the order for the amendment of the plaint was bad as there was no dispute as to the boundaries of the land before the original Court ⁴.

Abatement—See Order VIII

from appellate decrees and orders

108 The provisions of this Part relating to appeals from original decrees shall, so far as may be, apply to appeals—

(a) from appellate decrees, and

(b) from orders made under this Code or under any special or local law in which a different procedure is not provided

Act XIV of 1882 sec 557, 590

In connection with this provision the wider scope given in regard to the joinder of parties and causes of action by section 99 should be particularly noticed

As far as may be—This means as far as is consistent with the principles on which appeals from original decrees are admitted and determined ⁵

The appellate Court in special appeal can remand a case for re-trial, ⁶ or for a finding on an issue ⁷ it cannot try an issue of fact as in regular appeal ⁸

Execution proceedings—When the original suit is a suit of the nature cognizable in Courts of Small Causes and the subject matter does not exceed Rs 500 in value no second appeal will lie in respect of an order made in execution proceedings relating thereto ⁹

- (b) from any decree or final order passed by a High Court in the exercise of original civil jurisdiction, and
- (c) from any decree or order, when the case, as hereinafter provided, is certified to be a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council.

Act XIV of 1882, sect. 59.

The main provisions relating to these appeals have been retained in the body of the Code, and the balance will be found in Order XLV post.

The words 'Decree or final order' have been substituted for the final decree of the former section. This makes it clear that preliminary decrees are included, and interlocutory orders only excluded from this right of appeal.

Right to admit. This Code does not limit the prerogative of the Crown to admit an appeal.¹

Effect of decree under appeal.—Pending the result of an appeal to the Privy Council, the person who, subject to that appeal, is the owner of the estate can sue third parties in that character.²

When and when not appeal lies.—No appeal is allowed as to costs,³ nor from a criminal case,⁴ unless certified by the High Court, nor from an order directing accounts to be taken in a particular manner,⁵ nor from an order cancelling on the ground of mistake a notification declaring that a person had been enrolled as a pleader,⁶ nor from an order under s. 25, cl. (2) of Bengal Regulation V of 1831 dismissing a Munsiff for corruption as Judge.⁷ Nor from the report of a commission appointed to advise the Government of India as to an act of State.⁸

An appeal lies from the order of a single Judge of the High Court, on the appellate side, as to the interpretation of a Privy Council decree for more than Rs. 10,000.⁹

No appeal lies to the Calcutta High Court from a final decree passed by the Recorder of Rangoon in the exercise of Original Civil Jurisdiction, where the subject matter of the suit is above ten thousand rupees, but an appeal lies to His Majesty in Council.¹⁰

Value—The value of the property is the selling or market value¹. But if a defendant, having the means of proving the real value of a suit, makes no objection to the plaintiff's under valuation, and in special appeal undervalues it, he cannot be allowed to prove the real value of the estate for the purpose of appealing to the Privy Council².

Value of the subject matter of the suit—The subject matter of the suit is not the same as the subject matter in dispute³. The value of the stamp on the plaint is not conclusive of the value of the subject matter⁴.

Value of the appeal—A suit was brought to recover a zemindary in the possession of different persons under deeds of sale in execution of decree. The value of the property was, as stated in the plaint, Rs 14325. The Sudder Court upheld the sales so far as related to the claims of some of the defendants. The in appeal being whether the decree was right or not, was above Rs 10,000 in value⁵ and so in a suit for land where the land was valued at less than Rs 10,000, but the vasilat when added made it above Rs 10,000, in appeal lay,⁶ but costs of suits cannot be included⁷ nor interest after decree⁸. Where an appeal originally competent and bona fide instituted is in the printed case confined to an amount below the prescribed limit, it is not thereby rendered incompetent¹⁰. There is no right of appeal when the dispute relates merely to the income of property of the value of Rs 10,000¹¹. In a suit for an injunction it is open to the applicant for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council to show what the real value of the suit is notwithstanding the fact that for the purposes of the Court fees Act, the value of the suit was fixed at a sum less than the appealable amount¹². A plaintiff in suit for damages for libel can not ensure an appeal to the Privy Council by merely placing his damages at a sufficiently high figure. When there is a contest as to the value of the matter in dispute the practice is to ascertain the true value by enquiry and evidence¹³.

Order in execution—An appeal lies from an order passed by the High Court in a case of execution of decree in which the amount or value involved exceed Rs. 10,000.²

Directly or indirectly—These words apply to suits in existence.³ If there are two or more suits, each less than Rs. 10,000 in value, in which separate judgments have been given they cannot be consolidated. Each judgment when pronounced is final and conclusive,⁴ but if there are several suits, the aggregate amount of which is more than Rs. 10,000, and the decision of one governs them all, the appeal will be allowed.⁵ And where of 5 suits heard on the same evidence and concluded by the same judgment five were appealable as of right, and in the sixth there was an important point of law not raised in the other five, a certificate was granted.⁶ When the value of the property in suit was below Rs. 10,000 but the effect of a judgment with regard to the construction of which there was a dispute, would govern the ownership of property worth 5 lakhs, a certificate of appeal was granted.⁷

Affirms the decision of the Court below—See Asghar Raza v. Hydr Raza.⁸ Where there is no point of law involved in a case the mere fact that the finding of the appellate Court does not in terms coincide with that of the original Court, is not sufficient where the findings of fact of the two Courts are in effect the same, to give a right of appeal to the Privy Council, notwithstanding that the value of the suit is more than Rs. 10,000.⁹ A decree of the High Court dismissing an appeal for want of prosecution, the appellants not having supplied their counsel with materials upon which to argue the appeal when it was called on for hearing, is a decree affirming the decision of the Court immediately below.¹⁰ The word decision means the decision of the suit. It cannot like judgment mean the statement of the grounds of the decree in order to affirm the decision of the Court below, it is sufficient to affirm the decree.¹¹ A question of fact decided in the first Court and not raised in the High Court cannot be dealt with in appeal to Privy Council.¹²

Substantial question of law—This provision is not ultra vires of the power of the Indian Legislature as being a curtailment of the jurisdiction given to the High Courts by the Letters Patent 1863, cl. 39.¹³ The meaning of this the argument as the remarks of their lordships of the Privy Council in *Durga Jivhar*². When upon the facts found no question of law arises, leave to appeal should be refused³.

There is no substantial question of law when it only arises if the concurrent findings of fact of the lower court are not impeal to the Privy Council involved, if the value of judgment in the manner of decision of an application for a substantial question of law⁴.

An objection that an application for execution was improperly granted by the Court of first instance in the absence of a certificate of success on an order of the Act VII of 1859 does not raise a substantial question of law so as to warrant the High Court in granting leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council⁵.

To allow leave to appeal on the ground that there seems to be a point of law is not a compliance with s. 596 (4) former Code, (s. 110, which requires that there must be some substantial question of law⁶.

Maintenance—It is not the practice of the Privy Council to interfere in a question of amount of maintenance⁷ or generally in questions depending on facts as to which familiarity with Indian manners and customs is necessary⁸.

Review—An order granting leave to appeal to the Privy Council is open to review⁹.

an appeal is out of time, the Judicial Committee will not interfere unless satisfied that the High Court was wrong.⁴

Restoration—An appeal dismissed for default may be restored to the file on terms as to costs and on security being given.⁵

Evidence—The Judicial Committee will not criticize with any strictness opinions as to the credibility of witnesses which is eminently a question for the Courts in India.⁷

Findings of fact—It is not the practice of the Privy Council to disturb the findings of the Court below upon mere issues of fact, unless it is clearly satisfied that there has been some miscarriage either in the reception or in the appreciation of evidence.⁸ In appeal from second appeal the findings of fact by the first Court are binding on their lordships,⁹ unless special leave to appeal from the decision of the first Court has been given.¹⁰ When leave to appeal from the decree of a subordinate Judge direct to Her Majesty in Council has not been asked for the hearing must be based on the materials open to the High Court and the finding of the subordinate Judge on matters not involving questions of law must be taken as conclusive.¹¹

PART VIII.

REFERENCE, REVIEW AND REVISION.

113 Subject to such conditions and limitations as may be prescribed, any Court may state a case and refer the same for the opinion of the High Court, and the High Court may make such order thereon as it thinks fit

Reference to High Court

Act XIV of 1882, Section 617 This section applies to H C and Prov S C C

The provisions relating to reference review and revision remain substantially the same as in Act XIV of 1882, details are relegated to Orders XLVI and XLVII post and the relevant decisions under the Old Code are collected in the notes to the rules of those orders

114 Subject as aforesaid, any person considering himself aggrieved—

Review

- (a) by a decree or order from which an appeal is allowed by this Code, but from which no appeal has been preferred,
- (b) by a decree or order from which no appeal is allowed by this Code, or
- (c) by a decision on a reference from a Court of Small Causes, may apply for a review of judgment to the Court which passed the decree or made the order, and the Court may make such order thereon as it thinks fit.

Act XIV of 1882, Section 623 This section applies to H C and Prov S C C

This section establishes the general right to apply for Review and sanctions the prescription of rules within the limits here defined Order XLVII, r 1, drafted by the framers of this Code re-enacts word for word section 623 of Act XIV of 1882 See the notes to that rule

115. The High Court may call for the record of any case which has been decided by any Court subordinate to such High Court and in which no appeal lies thereto, and if such subordinate Court appears—

Revision

The other High Courts have exercised the revisional powers in the application of a pre-emptor in regard to a sale¹ of a field or an inheritance in a pauper suit and in the report in a District Judge's Court or cannot make a reference under his section giving the High Court to examine a Mamladar's decree in a pauper suit.²

No appeal lies.—The Court cannot interfere where there is an appeal, such as an order rejecting a petition or electing a memorandum of appeal is barred or an order of a District Judge extending the time for payment of the mortgage money in the mortgage which is a decree and here are noneal-able³ but it is open to the Court to set aside a decree if the Court may proceed to do under this section on its merits.⁴ Where a second appeal lies, a petition for revision is not admissible.⁵

Other remedy open.—The High Court will not usually exercise its revisional jurisdiction is only as here is any other remedy open to the applicant, but this is not the general rule.⁶ Where it is open to the parties aggrieved to establish their right by a civil suit the High Court will not interfere under this section.⁷ In a suit for possession where a Mamladar had not declined jurisdiction but had exercised it and the decree was affirmed and come to a conclusion the Bombay High Court refused to interfere, holding that the aggrieved party's remedy is in a separate suit.⁸

Case was decided.—Interlocutory orders.—This section does not apply to orders of interlocutory orders when there is an appeal from the final decree.⁹

Jurisdiction.—The expression jurisdiction is used in different senses. In one sense it means jurisdiction over the subject matter of the suit itself, and it is used in this sense when it is said that the decree of a Court of competent jurisdiction upon the parties is final before the question of a Court of co-ordinate jurisdiction on the ground of irregularity or error of law in the proceedings.¹⁰ Their lordships of the Privy Council have used the word in this

Their lordships of the Privy Council have been slow to decide that the violation of any section of the Code bearing on the ordinary course of a suit from institution to final execution affects jurisdiction, or is more than an irregularity. There are only two cases, one in regard to arbitration,¹ and the other in connection with admitting a review after time,² and it may be doubted if either falls within ordinary procedure from plaint to final disposal. See ³ POWER TO REVIEW, ante. When a Court of first instance of appeal has exercised a jurisdiction not vested in it by law, the High Court is bound to interfere under its revisional powers.⁴

sense in several cases as opposed to irregularity in procedure.¹ There is another principle, that whenever jurisdiction is given to a Court by an enactment and such jurisdiction is only given on certain specified terms contained in the enactment itself these terms must be complied with, in order to create and raise the jurisdiction for if they be not complied with, the jurisdiction does not arise.² Thus as an illustration of the first kind of jurisdiction, if the subject-matter of the litigation was not a suit, a Court of appeal has no jurisdiction at all to entertain an appeal under s 96,³ and in regard to the second, a Court cannot give judgment on an award unless under the provisions of s 521 former Code (see sch 11) it has been made within the period allowed by the Court,⁴ nor admit a review after 90 days without being satisfied that there is sufficient cause, as directed by the Limitation Act⁵ prohibiting the review of an order passed in review,⁶ nor stay sale of property on the application of an unsuccessful claimant pending the hearing of a suit instituted in another Court, when such latter Court has refused to issue an injunction under s 492 former Code, (Order XXXI r 1)⁷ And where the conditions required by this section did not exist, their Lordships of the Privy Council held that the Court had no jurisdiction in the case.⁸ In all these cases the proceedings are void and the defect cannot be cured by consent.⁹

This section applies to a case in which a Judge has exercised a jurisdiction which he has no power to exercise or in which in the exercise of a jurisdiction, that he has exceeded his jurisdiction¹⁰ or has acted illegally or with material irregularity.¹¹ Where an appeal is heard by a Court that has no jurisdiction this section applies¹² and if a second appeal is preferred from his decision, the High Court may proceed under this section.¹³ Unless the facts from which want of jurisdiction on the part of a subordinate Court may be inferred are patent on the face of the record, the Allahabad High Court will not interfere in revision.¹⁴

an ex parte order passed under the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890, by the Agent to the Governor in the Scheduled District of Vizagapatam on the ground that the petitioner's vakil had not been heard³

On the other hand, the fact that a Court, having power to decide whether or not a certain matter was barred as res judicata,⁴ or was barred by limitation, affords no inadmissible and irregularity⁵. The fact that a Court has misunderstood the effect of a document in evidence does not constitute a ground upon which the High Court can interfere in revision⁷.

Material irregularity—This means an irregularity in procedure which has produced error or defect in the decision of the case upon the merits⁸. This sub section is intended to authorize the High Court to interfere and correct gross and palpable errors of subordinate Courts so as to prevent unless a failure of justice has occurred¹². A wrong decision on a question of limitation is not open to revision¹³ nor is an order to pay rent by instalments under the Bengal Tenancy Act which is an error in law and not in jurisdiction¹⁷.

This section contemplates interference with a perverse decision on a question of law or procedure, a decision being perverse when it is a conscious departure from some rule of law or procedure¹⁶.

suit, holding there was no cause of action,¹ or refuses to listen to a charge of fraud as a ground for setting aside a sale,² or wrongly thinks s. 544 (Order XXI, r. 4) does not apply to an appeal to which it does apply,³ or declines to investigate a complaint under s. 278, (Order XXI, r. 58)⁴ or wrongly thinks that the provisions of s. 310 A (Order XXI, r. 89) do not apply⁵ his order may be set aside. But if a Judge exercises jurisdiction, though in an erroneous manner, this portion of the section does not apply.⁶ When a Judge at the instance of a person not a party to the suit refused to pass an order for the execution of a decree, it was held that he had failed to exercise a jurisdiction vested in him by law.⁷ A suit in forma pauperis was rejected, but the Judge omitted to order the recovery from the plaintiff of the Court fees payable. The decree was rectified by the High Court under this section.⁸

Acting illegally—The application of the words "acting illegally" to procedure within jurisdiction is not easy. For, if the law violated is mandatory, the violation affects jurisdiction and if not, it is only an irregularity. It has, however, been used in the former sense by the Calcutta High Court, and the language has been approved of by their Lordships of the Privy Council.⁹ The meaning to be attached to this sub-section is not settled. A Judge would act illegally, although he possessed jurisdiction over the subject matter, if he heard any suit or other proceeding in which he was a party or personally interested, or if he heard an appeal against a decree or order passed by himself in another capacity—Act VII of 1857 s. 38, or possibly, if he imported into the case his own knowledge of particular facts,¹⁰ but he cannot be said to have acted illegally if he merely errs in his final decision,¹¹ but it has been held that if the decision has been arrived at by travelling beyond the issues,¹² or if he declares that by reason of a particular Statute the suit does not lie,¹³ the Judge has acted illegally within these words. Where a Judge decreed a claim brought upon two *hundi*s, which were inadmissible in evidence for want of impressed stamps, the Bombay High Court reversed his decree under this section.¹⁴ When a Judge refused to allow a party interested in a probate case to appear and oppose the grant of probate, from which order no appeal lay, the Calcutta High Court held that the Judge had acted illegally, and interfered under the corresponding section of Act XIV of 1882.¹⁵ A District Judge who admits in evidence an unregistered lease which required registration, exercises his jurisdiction illegally and his decree can be set aside under this section ¹. A Mamlatdar acts illegally when he permits a tenant to deny his landlord's title ². It was held that the Madras High Court could set aside an ex parte order passed under the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890, by the Agent to the Governor in the Scheduled District of Vizagapatam on the ground that the petitioner's vakil had not been heard ³.

On the other hand the fact that a Court having power to decide whether or not a certain matter was barred is res judicata ⁴ or was barred by limitation, wrongly decided that it was not barred and proceeded to deal with it affords no ground for revision ⁵. The erroneous rejection of a document as inadmissible in evidence is a mere error in law which is not an illegality or material irregularity ⁶. The fact that a Court has misunderstood the effect of a document in evidence does not constitute a ground upon which the High Court can interfere in revision ⁷.

Material irregularity—This means an irregularity in procedure which has produced error or defect in the decision of the case upon the merits ⁸. This sub section is intended to authorize the High Court to interfere and correct gross and palpable errors of subordinate Courts so as to prevent gross injustice ⁹. Such as trying one issue only and that a wrong one is a material irregularity ¹⁰. When a Court improperly refused to amend a decree which was

Facts. It has been held that it is not open to the High Court under this provision to go into a question of fact even in cases where there is no appeal and where the error is apparent in the decision on the facts. But in a later case it is said that under this section the High Court can examine the evidence and re-investigate the facts.¹

Such order as the High Court thinks fit—Form of order.—And where the order of the Full Bench of a Small Cause Court was set aside under this Code for material irregularity the Court thought the proper order was to remit the case to the Full Bench to dispose of the case according to law.² In the Noida case it has been decided that the High Court may under this section, pass an order which might pass on second appeal,³ and where the decisions of both the Courts were without jurisdiction on the Court set aside both decisions and returned the plaintiff's suit where the Court after considering the evidence came to the conclusion that it was sufficient to justify the Judge in allowing the case to go to a jury and set aside the decree and dismissed the suit.⁴

The Court has jurisdiction to set aside an order sanctioning prosecution under section 193 I.P.C.⁵

No order.—See Sullay v. Tellama.⁶ The High Court need not interfere even though orders have been made irregularly, if no case for its interference is made out.⁷

Consular Court at Zanzibar.—The Bombay High Court has no power of revision in Zanzibar, though it is authorized in cases as a Consular Court as in a District Court. A power of revision is not an incident of appellate powers but on the contrary can only be exercised where there is no appeal.⁸

Letters Patent appeal. An appeal lay under s. 15 of the Letters Patent against the order of a single Judge of the High Court under s. 622, Act XIV of 1832, when such order amounted to a judgment.⁹ No appeal lies under s. 15 of the Letters Patent from an order of a single Judge of the High Court dismissing an application for the exercise of the Court's extraordinary or revisional jurisdiction.¹⁰ A party who has preferred an appeal to the High Court when the law gave him no right of appeal is not entitled upon the hearing to ask the Court to treat it as an application for the exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction under s. 15 of the Charter Act.¹¹

Consular Court at Zanzibar—The Bombay High Court has no power of revision over civil cases tried by the Consular Court at Zanzibar, though it is authorized to hear appeals from the decision of that Court as a Consular Court as a District Court by the Zanzibar Order in Council of 1884. A power of revision is not an incident of appellate powers, but on the contrary, can only be exercised where there is no appeal.⁷

A District Judge acting under s. 23 of the Bombay District Municipal Act, Amendment Act (II of 1881) is not a Court within the meaning of s 622, (former Code) and the High Court has no jurisdiction to revise his order refusing

In a Calcutta case it was stated that s 622 of the former Code was of very limited operation, and where a lower Court has jurisdiction to decide a question of law or fact, the High Court has no power to interfere on revision with the decision on those questions—Krishna Mohan v Hedar Nath, (1888) 15 Calo, 446.

Provisions not applying to High Court in original civil or insolvent jurisdiction

120 (1) The following provisions shall not apply to the High Court in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction, namely, sections 16, 17 and 20

(2) Nothing in this Code shall extend or apply to any Judge of a High Court in the exercise of jurisdiction as an Insolvent Court

Act XIV of 1882 sections 638 and 639

This proviso deals only with the sections in the body of the Code the rules and orders which are not intended to apply to High Courts are set out in Order XLIX

Ordinary or extraordinary civil jurisdiction—Ordinary jurisdiction embraces all such as is exercised in the ordinary course of law and without any special step being necessary to assume it, and it is opposed to extraordinary jurisdiction which the Court may assume at its discretion upon special circumstances and on special orders¹. Thus a judgment entered up in the name of the Official Assignee against the insolvent is entered up in the ordinary jurisdiction of the High Court,² but the appointment of a member of a committee under s 10 Act XX 1863 is not a matter of ordinary civil jurisdiction of a District Court³.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE CHARTERED HIGH COURTS

116 This Part applies only to High Courts which are or may hereafter be established under the Indian High Courts Act, 1861

Part to apply only to certain High Courts

A copy of this Act (24 & 25 Vict c 104) is printed in the addenda of this work

117 Save as provided in this Part or in Part X or in rules, the provisions of this Code shall apply to such High Courts

Application of Code to High Courts

118 Where any such High Court considers it necessary that a decree passed in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction should be executed before the amount of the costs incurred in the suit can be ascertained by taxation, the Court may order that the decree shall be executed forth with, except as to so much thereof as relates to the costs, and, as to so much thereof as relates to the costs, that the decree may be executed as soon as the amount of the costs shall be ascertained by taxation

Execution of decree before ascertainment of costs

119 Nothing in this Code shall be deemed to authorize any person on behalf of another to address the Court in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction, or to examine witnesses, except where the Court shall have in the exercise of the power conferred by its charter authorized him so to do, or to interfere with the power of the High Court to make rules concerning advocates, vakils and attorneys are to be exercised and Chief Courts

122 High Courts established under the Indian High Courts Act, 1861, and the Chief Courts of the Punjab and Lower Burma, may, from time to time after previous publication make rules regulating their own procedure and the procedure of the Civil Courts subject to their superintendence and may by such rules annul, alter or add to all or any of the rules in the First Schedule

Powers of certain High Courts to make rules

123 (1) A Committee, to be called the Rule Committee, shall be constituted at each of the towns of Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Allahabad, Lahore and Rangoon

Constitution of Rule Committees in certain Provinces

(2) Each such Committee, shall consist of the following persons, namely —

- (a) three Judges of the High Court established at the town at which such Committee is constituted, one of whom at least has served as a District Judge or (in the Punjab or Burma) a Divisional Judge for three years,
- (b) a barrister practising in that Court,
- (c) an advocate (not being a barrister) or valuer or pleader enrolled in that Court,

(d) A judge of a Civil Court subordinate to the High Court, and

(e) in the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, an attorney

(3) The members of each such Committee shall be appointed by the Chief Justice or Chief Judge, who shall also nominate one of their number to be president

Provided that, if the Chief Justice or Chief Judge elects to be himself a member of a Committee, the number of other Judges appointed to be members shall be two, and the Chief Justice or Chief Judge shall be the President of the Committee

(4) Each member of any such Committee shall hold office for such period as may be prescribed by the Chief Justice or Chief Judge in this behalf, and whenever any member retires, resigns, dies or ceases to reside in the province in which the Committee was constituted, or becomes incapable of acting as a member of the Committee, the said Chief Justice or Chief Judge may appoint another person to be a member in his stead

(5) There shall be a Secretary to each such Committee who shall be appointed by the Chief Justice or Chief Judge and shall receive such remuneration as may be provided in this behalf by the Governor General in Council or by the Local Government, as the case may be

124 Every Rule Committee shall make a report to the High Court established at the town at which it is constituted on any proposal to annul, alter or add to the rules in the First Schedule or to make new rules, and before making any rules under section 122 the High Court shall take such report into consideration

125 High Courts, other than the Courts specified in section 122, may exercise the powers conferred by that section in such manner and subject to such conditions as the Governor General in Council may determine

Provided that any such High Court may, after previous publication, make a rule extending within the local limits of its jurisdiction any rules which have been made by any other High Court.

it shall think fit, and nothing herein contained shall affect the validity of any such rules in force at the commencement of this Code

130 A High Court not established under the Indian High Courts Act, 1861, may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, make, with respect to any matter other than procedure, any rule which any Power of other High Courts to make rules as to matters other than procedure.

High Court so established might, under section 15 of that Act, make with respect to any such matter for any part of the territories under its jurisdiction which is not included within the limits of a Presidency town

131 Rules made in accordance with section 129 or section 130 shall be published in the Gazette of India or in the local official Gazette, as the case may be, and shall from the date of publication or from such other date as may be specified have the force of law

Act XIV of 1887, sect 6, 2. Section 109 saves the existing rules of the High Court. Some of those Rules for example those relating to admission of facts, are very similar to the new provisions inserted in the first Schedule to this Code, and it is probable that the first step of the Rule Committees will be to revise the existing rules

The exemption is absolute and not limited to cases in which the party claims it has been summoned by the opposite party. A Rytah instituted a suit under Act X of 1859 through an agent appointed in that behalf. The agent was not being satisfied with the information which the agent could get from the defendant, he required the personal attendance of the defendant but the defendant refused to attend.

144 (1) Where and in so far as a decree is varied or reversed, the Court of first instance shall on the application of any party entitled to any benefit by way of restitution or otherwise, cause such restitution to be made as will, so far as may be, place the parties in the position which they would have occupied but for such decree or such part thereof as has been varied or reversed and for this purpose, the Court may make any orders, including orders for the refund of costs and for the payment of interest, damages, compensation and mesne profits which are properly consequential on such variation or reversal.

(2) No suit shall be instituted for the purpose of obtaining any restitution or other relief which could be obtained by application under sub section (1)

It has been held to conform with the practice instituted under sect 583 of Act XIV of 1882 a practice sanctioned by many decisions of the Courts which it is no longer necessary to record. The widest discretion is given hereby and the Court makes any necessary order which it has jurisdiction to make and enforce. The following decisions under the former provision in the same behalf may still prove serviceable.

Duty of the Court—A Court has an inherent right irrespective of this section to order restitution. The principle of the doctrine of restitution is that on reversal of a judgment the law rises an obligation on the party to the record who received the benefit of the erroneous judgment to make restitution to the other party for whom he had lost. It is the duty of the Court to enforce that obligation unless he shows that restitution would be clearly contrary to the real justice of the case. With reference to the position of innocent third parties, the rule that a plaintiff cannot go to recover land cannot by his writ of restitution recover and dispossess a stranger to the proceeding holding possession on an independent title or claim of title and in collusion with the defendant, does not apply when the party seeking to be restored to possession has been wrongfully dispossessed by the agency of the Court.¹ Party includes the party's representative within the meaning of sect 47.² In a suit for possession of land restitution carries mesne profits and interest on them.³

Person making restitution, or assignee—The person making restitution is bound to restore everything to which he is not entitled and cannot set up any her person's title,⁴ and he is bound to give up anything in his possession if property in so doing under a decree and bought in by the creditor, and the decree is afterwards set aside, he is bound to restore it,¹ though he may sue for his purchase money.² But where property to the restitution of which a party is entitled is transferred after decree, the party entitled cannot put the transferee on the record and summarily enforce his rights.³ A plaintiff in a pre-emptive suit obtained a decree and paid into Court the pre-emptive price. The money was drawn out of Court by the vendor. Subsequently the decree was reversed and the plaintiff applied for a refund of the money paid into Court. Held, that he was entitled to it with interest up to date of repayment.⁴ If the thing to be restored is land, the person entitled to restitution is entitled also to mesne profits.⁵ Appellants to the Privy Council who had antecedently to filing their appeal paid to the assignee of the decree appealed against, which was for costs only the amount then payable under that decree, cannot on succeeding in their appeal obtain restitution merely by virtue of, and in execution of, the order of Her Majesty in Council, the assignee of the decree having been no party to the appeal.⁶

Jurisdiction—A Subordinate Judge is not limited to 5000 rupees, when his decision has been set aside on appeal to the District Judge.⁷

Probate—After appeal to the High Court, probate must be applied for to and issued by, the District Court.⁸

Limitation—Applications made to obtain restitution under a decree are proceedings in execution of that decree, and are governed by the Limitation Act, Sched II, art 179.⁹

An application by the judgment debtor for refund of money taken out of Court by a decree holder in excess of the amount of his decree is a question relating to the execution of the decree and the rule of limitation applicable is possibly three years.¹⁰

Enforcement of liability of surety

145 Where any person has become liable as surety—

Apart from this section a Civil Court probably has inherent power to vary its own orders in order to carry out its own meaning, and to make clear and plain any doubtfully worded expressions.²

This section is taken from the English rule under which it has been decided that where a judgment is entered is manifestly contrary to the intentions of the judge it can be corrected - but where the order represents the actual decision of the Court it cannot be corrected because that decision based upon a misrepresentation is not like an unintentional slip.³

At any time - lapse of time cannot affect the powers of the Court under this section. In *Hilton v. Harris*⁴ an error was amended thirty nine years after its occurrence but an application has been refused to vary the form of a charging order after judgment had been pronounced for administration of the debtor's estate.⁵

Prima facie For the English practice, see, Ann Pric (1908) Vol I p 363. Under this section no application is necessary and the Court may make an order of its own motion.

153 The Court may at any time, and on such terms as it may think fit, amend any defect or error in any proceeding in a suit and all necessary amendments shall be made for the purpose of determining the real question or issue raised by or depending on such proceeding.

Rules of the Supreme Court Order 29 r 1.

Under the corresponding rule of the Supreme Court amendments have been made in pleadings and applications of all kinds, interrogatories and answers thereto, petitions in matrimonial suits, summons etc. See Annual Practice (1908) Vol I, 564, 567. Such amendments have also been allowed in every kind of legal document in the Indian Courts and the practice will no doubt be continued under the same principles as heretofore. The facts of each case being carefully considered in order to ascertain whether the amendment asked for can be granted without prejudice to parties other than the applicant and whether it should be granted upon terms as to costs or otherwise.

⁵ See XX v. Y 1908, 11 App Cas 111, 112.

Apart from this section a Civil Court probably has inherent power to vary its own orders in order to carry out its own meaning, and to make clear and plain any doubtfully worded expressions.¹

This section is taken from the English rule under which it has been decided that where a judgment as a whole is manifestly contrary to the intentions of the judge it can be corrected;² but where the order represents the actual decision of the Court it cannot be corrected because that decision based upon a misrepresentation or mistake amounts to something more than an accidental slip.³

At any time—Lapse of time cannot affect the powers of the Court under this section. In *Hutton v Harris*⁴ an error was amended thirty nine years after its occurrence, but an application has been refused to vary the form of a charging order after judgment had been pronounced for administration of the debtor's estate.⁵

Justice—For the English practice see, Ann Pric (1908) Vol I p 36, under this section no application is necessary and the Court may make an order of its own motion.

153 The Court may at any time, and on such terms as it may think fit, amend any defect or error in any proceeding in a suit and all necessary amendments shall be made for the purpose of determining the real question or issue raised by or depending on such proceeding.

Rules of the Supreme Court Order 8 r 17.

Under the corresponding rule of the Supreme Court amendments have been made in England upon applications of all kinds interrogatories and answers thereto petitions for mandamus writs summonses &c etc. See Annual Practice (1908) Vol I p 36. Such amendments have also been allowed in every kind of legal business in the Indian Courts and the practice will no doubt be continued under the same principles. Hereafter the facts of each case being carefully considered in order to decide whether the amendment asked for can be granted without prejudice to parties other than the applicant and whether it should be granted upon terms or not, it is there said.

155 The enactments mentioned in the Fourth Schedule are hereby amended to the extent specified in the fourth column thereof.

156 The enactments mentioned in the Fifth Schedule are hereby repealed to the extent specified in the fourth column thereof.
